THIRD BIENNIAL REPORT OF SECRETARY OF STATE.

STATE OF INDIANA, }
OFFICE OF SECRETARY OF STATE. }

SIR—I herewith respectfully submit the biennial report of the business of this office, embracing the period from the 1st day of November, 1888, to the 31st day of October, 1890, together with tabulated statement of the vote of Indiana at the November election, 1890, for State officers, Congressmen and legislative and judicial officers of the State.

I also submit, herewith, report of Charles A. Bookwalter, Clerk of the Bureau of Public Printing, Binding and Stationery, who has performed the duties pertaining to his office with rare ability and fidelity to the interest of the State.

Permit me to call your attention to the fact that no index is found in this office of Enrolled Acts of the General Assembly of the State of Indiana since 1871, excepting the General Assemblies of 1887 and 1889. Frequent reference is made to these acts, copies thereof are often required by attorneys and parties for use in the courts of this and other States, and there is no method of finding an act on any given subject, except by an examination of the enrolled acts of the particular session referred to, page by page.

I therefore recommend for your consideration that some provision should be made by the General Assembly for the indexing of these laws, such as has been kept in this office prior to 1871 and since 1886, for the convenience of the general public.

LAWS, 1801 TO 1839.

The original Enrolled Acts of the General Assembly of Indiana, both State and Territorial, from the year 1801 to 1839, inclusive, are filed in this office, in manuscript form, in tin boxes.

They are unbound and not indexed, and, many of them being more than eighty years old, are crumbling and falling to pieces, being now almost illegible. These documents are of great value to the State, and some provision should be made for the copying, indexing and binding thereof for their preservation.

NOTARIES PUBLIC.

Frequent calls are made upon this office for certificates of official character and qualification of Notaries Public, resident in this State, for use in other States and Territories where their official acts are called in question. As the law now stands, the only evidence in this office of the official character or qualifications of a Notary Public is his application and judge's certificate and the record of his official commission. No evidence is filed in this office of his compliance with the law in the filing of his official bond and oath of office with the County Clerk. I respectfully suggest that, for the safety and convenience of the public, as well as of the officer himself, the law should be so amended as to provide for the filing of such bond and oath in the office of the Secretary of State, or else the filing in this office of the Clerk's certificate of the facts of such compliance with the law in this office. As the law is now framed, the Secretary of State is never safe in certifying that a Notary Public is duly qualified, etc., and yet a refusal so to certify often works great inconvenience and hardship.

RAILROAD MAPS AND PROFILES.

The law requiring railroad companies to file maps and profiles in this office has been complied within but few instances. Such maps and profiles are of great value in determining the boundaries of the right of way of such railroads, and are very frequently called for by land-owners through whose property such railroads pass, for use in the courts. The law, as now constituted, is a dead letter, no penalty being attached for its non-fulfillment, and it ought to be amended.

RAILROAD CORPORATIONS' ANNUAL REPORT.

Section 3918, Revised Statutes, 1881, requiring railroad corporations to file in the office of the Secretary of State an annual report of their doings, under oath, seems seldom to have been complied with. But few of such reports have been filed in this office during the past two years, and, as no penalty attaches for a failure to comply with such law, it is a dead letter. Such reports, if faithfully made, would be of considerable value to the State Board of Equalization, as well as to the general public. I recommend that this law be so amended that it may be enforced.

ELECTORAL CANVASS.

I respectfully suggest that sections 4771 and 4776, Revised Statutes of Indiana, 1881, pertaining to the canvass of the vote for Presidential electors, should be so amended as to require the Clerk of the Circuit Court in each county in the State to make a certificate of votes for Presidential electors in such county, required in section 4771, in duplicate, forwarding immediately one duplicate to the Secretary of State, and delivering the other duplicate, as now required by law, to the proper marshal, to be by him conveyed to the Secretary of State, and requiring the Secretary of State, immediately upon the receipt of the certificate of the vote from the County Clerk, to tabulate and spread the same upon the record in his office.

This being done, upon the meeting of the marshals, Governor and Secretary of State for the canvassing of such vote, it would only be necessary to compare the vote upon the records of the Secretary of State with the duplicate delivered to the marshal, thereby insuring safety and convenience, and reducing the time necessary to make such canvass to a few hours, whereas now two or three days are required, and the cost of such canvass to the State is much greater than under the plan herein suggested. The making of such certificates of vote in duplicate would also insure against mistakes and clerical errors, and greatly expedite business in this office.

I make these suggestions pertaining to the business of this office with the hope that they may meet with your approval, and through you may be called to the attention of the next General Assembly.

To the Hon. ALVIN P. HOVEY,

Governor of Indiana.

Respectfully submitted,

CHARLES F. GRIFFIN,

Secretary of State.

Pursuant to instructions of the Board of Commissioners of Public Printing, Binding and Stationery, given at a meeting of the Board, held in the office of the Governor, July 18, 1889, Charles A. Bookwalter, Clerk of the Board, prepared the copy of an advertisement for proposals for doing the State printing and binding, and furnishing stationery for the term of two years, commencing October 1, 1889, and the same was published 21 times in each of the following named papers: Indianapolis Journal, Indianapolis Sentinel, Fort Wayne Gazette, Evansville Journal, Madison Courier and Logansport Journal.

The advertisement submitted by the Clerk was as follows:

NOTICE TO PRINTERS, BOOKBINDERS AND STATIONERS.

BUREAU OF PUBLIC PRINTING, BINDING AND STATIONERY,

The Board of Commissioners of Public Printing, Binding and Stationery will, in accordance with an act of the General Assembly, approved April 13, 1885, receive sealed proposals until the 21st day of October, 1889, and up to the hour of 11 A. M. of that day, for doing the public printing and binding and furnishing the stationery for the use of the State of Indiana, for a term of two years, commencing on the 1st day of October, 1889.

At the date and hour above stated, in the office of the Secretary of State, the sealed proposals will be opened, and as soon thereafter as the bids can be properly examined and classified, the contract will be awarded to the lowest and best bidder, according to law, the Board, however, reserving the right to reject any or all bids.

The work will be divided into three classes, as specified by law, as follows:

The first class shall comprise the laws, journals, reports of officers and public institutions, and all book and pamphlet work to be printed on book paper.

The second class shall comprise all legislative bills, commissions, letter-heads, circulars, blanks and other work usually executed on writing paper, and all articles of stationery.

The third class shall comprise the folding, stitching, covering and binding, and all work belonging to the binding business.

Contracts shall also include the printing and blocking of all election tickets provided by the general election law passed at the fifty-sixth session of the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, and also the preparation of all stamps provided by said law for the marking of ballots.

Parties making bids will be required to accompany their sealed proposals with samples of every description of paper and material named in said proposals, giving the name and weight of same, or otherwise designating means for making comparisons and estimating values. The contractor will be required to give bond in the sum of $25,000, with approved security, for the faithful performance of all work which may be awarded to him, in accordance with the specifications hereinafter named, and that in every instance the paper and material furnished shall be in color and quality the same as the sample furnished.

The contractor shall maintain an office in the city of Indianapolis, for the transaction of all business under said contract, and all work under said contract shall be performed within the State of Indiana.

Any bidder who shall be awarded said contract shall not assign the same, nor any portion thereof, without the written consent of the Board of Public Printing.

The contract will be let as a whole to the lowest bidder in the aggregate, no division of classes being allowed.

The basis furnished is solely for the information of bidders, and to secure uniformity of bids, but in awarding the contract the Board reserves the right to estimate the bids on the basis of the total amount consumed during the last contract year, which amount may be ascertained by application to Charles A. Bookwalter, Clerk of the Bureau of Public Printing, Binding and Stationery, at the office of the Secretary of State.

Mr. Bookwalter will also furnish, on application, specifications and full particulars regarding the work, and the contract must be to do the work according to specifications furnished.

—OF THE—

STATE OF INDIANA,

—SHOWING THE—

Receipts and Disbursements and other Transactions of this Department During the Fiscal Year Ending October 31, 1890.

TO THE GOVERNOR.

INDIANAPOLIS:

STATE OF INDIANA,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
November 20, 1890. }

The within report of the Auditor of State has been received and examined by the Governor, and transmitted to the Secretary of State for publication, upon the order of the Board of Commissioners of Public Printing and Binding.

WILLIAM B. ROBERTS,
Private Secretary.

Filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Indiana November 20, 1890.

CHARLES F. GRIFFIN,
Secretary of State.

OFFICE OF AUDITOR OF STATE,
INDIANAPOLIS, IND., NOV. 1, 1890 }

To His Excellency, ALVIN P. HOVEY,
Governor of Indiana:

In compliance with the statutes defining the duties of the Auditor of State, it is made his duty to report and exhibit to the General Assembly, at its biennial meeting, his annual report of the fiscal transactions of the State of Indiana.

In accordance therewith the annual report for the fiscal year ending October 31, 1890, is hereby submitted to you, and through you to the General Assembly.

The suggestions and recommendations to the Legislature are confined to such matters as seem to be of great importance, and which it is trusted will receive the immediate attention of that body.

Respectfully submitted,

BRUCE CARR,
Auditor of State.

AUDITOR'S OFFICE.

BRUCE CARR,
Auditor of State.

JOHN W. COONS,
Deputy Auditor of State.

HENRY A. REED,
Clerk Insurance Department.

LEWIS G. AKIN,
Clerk Land Department.

GEORGE U. BINGHAM,
JAMES M. DAWSON,
CHARLES M. GLOVER,
General Clerks.

SUGGESTIONS TO THE LEGISLATURE.

As will be seen elsewhere in this report, the total net receipts to the general fund from all sources during the present fiscal year were $1,448,151.45.

The income of the State within the next three years, at the present rate of taxation, is likely not to vary much, if any, from the above sum.

The actual net expenses necessary to run the State government for the fiscal year 1891 are estimated at $2,000,000. To this should be added the unpaid appropriations of former years, to-wit, $205,232.33, making a total of $2,205,232.33.

If specific appropriations are passed by the General Assembly of 1891, the same should be added to the above sum of $2,205,232.33.

Taking the above figures, not including specific appropriations that may be passed by the Legislature, as a basis, the deficit over and above the net receipts for the year 1891 is $757,080.88.

The necessary expenses of the State government for the years 1892 and 1893, as will be found on another page of this report, are estimated as follows: 1892, $1,873,090; 1893, $1,998,090, which would leave a deficit at end of each year, respectively, $424,939 and $549,939, to which deficiencies should be added any additional appropriations that may be made by the Legislature for these years.

Immediate provision, in my opinion, should be made for the relief of the Treasury, the importance of which can readily be seen, as a continuation of the increase of the State debt becomes a necessity, unless the Legislature enacts such laws as may increase the receipts of the State equal to the necessary expenditures and appropriations.

The State debt is now $8,540,615.12, and unless some provisions are made to increase the receipts to the general fund, such debt will increase at the rate of about $500,000 annually.

THE SOUTHERN HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE.

It seems that the appropriation made by the last Legislature for furnishing and equipping the new hospitals for the insane was expended before the hospital at Evansville, Ind., had been furnished and equipped. It was not competent to pay bills for furnishing and equipping out of the appropriation for maintenance, hence the Trustees of the hospital at Evansville are unable to properly equip the hospital for the reception of patients, and it is certainly proper that the Legislature should make provisions for this.

ASSESSMENT OF CORPORATIONS FOR TAXATION.

The question of the valuation of corporations, particularly railroads, for the purpose of taxation, is one that deserves some attention. It is important to the tax-payers of Indiana that corporations, particularly railroads, should be given a proper valuation, and that all their property and belongings should be assessed. It is hardly possible for the State Board of Equalization, in the limited time allotted to them by law, and with the meager facts at their command, to give this matter the attention that it demands. It seems that it would be a wise thing to have some agent or agents of the State, who are able to make this a special work, to gather facts and information relative to these valuations, and thus materially aid the State Board of Equalization in this work.

STATE DEBT.

Elsewhere in this report will be found a complete statement of the indebtedness of the State at the close of fiscal year.

The act of March 11, 1889, authorizes the Governor, Treasurer of State and Auditor of State to fund any of the temporary loan indebtedness of the State whenever the same can be done at lower rate of interest.

The three and one half per cent. temporary loan bonds, amounting to $600,000, dated March 1, 1885, became redeemable at the pleasure of the State after March 1, 1890. In compliance with the above law, on August 21, last, proposals were asked for the purchase of the three per cent. bonds of the State to the amount of $600,000, for the purpose of taking up the above mentioned temporary loan bonds.

No bids were received for such bonds. An effort was then made to dispose of these bonds through Messrs. Winslow, Lanier & Co., the fiscal agents of the State in New York City, but so far without success. They have, however, assured the officers charged with the duty of carrying on these refunding operations, that the failure to sell these bonds does not reflect upon the credit of the State, but that the present activity of the eastern money market has enabled those who deal in such securities to invest their money at a higher rate of interest.

The Public Debt Statement on page 60 of this report shows that there will become due $340,000 "three per cent. registered bonds," temporary interest loan, issued under the provisions of the act of May 27, 1852, dated April 1, 1887, and payable at the pleasure of the State after April 1, 1889, due and payable April 1, 1892. Provisions for the prompt payment of these bonds should be made during the present session of the Legislature.

LAND DEPARTMENT.

LAND DEPARTMENT.

Herewith is submitted a report of the transactions of the Land Department, so far as they relate to matters of record. The principal work of this department is confined to answering letters of inquiry relating to land entries and original surveys. Hundreds of such letters are received annually, and the investigations required consume much time and labor.

As will be seen by the list given below, there is but little land now belonging to the State. There are a number of town lots and small parcels of land forfeited to the State for non-payment of taxes, as provided by the act of March 2, 1883, which are not included in said lists. These lands are of little value, and the expense of sale under existing laws would amount to more than could be realized from them. They should, however, be bearing their proportion of taxation. I would suggest that legislation be had that would authorize this Department to transfer the title of the State upon appraisement, and without advertisement.

There still remains in this office a large number of patents, conveying Wabash and Erie Canal lands. The law directs that these be recorded in the county where the land is situate, and until this is done there will be a defect in the title to these lands. Patents, some issued by the State as early as 1832, and others by the trustees of the canal as late as 1876, are here for lands in Allen, Benton, Carroll, Cass, Clay, Crawford, Daviess, Dubois, Fulton, Gibson, Greene, Huntington, Jasper, Knox, Kosciusko, Lake, Lawrence, Marshall, Martin, Miami, Monroe, Newton, Noble, Orange, Owen, Parke, Perry, Pike, Posey, Pulaski, Putnam, Spencer, Sullivan, Vanderburgh, Vermillion, Wabash, Warrick, White and Whitley Counties. It is hoped that the owners of canal lands in the counties named, who have not yet obtained their patents, and had them recorded, will do so at once, in order that their title may be made perfect.

A list of swamp and university lands remaining unpatented is herewith given. While the records of this office show the sale of a few of these tracts, I am satisfied that had the department the means of prosecuting an inquiry into the condition of title to these lands, most of it will be found to still belong to the State, although it was not so reported under the act of 1883. In many cases where the State has sold the land I think it will be found that the purchasers have failed to complete their payments, and the title has thus reverted to the State.

STILL REMAINING UNSOLD.

STATE BANKS.

STATE BANKS.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

Herewith is presented the annual report of the examination of the State Banks, together with tabular statement, showing their condition.

The report for the year 1887 showed thirty-two banks then doing business under the well devised and guarded law of Indiana, with capital stock of $1,742,500. There are now fifty-three banks in operation, with capital stock of $2,486,183.90, all prosperous and sound, as the details of this report will show.

An increase of twenty-one banks, nearly sixty-six per cent., in the short period of four years, with an increase of $743,683.90, nearly three quarters of a million dollars of capital stock, is at once an indorsement of our banking system that is far better than simple words of praise; besides, other evidences are here shown of the thrift and increased prosperity of our State bank institutions, which must prove gratifying to every citizen of our State.

I here desire to bear testimony to the uniformly prompt, kind and courteous manner with which the officials of these banks have met me and transacted the business of my office.

Most respectfully submitted,

JAMES R. HENRY,

October 31, 1890.

SAVINGS BANKS.

Herewith is appended a statement of the condition of the several savings banks of the State at the close of business October 31, 1890.

The official examination of these banks, made under the direction of this office, shows that during the past year all of these institutions have prospered. Their loans are well secured, their expenses are as small as their successful management will permit, and their earnings have enabled them to pay four and five per cent. dividends and carry a good sum to their surplus fund.

In only one instance have their deposits fallen below what they were a year ago. In this case deposits were discouraged because of the inability of the bank to loan its funds safely and profitably. The investment of the funds of these banks promises to become a serious problem in the near future unless some of the restrictions of the law governing their investments are modified. The rapid increase in the deposits are in some instances making it difficult for the banks to place their money profitably and securely. As a means of relief it is suggested that the law be so amended that mortgage loans may be made in counties beyond the limits of those adjoining that in which the bank is located.

The success of the banks now in operation, and the good they are accomplishing in encouraging savings by the people of the community around them, invites attention to the desirability of encouraging the formation of similar institutions. To a certain extent building and loan associations have taken their place, but in many localities there are neither. The great difficulty to be overcome, under the present law, is to find suitable persons willing to give the time necessary to their management for the small compensation permitted by law.

To make these banks successful their reputation must be beyond doubt as to their safety and the honesty of their management. They also require careful supervision. This takes the time of the Trustees from their other avocations. The man successful in affairs is loth to give his time without adequate compensation. It is believed by those who have given thought to the matter that the best solution of this problem is to be found in the stock feature of the Iowa savings bank law, which in other respects is similar to that of our State. An amount equal to ten per cent. of the deposits is required to be subscribed as stock. This gives the stockholders who are the managers of the bank some compensation for their services, as well as a closer interest in its success. It also adds to the security of the deposits. Under this law savings banks have increased and prospered in that State.

The deposits of the five banks in the State now amount to $3,552,099.53, an increase during the year of $473,491.29. They have a surplus fund of $266,247.81 and 14,884 depositors.

H. Moore, Traffic Manager of the Midland Railway, showed to the Board the incomplete and poor condition of his road and rolling stock, and stated that the road was now operated at a loss from $1,200 to $2,000 a month and requested that the very lowest valuation be granted him for 1890.

John McLoed, Engineer, and Charles P. Weaver, Secretary and Treasurer, explained to the Board as to the mileage of the main, second main track and rolling stock of the Kentucky and Indiana Bridge Company, and they requested the Board to reduce the valuation of last year's assessment in conformity with other similar bridges.

George L. Bradbury, General Manager, and W. E. Hackedorn, General Solicitor of the Lake Erie & Western Railroad, made statements concerning their road, and showed to the Board that the tax on the present valuation was 4 per cent. of the gross earnings, and they requested the Board to take this matter into consideration when valuation for 1890 was fixed.

And thereupon the Board adjourned until Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

ALVIN P. HOVEY,
President of Board.

Attest: JOHN W. COONS,
Secretary of Board.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 30, 1890.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment, the following members being present:

Alvin P. Hovey, Ira J. Chase, Bruce Carr, J. A. Lemcke and Charles F. Griffin.

Hon. W. J. Wood, representing the Louisville & Nashville and the Evansville, Suburban & Newburgh Railroads, made statements concerning their roads, and explained that the latter was valued at $3,000 per mile last year, which was erroneous and should be corrected, as no rails had been laid, and that the annual return was made by mistake, as in reality no road existed at that time, and the road was therefore not taxable; he also asked for a reasonable assessment for 1890 of these roads, and the Board took these matters and things under consideration, and thereupon adjourned until Tuesday, July 8, 1890.

ALVIN P. HOVEY,
President of Board.

Attest: JOHN W. COONS,
Secretary of Board.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 8, 1890.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment. Present, Alvin P. Hovey, Ira J. Chase, Bruce Carr, J. A. Lemcke and Chas. F. Griffin.

Louis T. Michener, Attorney General, took and subscribed to the following oath:

I, Louis T. Michener, do solemnly swear that I will support the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of the State of Indiana, and that I will faithfully and impartially discharge my duties as a member of the State Board of Equalization to the best of my ability.

LOUIS T. MICHENER.

STATE OF INDIANA, }
MARION COUNTY. } ss.

Personally appeared before me the undersigned, Louis T. Michener, who was sworn according to law.

[L. s.]

WM. T. NOBLE,
Clerk of Supreme Court.

Colonel Edward Hawkins appearing for the Chicago & West Michigan Railroad, made a lengthy statement concerning the Indiana branch of said road, and requested the Board to reduce the value of the main track one thousand dollars per mile. The Colonel explained to the Board that the Indiana part of this road was used for freight purposes only, with the exception of one daily passenger train, and that the road was new and in a bad condition, and the Board not being fully advised in the premises took this matter under advisement.

The Board now being ready for the valuation and assessment of railroads, commenced its labor and continued during the day, and thereupon adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

ALVIN P. HOVEY,
President of Board.

Attest: JOHN W. COONS,
Secretary of Board.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 9, 1890.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment, all members present.

The valuation of railroads was resumed and continued during the entire day, and thereupon the Board adjourned until Friday, July 11, 1890.

ALVIN P. HOVEY,
President of Board.

Attest: JOHN W. COONS,
Secretary of Board.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 11, 1890.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment, all members present.

M. E. Ingalls, President, John T. Dye, Attorney, and E. A. Hill, Tax Agent, appeared in behalf of the C., C., C. & St. L. system. Messrs. Ingalls and Dye made lengthy statements concerning their roads and explained to the Board as to the earnings and physical condition of the different divisions of said system and requested the Board to take these matters and things into consideration when valuation is fixed for 1890. They also made statements regarding the Peoria & Eastern, western and eastern divisions, formerly the Ohio, Indiana & Western.

John F. Ramsey, Assistant to President Ingalls, appeared in behalf of the Indianapolis Union and Belt roads and explained the interest of the several roads leading into the city in the above-named roads and he requested the Board to place a reasonable valuation on the property.

C. K. Lord, Vice-President, and W. W. Peabody, General Manager, appeared for the Baltimore and Ohio and Chicago Railway and requested the Board to reduce the valuation of the main track for the reason that the same is excessive and not in comparison with other similar roads. All of which matters and things were taken under consideration, and the Board now resumed the valuations and assessments of the roads and continued the same during the entire day and the following valuation per mile of the various roads within this State, and the improvements on the right-of-way and in daily use by such railroads, was unanimously agreed upon, and the same was ordered to be spread upon record, and to stand as the assessment of the railroad property, denominated Railroad Track, Rolling Stock and Improvements on Right-of-Way, for the year 1890, which assessment is in the words and figures following, to-wit:

ANALYSIS OF CIVIL LITIGATION.

An analysis of the above list of cases shows that the Attorney General was successful in thirty-three cases; that he was defeated in fifteen cases; that five cases have been compromised; that six cases have been dismissed, and that twenty-three cases are still pending. Of the cases pending, seven are in the Supreme Court, one before the United States Court of Claims, one before the Secretary of the Treasury, and the remainder in the various Circuit and Superior Courts of the State.

IMPORTANT LITIGATION.

During the present term of this office there have been a number of cases litigated and determined which involved public questions of the least importance. With one exception, all of these cases required the placing of a construction upon our State Constitution respecting the powers of the three great departments of government and their relations to each other. The cases growing out of the effort of the legislative appointees to office to obtain commissions involved the determination of the line of demarkation between legislative and executive powers; the Supreme Court Commission case presented the question as to whether the supremacy of the judicial department in its own sphere would prevent an intrusion therein by another department, while the case brought to enjoin the making of a loan by the State, in pursuance of an act of the Legislature, required the Court to determine whether the supremacy of the Legislature in its own department did not forbid the formation of issues at law upon questions which, under the Constitution, that tribunal was required to pass upon and determine. At the request of Your Excellency I appeared in the school book case in support of the law, with counsel for the contractors, and, as I am glad to say, the Supreme Court not only held the law constitutional, but also held that it was the duty of local school authorities to use the adopted books.

COLLECTIONS FROM CORPORATIONS.

The following is a section from an act passed by the General Assembly in 1877:

“When, by the laws of any other State, any taxes, fines, penalties, licenses, fees, deposits of money or securities, or other obligations or prohibitions are imposed upon insurance companies of this or other States, or their agents, greater than are required by the laws of this State, then the same obligations and prohibitions, of whatever kind, shall, in like manner for like purposes, be imposed upon all insurance companies of such States and their agents. All insurance companies of other Nations, under this section, shall be held as of the State where they have elected to make their deposit and establish their principal agency in the United States.”

Five suits against Pennsylvania insurance companies, based on the above statute, were brought by Attorney General Baldwin in 1881, and he associated with him as counsel Senator Turpie. The statute was held unconstitutional by the lower court, in the case of The Insurance Company of North America, and from thence forward the law remained, as it had theretofore been, a dead letter. The case mentioned was appealed to the Supreme Court, but was not decided until June, 1888, at which time that tribunal held the law constitutional. In the mean time a new question had intruded itself between the State and its claim—that is, as to whether the taxation act of 1881, which taxed foreign insurance companies, had not repealed the law of 1877 by implication, so that but three per cent. on net receipts could be collected, as required by the act of 1881, instead of such additional taxes as were levied by foreign States. All the companies had, of course, paid the three per cent. our taxation law required, and they held proper receipts therefor. At a conference between your Excellency, Senator Turpie and myself, as you will recall, it was determined that, in view of the uncertainty of the outcome of a litigation, the State had better take sixty per cent. of the amount that it claimed was due it over and above the three per cent. on net receipts already collected. After nearly a year of negotiations, with perhaps fifty companies, involving the writing and receipt of two hundred and more letters, and innumerable conferences with representatives of such companies, local and foreign, the following collections have been reported from the source mentioned:

Insurance Company of North America.....	$8,634 45
Penn Fire Insurance Company.....	2,765 34
Fire Association of Philadelphia.....	4,225 21
Girard Fire and Marine Insurance Company.....	898 17
Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company.....	2,491 32
Firemen's Insurance Company, of Ohio.....	119 85
Teutonia Fire and Marine Insurance Company.....	141 79
Ohio Farmers'.....	1,809 06
Northwestern National of Wisconsin.....	1,132 80
Milwaukee Mechanics' Insurance Company... ..	748 80
St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Company.....	251 42
American Fire of Pennsylvania.....	2,625 47
United Firemen	159 60

Provident Life and Trust	$544 08
German Fire Insurance Company	674 40
People's Fire Insurance Company	106 20
Reading Fire Insurance Company	6 60
Springgarden Fire Insurance Company	251 40
Franklin Fire Insurance Company	1,218 44
American Life Insurance Company	78 42
Farmers' Fire Insurance Company of York	1,676 29
Firemen's Insurance Company of New Jersey	48 44
Mechanics' Insurance Company of New Jersey	275 35
Newark Fire Insurance Company	78 00
American Fire Insurance Company	142 17
Mt. Holly Fire Insurance Company	107 05
Louisville Underwriters	665 19
Michigan Fire and Marine Insurance Company	7 55
Springfield Fire and Marine Insurance Company	2,175 31
City of London	144 41

The insurance companies are now generally complying with our reciprocal statute, but it is advisable to re-enact it, so that there may be no question about its being in force for the future.

The office has also collected from express, telegraph, telephone and sleeping-car corporations, on account of taxes due under certain acts of the General Assembly passed in 1889, the sum of $6,328.59, making a total of corporate taxes collected by this office, of $40,531.17. The collections made from the corporations last mentioned may be regarded as clear gain for the State, for it is little less than certain that all of the corporate taxation acts of 1889 are unconstitutional. I am of this opinion because three of those acts originated in the Senate and not in the House; they all purport to be amendments of void acts, and some of them are open to the objection that it is not clear that it is the domestic privilege, and not inter-State commerce, which is taxed. With reference to the express companies, it is proper to say that eminent counsel advised them that the law taxing them was unconstitutional. They professed a willingness, nevertheless, to pay a reasonable amount, but claimed that a tax of 2 per cent. on their gross receipts required them to maintain a disproportionate burden as compared with other corporations whose operating expenses were much less. On investigation I ascertained that 50 or 60 per cent. of express earnings are paid to railroad companies, and being impressed with the justice of the view advanced, and being desirous of realizing something, at least, for the State's claim, I offered, with the consent of your Excellency, to compromise the demand for 1 per cent. of the gross receipts, and to make a recommendation that a new bill be passed which should, so far as possible, place such corporations on an equality with other corporations. I make the recommendation suggested above, believing that express companies are now taxed more than other corporations.

THE BEAVER LAKE CASES.

The defendants in the Beaver Lake cases have all taken advantage of the compromise proposed by the last Legislature, and that protracted litigation is at an end.

CLAIMS AGAINST THE STATE.

Under the act of 1889, permitting suits to be brought against the State in the Marion Superior Court, nine suits have been brought. In more than half of these cases the State has been successful. The total amount of the judgments rendered against it is $5,084.65.

COETLOSQUET MANDATE CASES.

There is now pending in the general term of the Marion Superior Court a suit against the Auditor and Treasurer of State to compel them, respectively, to issue and pay a warrant for twenty thousand dollars. The demand is based on certain bonds issued under the Butler compromise acts of 1846 and 1847, and the principal contention is as to the State's liability for the interest on the bonds, which now amounts to $10,000. The court at special term decided that the State was liable for such interest. The case has been argued before, and awaits the determination of the full bench.

CRIMINAL CASES IN SUPREME COURT.

A large amount of work is done in this office in the briefing and arguing of criminal cases. The total number of appeals in these cases during the present term of this office is one hundred and ten. The number appealed by defendants, convicted in the courts below, is eighty-two. Of this number, forty-six have been affirmed, twenty-five reversed, and eleven are still pending.

The number of appeals taken by the State in criminal cases is twenty-eight. The appeals were sustained in sixteen cases and were not sustained in eight cases. Four State appeals are still pending.

The following is a tabulated statement of the criminal cases appealed to the Supreme Court:

CRIMINAL CASES IN THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

The case of Hockett v. State, appealed from the Indiana Supreme Court (105 Ind. 250) to the Supreme Court of the United States, has been dismissed. As the case of the State of Minnesota v. Barber involved the question as to the validity of a meat inspection law substantially like the one passed by our Legislature in 1889, I applied for and secured permission to file a brief in that case on behalf of this State, which I did, with the assistance of Messrs. McDonald, Butler and Snow. The Minnesota law was held invalid, and the ruling in that case probably determines the unconstitutionality of our own statute.

A RECOMMENDATION.

It has always been the policy of this State, as the Supreme Court has announced, to require the local communities to ferret out and punish their own offenders. The experience of the last four years with the class of criminals known as White Caps has shown that this policy must be reversed. I have, therefore, to recommend that a sufficient contingent appropriation be made to enable Your Excellency to employ detectives to ferret out these offenders and employ lawyers to assist in their prosecution.

CONCLUSION.

I wish at this time to express my sense of obligation to my assistant, John H. Gillett, and to my clerk, James D. Walker. Each has been industrious, obliging and efficient. Mr. Gillett is an excellent lawyer in every respect, and I know of no one who has so thorough a knowledge of the criminal law and practice.

Respectfully submitted.

LOUIS T. MICHENER,
Attorney General.

NOVEMBER 12, A. D. 1890.

Attorney-General Michener.

A boy over the age of eight years and under the age of sixteen years, at the time he was arraigned for trial, for a criminal offense, may be sent to the Reform School.

T. J. Charlton, Superintendent Indiana Reform School for Boys:

SIR—You ask as to the legality of a certain order of commitment under section 8 of an act passed on the 23d day of February, 1883, establishing the Indiana Reform School for Boys (Acts 1883, p. 19).

The order of commitment in question shows that a boy who was born on the 1st day of January, 1872, was brought before the Judge of the Pike Circuit Court on the 11th day of November, 1887, charged by indictment with the crime of petit larceny; that on said day the boy was tried and found guilty of the crime charged, but sentence was suspended during good behavior; that on the 14th day of November, 1888, the boy was again brought before said court, legally charged with certain other crimes; that the court found the latter charges proven, and thereupon passed sentence upon the original charge, and ordered the boy's commitment to the Reform School.

The action of the Court in suspending sentence, as above recited, was warranted by section 1767, R. S. 1881.

Section 8 of the act to which you refer me provides: "If any boy over the age of eight years and under the age of sixteen years be arraigned for trial in any court having criminal jurisdiction, on a charge of any violation of any criminal law of this State, the court or jury trying the same may commit said boy to this institution, instead of the jail of the county or State's prison."

To commit to the Reform School under the above section, it is necessary that the boy should be under the age of sixteen years at the time he is "arraigned for trial." A defendant is "arraigned" when the charge is read to him in open court and he is called upon to plead. In the case in hand this occurred, and a trial was had, on the 11th day of November, 1887, a time when the boy was under the age of sixteen years.

I deem it clear that the order of commitment which you have asked me to pass on is valid in respect to the possible objection pointed out.

The act of a trustee in listing in his school enumeration a person living in an adjoining township, town or city, desiring to be transferred for school purposes accomplishes the transfer of such person.

If the County Auditor omits to record the transfer on his duplicate, whereby the school corporation from which a person has been transferred receives the school taxes paid by such person, such corporation is liable for the amount thereof at the suit of the school corporation entitled thereto.

The County Auditor in such a case, if the school corporation receiving the money is solvent, is only liable for such expenses as are necessarily incurred, aside from taxable costs, in carrying on the suit for the recovery of the taxes paid.

Hon. Harvey M. LaFollette,
Superintendent Public Instruction:

SIR—You submit for my consideration the following letter from the Superintendent of Schools of Washington County:

"The incorporated town of Livonia, in this county, prior to the year 1885, failed to get the benefit of the special school and local tuition taxes of the transferred persons to said town. The transfers were properly made and were reported by the County Superintendent to the Auditor, but the Auditor made no record of the transfers on his tax duplicate, and the money was paid to Madison and Vernon townships, from which the transfers were made. Is either the Auditor or the townships which received the tax liable therefor to the town which should have received it?"

Under sections 4468 and 4473, R. S. 1881, it is clear that the act of the trustee of the adjoining township, town or city to which a person desires to be transferred, in listing such person in his school enumeration, accomplishes the transfer.

Assuming, then, that the transfer was made at the time the enumeration was taken, it is evident that the municipality which was entitled to the tax may recover it, either from the municipality which received it or, if it is not liable, from the Auditor who omitted to credit the tax as he should.

Is the corporation which received the tax liable for it? I think it is. It is under an implied promise to pay the amount which it improperly received, and assumpsit will therefore lie for its recovery.

In School Town, etc., v. Gebhart, 61 Ind. 187, 191, the court say: "It was once the law that a corporation could contract only by deed, under its corporate seal, but this is not the modern doctrine. The law is now well settled that corporations are bound by their parol or implied contracts, intra vires, and in the discharge of the duties wherewith they are charged, to the same extent as natural persons."

The current of modern authority on the subject of implied promises of municipal corporations to pay, is well represented by the following extract from the opinion of Field, C. J., in Argenti v. San Francisco, 16 Cal. 255: "The doctrine of implied municipal liability applies to cases where money or other property of a party is received under such circumstance that the general law, independent of express contract, imposes the obligation upon the city to do justice with respect to the same. If the city obtain money of another by mistake, or without authority of law, it is her duty to refund it—not from any contract entered into by her on the subject, but from the general obligation to do justice, which binds all persons, whether natural or artificial."

The precise question, in principle, which is here involved has been determined by the Supreme Court of Illinois in accordance with the conclusion before announced. I refer to the case of Board of Supervisors of Sangamon County v. City of Springfield, 63 Ill. 66. In that case the city brought suit against the county to recover the apportionment of taxes which it was entitled to under the determination of a Board established for that purpose, but which had been wrongfully appropriated by the county. The court say: "When the Legislature directs the application of the revenue on deposit in the treasury to a particular purpose, or its payment to any party, a duty is imposed, and an obligation created, upon the county. * * * In this case no special remedy has been given. By operation of the law, the taxes were paid into the treasury for the use of the city. It has a just and legal right to the proportion when ascertained; in justice the county ought not to retain it, and assumpsit will lie."

This is a plain case of money paid under mistake of fact. The townships which received the money are chargeable with notice of, and responsibility for, the act of the auditor. Under such circumstances, nothing can be more clear than that said townships are under an implied promise to repay the amount they received to the town which was entitled to it, and that an action may be maintained by such town against each of said townships upon its promise.

The Auditor is undoubtedly liable for his negligence, but he can not be held liable to fully compensate the town where both of the townships which received the money are solvent. Under the circumstances mentioned, I think that he would be liable for such expenses only as are necessarily incurred, aside from taxable costs, in carrying on the suits against the townships.

That the townships which received the benefit of the money should first respond for the amount thereof, and that the Auditor should make good any damage which otherwise directly results, are the natural equities and, as I believe, the law of the case.

Taxes dropped from the duplicate as uncollectible are a lien on property which the debtor subsequently acquires.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—You have put to me the following question:

"In a case where young men have been assessed year after year, and their taxes have been dropped from the duplicate on account of being uncollectible, and afterwards their father dies, leaving lands which they inherit, and the heirs, before the estate has been divided, convey their interest away, how is this dropped tax to be collected?"

In section 6513, R. S. 1881, it is provided that "all delinquencies which, in the judgment of the said Auditor and Treasurer, * * * there is no reasonable probability of being collected, shall be omitted from the current year's duplicate."

This section expressly authorizes the dropping or omitting of uncollectible taxes from the duplicate. The fact that the taxes, in the case you mention, were omitted from the duplicate in no manner affects their validity. Peckham v. Millikan, 99 Ind. 352, 356; Adams v. Davis, 109 Ind. 10, 13; Desty on Tax, 579.

As the omission of the taxes from the duplicate did not destroy or render them invalid, it necessarily follows that they will continue to exist as a valid charge against the tax debtor's property until paid, unless there is some statutory provision to the contrary. But it is provided by section 6446, R. S. 1881, that the tax lien shall be perpetual for all taxes which have heretofore accrued, or which shall hereafter accrue. The language of this section is so plain as not to stand in need of interpretation. So it is clear that this lien for the unpaid taxes attached to the real estate upon the death of the father, at which time the heirs became the owners of the land through inheritance, and this lien was not divested by the conveyance of the land by the heirs, for it is provided in section 6446, R. S. 1881, that "such lien shall in no wise be affected or destroyed by any sale of any such real estate." See also Cones v. Wilson, 14 Ind. 465; Bodertha v. Spencer, 40 Ind. 353; Isaacs v. Decker, 41 Ind. 410; Foresman v. Chase, 68 Ind. 500; Blodgett v. German Savings Bank, 69 Ind. 153; Rinard v. Nordyke, 76 Ind. 130.

I therefore advise you that proceedings should be had in this case, as in other cases, where the taxes due have not been paid.

A lease of lands for the purpose of drilling oil or gas wells, or for the purpose of piping oil or gas, is an incumbrance on such lands within the meaning of the statute concerning the loaning of school funds.

Hon. H. M. LaFollette, Superintendent of Public Instruction :

SIR—Would it be lawful for a County Auditor to loan school funds upon lands which have been leased to oil or gas companies, the lease containing provisions such as these: "The party of the first part, for the consideration of the covenant and agreements hereinafter mentioned, has granted, demised and let unto the parties of the second part, their heirs and assigns, for the purpose and with the exclusive right of drilling and operating for petroleum oil and gas all that certain tract of land bounded and described as follows, to-wit: (Description)—The parties of the second part, their heirs or assigns, to have and to hold said premises, for the said purposes, for and during the term of five years from the date hereof and as much longer as oil or gas is found in paying quantities. The said parties of the second part, in consideration of the said grant and demise, agree to give to the party of the first part the full equal one-eighth of all the petroleum oil obtained or produced on the premises herein leased, and to deliver the same in tanks or pipe lines to the credit of the party of the first part. It is further agreed that if gas is found in sufficient quantities to market same and be piped away from the premises to such market, the consideration in full to the party of the first part shall be — dollars per annum for each and every gas well drilled on the above described land. The party of the first part grants the further privilege to the party of the second part of using sufficient water from the premises herein leased, except wells upon said land necessary to the operation thereon, the right of way over and across said premises to the place of operating, together with the exclusive right to lay pipes to convey oil and gas, the right to remove any machinery or fixtures placed on said premises by them. And the party of the first part reserves to himself the right to use and enjoy said premises for the purpose of tillage, except such parts as may be necessary for the purpose above specified. No well to occupy more than one acre of land.”

By sections 4370 and 4375, R. S. 1881, the Auditor is required to loan school funds on unincumbered lands. Is a lease containing provisions such as those recited in your question, an incumbrance on the land so leased? On general principles every right to, or interest in lands, granted to the diminution of the value of the land, but consistent with the passing of the title, is deemed in law to be an incumbrance. Prescott v. Trueman, 4 Mass. 627; 1 Taylor on Landlord and Tenant, 8 ed., section 318; Wood on Landlord and Tenant, section 418. And so it is held that a lease of lands is an incumbrance thereon. Id. Rawle on Cov. for title, 5 ed., section 77; Bachelder v. Sturgis, 3 Cush. 201; Wagner v. Van Ostrand, 19 Iowa 422; Grice v. Scarbraugh, 2 Spears (S. C.) 649.

Our statute recognizes this rule by classifying leases for more than three years with the conveyance of real estate, which must be made by deed and recorded in the Recorder's office of the county where the lands are situated. Sections 2926, 2931, 2956, R. S. 1881.

I am of opinion that County Auditors can not lawfully loan moneys on lands covered by such leases.

A teacher of German in the public schools must possess a general license to teach.

Hon. Harvey M. LaFollette,

Superintendent of Public Instruction.

SIR—I have received from you the following question: "May a County Superintendent, upon request of the school board of a town or city, examine a candidate for the position of teacher of German in the graded schools of such town or city, in such a manner as will satisfy him that the candidate is qualified for such work, and issue to the said candidate a special license to teach the German language as a branch of study in the graded schools of a town or city; and may the trustees of said town or city remunerate a person holding such a license for performing the specific services thereby authorized, out of the common school revenue for tuition?"

Section 4497, R. S. 1881, directs that the common schools of the State shall be taught in the English language, and then provides that "whenever the parents or guardians of twenty-five or more children in attendance at any school of a township, town or city shall so demand, it shall be the duty of the school trustee or trustees of said township, town or city to procure efficient teachers, and introduce the German language as a branch of study into such schools." The language quoted clearly commands, upon the condition named, the introduction of the German language, as a branch of study, into such common schools, which language is to be taught by "efficient teachers."

In order to ascertain who are efficient teachers, we must consider section 4425, R. S. 1881, as amended by Acts 1883, p. 130.

So much of the act of 1883 as is material in the consideration of this question, is as follows: "Said County Superintendent shall examine all applicants for license as teachers for the common schools of the State by a series of written or printed questions, requiring answers in writing, and, in addition to the said questions and answers in writing, questions may be asked and answered orally, and if, from the ratio of correct answers and other evidences disclosed by the examination, the applicant is found to possess a knowledge of what is sufficient, in the estimation of the County Superintendent, to enable said applicant successfully to teach in the common schools of the State, orthography, reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, physiology, and history of the United States, and to govern such school, said County Superintendent shall license such applicant for the term of six months, twelve months, twenty-four months or thirty-six months, according to the ratio of correct answers and other evidences of qualification given upon said examination, the standard of which shall be fixed by the County Superintendent, and in examining persons for positions to teach in graded schools in cities and towns the County Superintendent may take into consideration the special fitness of such applicants to perform the services required of them, and shall make on the licenses issued to such applicants a statement of the kind of work for which they are especially qualified."

That portion of the statute which refers to teachers in graded schools in cities and towns was not in the original act and constitutes the only material change in it. The additional language thus incorporated into section 4425 gives to the County Superintendent the power to examine the applicant concerning his "special fitness to perform the services required" in teaching the German language, as a branch of study, in such schools. You will observe that this section also requires the County Superintendent to examine all applicants for license to ascertain whether such applicants possess a knowledge which is sufficient, in his estimation, to enable them successfully to teach in the common schools of the State, orthography, reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, physiology and history of the United States, and to govern a school. The applicant must possess all these qualifications, as well as the special fitness to teach the German language. Section 4497 was enacted in 1869, while the amendment of section 4425 was made in 1883. If it had been intended by the law-making power that applicants claiming special fitness for teaching the German language should not be required to possess the general qualifications above described, such intention would have been made manifest in the later enactment which provides the qualifications of "efficient teachers."

The public schools of the cities and towns are common schools of this State, and their teachers must have licenses from the County Superintendent. Hence it follows that those who teach in such schools in cities and towns must procure from the County Superintendent the ordinary license, and if they desire to teach the German language as a branch of study, they must be able to procure from him a statement made on the license so issued, showing the possession of a "special fitness" to teach that language. This is not to be a special license, but a special statement on a general license. Any other construction would render nugatory the greater portion of section 4425, and overturn the established rules of statutory construction.

By section 4501, R. S. 1881, school trustees are prohibited from employing a person to teach in any of the common schools of the State, unless he shall have a license to teach, issued by the proper authority, and in full force at the date of employment; and any teacher who commences teaching without such license forfeits all claim to compensation during the time he teaches without the license. This section makes it unlawful to employ or pay a teacher out of the school revenue for tuition who is not in possession of a lawful license. I therefore answer your questions in the negative.

The seventh and eighth items of section 6343, R. S. 1881, relating to the taxation of bank property, are constitutional.

The power of the Legislature to classify and determine the subjects of taxation considered.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—I acknowledge the receipt of the following question from you: "Are the seventh and eighth items of section 6343, R. S. 1881, constitutional? The question arises in this way:

Certain private bankers, in their statements made to the assessors for several years past, have deducted the aggregate amount of the seventh and eighth items from the aggregate amount of the fourth item of said section, but the County Treasurer claims that they had not the right to do so, and alleges as a reason that the seventh and eighth items are an infringement of article 10, section 1, of the constitution of the State, providing for the uniform and equal assessment of property for the purposes of taxation."

At the outset I desire to say that if the items mentioned in your question operate to create an invidious distinction in the assessment of certain kinds of property, it does not necessarily follow that the remedy therefor is to strike down the obnoxious provisions. It may be that if this discrimination was unwarranted, the only result would be that owners of other property whose share of the public burdens is increased by the omission from the duplicate of the property in question, might insist on a like exemption for themselves. I do not pass on this question, however, for no doubt exists in my mind as to the constitutionality of the statute you cite. The section under consideration relates to the taxation of bank property. It provides for furnishing to the assessor a statement, showing :

First. The amount of money on hand, other than United States Treasury notes, and the amount of money in transit.

Second. The amount of funds in the hands of other banks, bankers, brokers, or others, subject to draft.

Third. The value of checks or other cash items not included in any of the preceding items.

Fourth. The value of bills receivable, discounted or purchased, and other credits due or to become due, including accounts receivable, interest accrued but not due, and interest due and unpaid.

Fifth. The value of bonds and stocks of every kind, and the shares of capital stock and joint stock of other companies or corporations, held as an investment or in any way representing assets.

Sixth. All other property appertaining to said business, other than real estate (which real estate shall be listed and assessed as other real estate is listed and assessed under this act).

Seventh. The amount of all deposits made by other parties.

Eighth. The amount of all accounts payable, other than current deposit accounts.

Ninth. The amount of bonds or other securities exempt by law from taxation, specifying the amount and kind, with a particular description of each (being the same included in the preceding fifth item).

In the concluding part of the section there is the following direction: "The aggregate amount of the seventh and eighth items shall be deducted from the aggregate amount of the fourth item of said statement, and the amount of the remainder, if any, shall be listed as credits." The language quoted is clear and positive and its meaning is unmistakable. Is it in conflict with the section of the Constitution which you cite? That section is as follows:

"The General Assembly shall provide, by law, for a uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation, and shall prescribe such regulations as shall secure a just valuation for taxation of all property, both real and personal, excepting such only for municipal, educational, literary, scientific, religious or charitable purposes, as may be specially exempted by law." The commands of this section may be classified thus: 1. A uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation. 2. Such regulations as shall secure a just valuation for taxation of all property, both real and personal. 3. Certain exemptions, if specially exempted by law. The section of the statute we are considering does not profess to exempt any property, but to afford a standard of valuation in certain cases. The Legislature has the power to prescribe the mode and agencies by which the tax may be ascertained and enforced, and it is no objection that the methods prescribed are different for different classes of property. Mr. Desty lays down the doctrine in his work on taxation (pp. 93 and 94), that "the power to tax and the power of apportionment and classification are identical and inseparable, and the legislative determination as to the just proportion to be borne by the public, and the classification of subjects to be taxed, is conclusive, subject only to the constitutional principle that all of the same class shall bear equal burdens, and that the principle of uniformity be preserved." In the case of Kentucky Railroad Tax Cases, 115 U. S. 321, 337, the Court say: "But there is nothing in the Constitution of Kentucky that requires taxes to be levied by a uniform method upon all descriptions of property. The whole matter is left to the discretion of the legislative power, and there is nothing to forbid the classification of property for purposes of taxation, and the valuation of different classes by different methods. The rule of equality in respect to the subject only requires the same means and methods to be applied impartially to all the constituents of each class, so that the law shall operate equally and uniformly upon all persons in similar circumstances." The above authorities clearly uphold the right of classification, and they are cited for that reason. I am not called upon to, and do not, determine the power of the Legislature to grant general exemptions from taxation, except as provided for in the Constitution. Having vindicated by the authorities the abstract right of classification for the purposes of taxation, it remains to consider whether the legislation to which my attention has been directed contains any matters which are inherently objectionable. We may first look to the question whether it is essential to the validity of a taxation act that it should operate with such entire uniformity as to produce absolute equality. It is not, and for the very practical reason that no such perfect system of taxation can be devised. Although, in theory, tax laws should be so framed as to apportion the burdens of government, and require each person enjoying the protection of the government to contribute thereto such a proportion only of his means as his taxable property, on a reasonable classification, bears to the total of taxable property; yet it is manifest that there are serious and often insurmountable difficulties in the way of the accomplishment of this result. The solution of this problem must necessarily be left to the law-making power. It is only where taxation statutes are enacted which impose taxes on false and unjust principles, or operate to produce gross inequality, so that they can not be deemed in any sense proportional in their effect on those who bear the public charges, that officers or courts can interpose and arrest the course of legislation by declaring such enactments void or unconstitutional. See Cooley on Taxation, 164 to 169, and cases cited.

In discussing the provision of our Constitution which I have cited, it was said in L. & N. A. R. R. Co. v. The State ex rel. McCarty, Auditor, 25 Ind. 177: "But the Constitution does not require a uniform method of valuation of property, but only 'such regulations as shall secure a just valuation for taxation of all property, both real and personal.' The Legislature must use a discretion as to the best method of securing a just valuation of property, and unless the method adopted be clearly inadequate to secure that result, we can not question its action."

I do not think, however, that the statute in question is open to the slightest objection, for while section 6343 exempts the banker from the payment of taxes on deposits made by other parties, item one of the schedule prescribed in section 6336 expressly covers moneys on hand or on deposit within or without this State, subject to the order, check or draft of the individual depositor. In addition to this, it is expressly commanded by sections 6273, 6286 and 6330 that property of this description shall be assessed to the owner, who is necessarily the depositor.

To hold upon anything short of an express legislative command that the bank should also pay taxes on this property would be to violate the presumption against the purpose to impose duplicate taxation. See Cooley on Taxation, 227.

I am of opinion that section 6343 is constitutional in all its parts, and that it and the other sections cited furnish a just, uniform and equal rule of assessing and taxing such bank deposits.

The act of the General Assembly of 1889, relating to the loaning of school funds did not apply to loans outstanding at the time of the passage of such act.

Judgments rendered on school fund mortgages prior to the taking effect of the act mentioned, bear eight per cent. interest.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—I am in receipt of your request for a construction of an act of the General Assembly relating to the loaning of school funds, approved March 2, 1889.

Section 1 of the act mentioned reads as follows:

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana,
That the principal of all moneys, whether belonging to the Common School Fund or to the Congressional Township School Fund, received into the county treasury, shall be loaned at six per cent. per annum, payable annually in advance, and the interest paid out as prescribed by the school law of this State, and not otherwise; and any judgment upon any note or mortgage for any part of said funds shall bear six per cent. interest from the date thereof until the same is paid.

The second and third sections of the act mentioned, respectively, repeal prior conflicting laws and declare an emergency.

In the absence of any special indication or reason, a statute will not be applied retrospectively, even where there is no constitutional impediment. Bish. on written laws, sec. 84. The statute in question shows on its face that it was only intended to operate prospectively, for it has no application to outstanding loans, but relates solely to moneys belonging to the funds which shall be loaned. As is generally known, the larger portion of the counties of this State have been unable to loan at eight per cent. a considerable proportion of the school funds intrusted to them, and they have, therefore, been compelled to make up large sums due from them to the school revenue for tuition out of county revenues. In view of this fact, and the language used in the act, it is evident that the legislative purpose was to relieve the counties, and not to confer a benefit on individuals. Again, a portion of the funds to which the act applies—the Congressional Township School Fund—is held in trust by the State, through its counties, and it is not to be presumed, even if it be granted that there is no constitutional objection, that the State was so recreant in the management of its trust as to voluntarily relinquish two per cent. a year on valid outstanding loans of the funds. The repealing clause in section 2 of the act does not affect existing loans, for they draw interest by force of the contract. Having reached the conclusion that the statute does not apply to outstanding loans, it follows that such loans bear eight per cent. interest until paid.

By the terms of the form of school fund mortgage prescribed by section 4386, R. S. 1881, the mortgagor has the right to pay off the whole of the mortgage before maturity.

I will now consider the effect of the statute upon judgments. Although at common law judgments did not bear interest, yet it does not follow that such obligations draw interest by virtue of the statute in force when the interest accrued. A judgment is a contract or debt of record; the rights of the parties thereto, as evidenced by the record, together with the incidents which the law attaches, are fixed at the time of the rendition of the judgment. In Cox v. Marlett, 36 N. J. 389, S. C. 13 Am.

Rep. 454, the Court, after considering the principle above stated, lays down the doctrine that "changing the rate of interest does not affect existing contracts, or debts due prior to such enactment, whether they be evidenced by statute, by judgment, or by agreement of the parties." In full accord with the above case is the following opinion of a text writer of recognized authority: "A change in the statute fixing the rate of interest which judgments shall bear does not operate retrospectively, and can not affect pre-existing judgments." Freeman on Judgments, section 441.

It is unnecessary to inquire what provision the Legislature might have made as to the interest on school fund judgments, for the act in question is not retrospective. I therefore advise that judgments rendered prior to the enactment of the statute under consideration bear eight per cent. interest until paid.

However, as to judgments hereafter rendered on account of school fund loans, I am of opinion that such judgments bear only six per cent. interest, notwithstanding that the loan may have been made prior to the enactment of the present law.

The rendition of the judgment merges the prior debt, and the law in force at the date of the judgment fixes the rate of interest which it bears. Cox v. Marlett, supra Verre v. Hughes 6 Halst. 91.

An opinion as to the constitutionality of an act authorizing a State loan.

Hon. A. P. Hovey, Governor:

SIR—You ask me as to the constitutionality of an act passed by the late General Assembly, authorizing the negotiating of a loan to the State, approved March 11, 1889.

Section 5, article 10, of the Constitution is as follows: "No law shall authorize any debt to be contracted on behalf of the State, except in the following cases: To meet casual deficits in the revenue; to pay the interest on the State debt; to repel invasion, suppress insurrection, or, if hostilities be threatened, to provide for the public defense." This provision recognizes the fact, that there may lawfully exist casual deficits in the revenue of the State, and it creates an obligation to supply such deficiencies through the medium of loans. The act in question is based on the language "to meet casual deficits in the revenue."

The word "casual" is defined by Webster thus: "Occasional; coming at uncertain times, without regularity, in distinction from stated or regular; as casual expenses." From the same lexicographer we take the following definitions: "Deficit, (literally it is wanting.) Deficiency in amount or quality." One meaning of "deficient" (to be wanting) is: "Lacking a full or adequate supply; short; as deficient in means of carrying on war." The clause quoted was intended to give to the Legislature the right to exercise a sound discretion in providing by loans for meeting such deficits in the treasury.

If there had been a different purpose in the minds of those who framed and adopted the Constitution, it would have found expression in other language than that used. If it had been intended to limit the Legislature to a particular sum the necessary words of limitation would have been used. If it had been intended to limit the Legislature to the borrowing of such an amount of money as would provide for the ordinary contingent expenses of the Government until the next session of the General Assembly, we would find language of that import in the Constitution. If it had been intended that a law authorizing a loan should specify the object for which the money should be appropriated, such language would have been used. Such propositions were introduced in the convention which framed the Constitution, but the resolutions proposing them were all defeated. Debates 45, 52, 227, 652 to 665. Journal, 33, 50, 64, 138, 181, 274 to 278.

I now submit it is clear that it was not intended to put any limit upon the legislative power to provide for casual deficits. It is not necessary to go beyond the terms of the Constitution in seeking the intent of those who framed and adopted it. This intent is to be found in the instrument itself. That which we are to seek is the intent which the language of the Constitution expresses. As is well said in Newell v. People, 7 N. Y. 9, 97: "Whether we are considering an agreement between parties, a statute, or a Constitution, with a view to its interpretation, the thing which we are to seek is the thought which it expresses. To ascertain this, the first resort in all cases is to the natural signification of the words employed, in the order of grammatical arrangements in which the framers of the instrument have placed them. If, thus regarded, the words embody a definite meaning, which involves no absurdity and no contradiction between different parts of the same writing, then that meaning, apparent on the face of the instrument, is the one alone we are at liberty to say was intended to be conveyed. In such a case there is no room for construction. That which the words declare is the meaning of the instrument, and neither the courts nor the Legislature have a right to add to or take away from that meaning."

To the same effect is Cooley on Const. Lim. Side pp. 55-57.

The power to provide money with which to meet these casual deficits is given in general terms, thus giving the Legislature a wide field for the exercise of legislative discretion.

The power to meet "casual deficits" involves not only the power to meet existing casual deficits, but, also, to meet such deficits as may arise before the State can realize from its ordinary revenues. One of the purposes of the Constitution may have been to require the Legislature to provide beforehand for the payment of its usual obligations by the revenues derived from taxation. But if the Legislature miscalculates—and the very idea of "casual," meaning unexpected, unforeseen, implies that the Legislature may err—it may contract a valid indebtedness to meet such deficit. It may be that the Legislature has been guilty of neglect in failing in the past to provide an additional tax levy to meet the extraordinary expenses to which the State has been subjected, but there is no tribunal whose authority is so supreme that it may sit in judgment upon the legislative branch of government while acting within its constitutional jurisdiction. So, whether we consider the question as one of mixed law and fact, or simply one of fact, it follows that the Legislature alone has the power to determine it.

THE EXERCISE OF THE LEGISLATIVE POWER.

We may look to the history of the times in construing this enactment: Bishop on Written Laws, Sec. 75; Cooley on Const. Lim., side p. 55; Franklin v. State, 12 Md., p. 247.

In the case just cited, in speaking of historical facts, it was said: "To ignore them would be inevitably to superinduce one of two results, both of which, in their nature, are productive of great mischief, that is to say, to make it incumbent for the legislative body to set out, by way of preamble, a long detail of facts and reasons, with which the entire community are perfectly familiar, or to have their action frittered away by philological niceties, more noticeable for their ingenuity than their practical good sense."

But the current history is to be used in construing statutes, and not for the purpose of destroying them. We know from that history that the loan was not authorized to "repel invasion, suppress insurrection, or * * * provide for the public defense," and that it was authorized solely to meet a casual deficit in the revenue which actually existed then and still exists. These are settled facts, and they cover every clause of Sec. 3, Art. 10, except "to pay interest on the public debt," and that is provided for by Sec. 5586, R. S. 1881. So, when we apply the method of exclusion, and interpret this act in the light of the facts pleaded in the answer, we find that it only relates to "casual deficits," and authorizes a loan for no other purpose. It can not, in the nature of things, relate to anything else. As the act was passed to provide for "casual deficits," we are thus brought face to face with the question: Who shall determine whether or not such deficits do exist or will exist? Obviously, the determination of that question is left solely and exclusively to the law-making power. When once decided by that body, no other body or tribunal can dispute the correctness of the decision—not even if the decision should appear to be flagrantly wrong, for the power to decide includes the power to decide wrong as well as right.

Before this bill could lawfully pass, it was incumbent on the Legislature to decide that the deficiency already existed or would necessarily exist, and, the bill having passed, the courts will assume that the legislative discretion had been properly exercised. If evidence was required, it must be supposed that such evidence was before the Legislature when the act was passed; and if any finding of fact was required to warrant the passage of the act, it is held that the passage of the act is equivalent to such finding. Cooley on Constitutional Limitations, star, p. 187; 3 Am. and Eng. Encyclo. of Law, 684.

In Goddin v. Crump, 8 Leigh (Va.), p. 154, Tucker, J., said: "The power of the judiciary to decide on the constitutionality of a law is too firmly settled to be now questioned. It is equally clear to my mind that if the Legislature have power to act, the judiciary can not control the manner of its exercise."

In United States v. Williams, 5 McLean, 133, it was attempted to set up as an offset, the incomplete procedure of the commissioner, by which the amount of damage done appeared to be larger than the allowance afterwards made by act of Congress. In passing on this question, the Court said:

“The action of Congress is conclusive on the subject. No imperfect procedure, by the officers of the Government, can modify or effect that allowance. Without such action, the claim was unliquidated, and could not be admitted as an offset in a suit by the Government, or between individuals. If the act of 1846 has not done full justice to the defendant, his only remedy is by another application to Congress for higher compensation. The judicial power can not revise the action of Congress in this respect.”

In the case of The People v. N. Y. Cent. R. R. Co., 34 Barb. 123, it was urged in the argument that it was obligatory upon the Legislature to keep the canal tolls at the highest revenue standard. In passing on this question, the Court, on p. 137, said: “What is to be the measure of the highest revenue standard, and who is to apply it? Leaving out of the case the alleged obligation to raise an amount necessary to meet the payment of the sinking funds, because that is not involved in the present issue, it is very clear, at least to our minds, that the whole subject of the regulation of the tolls belongs to legislative discretion. This discretion must involve the complete control of the subject. It must include the right to modify, to increase, to diminish, or to abolish any class of charges. It is for the Legislature and not for the courts to fix a tariff of tolls, to determine what articles may be transported free of toll, and what shall be charged upon others; what avenues of transportation shall be open at law, and what shall require heavy charges for their use, and whether the interests of the State require that freight shall be allowed to pass without charge over any of its public works, either those owned by the State or those competing with them. In the exercise of this discretion, the Legislature can consider all the interests of the State, commercial as well as financial, and in any particular statute or ordinance we are bound to presume that they have acted upon such consideration.”

In People v. N. Y. Cent. R. R. Co., 34 Barb., on p. 138, it is said: “I am not prepared to declare an act of the Legislature void because it is in conflict with what I may be led to suppose is the intent or the spirit of the Constitution. Such a doctrine would be more dangerous than the most latitudinarian construction of express grants of power. The language of an express power, or an express prohibition, in a constitutional instrument is comparatively plain, and presents a narrow question. Nor does it widen the field of discussion very much to consider what powers are absolutely necessary to execute any express duty enjoined or authority conferred upon the Legislature. But to permit the courts to control and annul legislative action, according to their speculations upon the spirit or the intent of the Constitution, would be at variance with all sound, not to say strict, principles of construction, and would invest judicial tribunals with new and dangerous powers."

In People v. Laurence, 36 Barb., on p. 193, it is said: "The theory of this act is, that the removal of the tunnel and of the use of locomotives from Atlantic street would be a benefit to the adjacent property, and that the expense of restoring the street to its grade, and the loss to the railroad company in discontinuing running their trains by steam to the foot of the street, should be paid by the owners of such adjacent property. The courts have nothing to do with the correctness or incorrectness of this legislative opinion, and must assume the fact to be as the Legislature assume or declare it."

In State v. Noyes, 47 Maine, 189, one of the questions was concerning the power of the Legislature to grant a charter to a certain railroad company. Tenney, C. J., on p. 204, said: "It is not doubted that, in granting the charter of the Penobscot and Kennebec Railroad Company the Legislature had in view public improvement and benefit. It was upon this ground alone that the company was allowed to take private property in the construction of the road, on paying a just compensation. Without such adjudication by the Legislature, that the road was supposed to be what public necessity and convenience required, made in some mode, express or implied, no basis would exist for such provisions. And this judgment touching the question, which must have been presented to the Legislature, was conclusive."

In Lusher v. Seites, 4 W. Va., p. 11-14, the power of the Legislature to create new counties was considered. Under the Constitution of that State it was necessary that five different facts should be made to appear before the Legislature could rightfully exercise its power. The Court said: "Not only does the subject making new counties belong to the Legislature, but it belongs to no other department of the government. To exercise the power, the Legislature must inform itself of the existence of the facts prerequisite to enable it to act on the subject. How it shall do so, and on what evidence, the Legislature alone must determine; and when so determined, it must conclude further enquiry by all other departments of the government; and the final action terminating in an act of legislation, in due form, must of necessity presuppose and determine all the facts prerequisite to the enactment; and that, too, as fully and effectually as a final judgment of a competent judicial tribunal of general jurisdiction would do in like case."

In the case of DeCamp v. Eveland, 19 Barb., on page 89, it is said: "The Legislature is not restrained, directed or limited in regard to the nature, grade or character of evidence which they must have as the basis of their action, or to guide them in their decisions. In some specified cases their power is limited, and in others conditional, depending upon the existence of certain facts. But they must necessarily decide whether such facts exist. Their general power to prescribe and regulate evidence for every other tribunal in the State, has never been questioned, and it would present a singular anomaly if they were wanting in power to do the same for themselves, or to alter and change the same at pleasure; and it would be equally strange if any judicial tribunal in the State were permitted to review their decision upon the question of facts, on the existence of which their power to legislate in any particular case is made to depend. If such a thing were to be tolerated, it is not perceived why the existence of the fact in question may not, and in many cases must not, be proper to be submitted to a jury. It is believed that but few would be bold enough to contend for a principle pregnant with such absurd results. In the present case it is contended that the Legislature have assumed the existence of the fact, in reference to the population, without evidence. But this does not appear, and it is not to be presumed. On the contrary, we are bound to presume they acted upon good and sufficient evidence; and this presumption, from the nature of the case, must be conclusive. That we are not in possession of the facts or the evidence of them, which the Legislature had, amounts to nothing in the argument. It is rare, if ever, that a statute contains a recital of them, and it is not necessary in any case."

In Bull v. Read, 13 Grattan 78, it was held that the Legislature of Virginia had the right to pass a law and provide that it should not be carried into effect in a district until the people, by a vote, had approved it. Among other things, the Court, on p. 98, said: "As to the wisdom and expediency of this kind of legislation, this is not the place to express an opinion. To say that it is liable to be abused is but to affirm what is equally true of every mode of legislation. Whilst there may be occasions on which it may be adopted with advantage to the public interest, it may also be resorted to upon others to enable the representative to escape from his just responsibilities. Yet, however profoundly impressed the judicial mind may be in any given instance with its impropriety and inexpediency, it will not do to say that for that cause the law may be set aside. This would but be for the judiciary to set itself up as a revisory body upon the acts of the General Assembly, and would be a plain usurpation upon the powers conferred upon that body. Unlike a question of constitutionality proper, which must depend upon fixed principles, this would fluctuate with the varying views of different minds. What one judge might deem most unwise and dangerous, another might think highly proper and beneficial. How great soever the evil may be, the security against it must be sought in the wisdom and integrity of the legislative body, or failing these, the corrective will be found in the virtue and intelligence of the people."

But we are not without authority in our own State. By sections 22 and 23, art. iv, of our Constitution, the General Assembly is denied the power to pass special laws, except where a general law can not be made applicable. The effect of these sections has been frequently considered by the Supreme Court.

In Gentile v. The State, 29 Ind., on page 412, it is said: "As the General Assembly, then, have the power to pass local laws where general ones can not be made applicable, and as the Constitution does not declare, except in the cases enumerated in section 22, in what particular cases general laws can be made applicable, or designate the proper subjects of local legislation, who is to determine when a law may be local, or when a general law can be properly applied to the particular subject?"

Most unquestionably those who make the law are necessarily required, in its enactment, to judge and determine, from the nature of the subject, and the facts relating to it, whether it could properly be made general, and of uniform operation throughout the State. If a local law be enacted on a subject not enumerated in section 22, we must presume that, in the opinion and judgment of the Legislature, a general law on the given subject could not be made applicable. Is the determination and judgment of the Legislature in such cases conclusive, or is it subject to review and reversal by the courts? The latter proposition was decided in the affirmative in the case of Thomas v. The Board of Commissioners of Clay County, 5 Ind. 4, in which it was held that 'An act to authorize the re-location of the seat of justice of the County of Clay,' was in violation of the provision of the Constitution now under discussion, and was therefore void. The correctness of that ruling may be seriously doubted. The reasoning upon which it is based is regarded as unsound, and does not, therefore, support the conclusion reached. It is there said that if the courts can not review the judgment of the Legislature in such cases, 'the twenty-third section has no validity, nor is there any reason why it should have a place in the Constitution. It would impose no restriction upon the action of the Legislature, nor confer any power which that body would not possess in the absence of such a provision.' The object of the provision was not to confer any power on the Legislature, but to restrain that body in the exercise of an inherent power of sovereignty, which, in the absence of such a restriction, it would possess. But the restriction is not specific as to the particular cases to which it applies, and hence it requires the exercise of legislative judgment in determining the question of its application in each case as it may arise. It is nevertheless a restriction, binding upon the conscience of every member of the body, the application of which must be judged of and determined as cases are presented, under the oath (which all the members are required to take before entering upon their duties) to support the Constitution of the State, and it can not be presumed that the members of that body would willfully disregard either the restriction or their obligations to support it, in the enactment of laws. It is, therefore, an error to say that the restriction is of no validity unless the correctness of the legislative judgment is subject to revision by the courts. It is further said in that case that 'if that section permits the Legislature to enact a special or local law ad libitum, in any case not enumerated, the principle involved would deprive this Court of all authority to call into question the correctness of a legislative construction of its own powers under the Constitution.' But that provision does not involve any question of the power of the Legislature to enact a law on any particular subject. It only involves the question of fact whether the subject of the act is such that a general law could be made applicable. It is a question which, as said before, the Legislature must of necessity determine; and it may be pertinently asked, what possible benefit could arise from the power of the courts to call in question the correctness of such legislative decisions? We are far from claiming that the Legislature is omnipotent, but, on the other hand, we are not sure that the superior wisdom of the courts would, in such cases, enable them to judge more accurately than the Legislature. The question is one which, in its very nature, peculiarly addresses itself to the legislative judgment, and if a local law be enacted, the reasons upon which the Legislature adjudged that a general law could not be made applicable, however satisfactory they may appear to the members of that body, may not appear on the face of the law, and the courts are left in ignorance of them, and if permitted to review the legislative decision, must act upon such reasons and facts as may suggest themselves to the mind; and thus the Legislature and courts would be liable to be brought into frequent conflict, to no beneficial purpose."

This case has been cited and approved in Longworth v. Common Council, 32 Ind. 322; State ex rel. v. Tucker, 46 Ind. 355; Vickery v. Chase, 50 Ind. 461; Kelley v. State ex rel., 92 Ind. 236; Johnson v. Board, 107 Ind. 15; Wiley v. The Corporation of Bluffton, 111 Ind. 152, and many other cases.

It seems to me that the doctrine thus established is conclusive of the question under consideration, for the principles involved are the same.

In the separate opinion of Elliott, C. J., in Robertson v. State ex rel. Smith, 109 Ind. 79 (and so far as quoted the dissenting opinion of Mitchell, J., is in full accord with it. See pp. 92 and 93 of the report), it is said: "It is a settled principle that where jurisdiction of a subject is conferred upon any tribunal, it has jurisdiction of every part of it, and of every question of law or of fact that can possibly arise from the beginning to the end of the controversy. Once jurisdiction attaches, it exists for all purposes. All questions are within the authority of the tribunal, and no other tribunal in the world has a right to interfere with its decision except where there is a right of review or appeal. The rule rests on a solid foundation, for, if one tribunal might decide one point of a controversy, another some other point, there would be a hopeless confusion that no power could clear away, and a disastrous conflict that no tribunal could reconcile." To the same effect are Gentile v. State, 29 Ind. 409, and Smith v. Myers, 109 Ind. 1.

In Oregon there is the following constitutional provision : "Whenever the expense of any fiscal year shall exceed the income, the legislative assembly shall provide for levying a tax for the ensuing fiscal year sufficient, with other sources of income, to pay the deficiency as well as the estimated expense of the ensuing fiscal year."

In Burch v. Earhart, 7 Oregon 58, the facts were that a certain sum of money was appropriated to the appellant, as the Superintendent of the State Prison. The Secretary of State, as auditor of public accounts, refused to issue a warrant for the claim on the ground that it was an expense in excess of the income of the State for the preceding fiscal year, and that it could only be paid by the levy of a special tax for that purpose, notwithstanding the revenues arising from taxation and other sources of income would be sufficient to pay that deficiency, as well as the estimated expenses for the fiscal year in which the action was determined. The appellant sued out a writ of mandate against the appellee to compel the issuing of a warrant for his claim. The Supreme Court, after holding that it was not the duty of the Legislature to levy an additional tax except when the income from taxes and all other sources should not be sufficient to pay all the expenses of the State administration, and pay, in addition, all the deficiencies of the previous fiscal year, say : "On the contrary, we hold that the legislative assembly is required to levy an additional tax to pay deficiencies only when all other sources of income are insufficient to pay them and the other appropriations for the current fiscal term of two years; and whether these sources of income were sufficient for that purpose or not was a question for the legislative assembly, and for it alone, to determine."

Vanderheyden v. Young, 11 John 150, was an action in trespass for assault and battery and false imprisonment. The defendant sought to justify as a State militia officer, acting under the authority of the United States by virtue of the order of the President. It was objected that the plea was insufficient, because it was not alleged that the United States were invaded, or in imminent danger of invasion, or that the laws of the United States were opposed, or the execution thereof obstructed, those circumstances alone authorizing the President to call out the State militia; but the court held that these matters need not be pleaded, because no issue could be taken upon them, the action of the President being conclusive.

In Martin v. Mott, 12 Wheat. 19, the legal question presented was practically the same as in Vanderheyden v. Young, supra. Story J., in pronouncing the opinion of the court, said: "The power thus confided by Congress to the President, is, doubtless, of a very high and delicate nature. A free people are naturally jealous of the exercise of military power; and the power to call the militia into actual service, is certainly felt to be one of no ordinary magnitude. But it is not a power which can be executed without a correspondent responsibility. It is, in its terms, a limited power, confined to cases of actual invasion, or of imminent danger of invasion. If it be a limited power, the question arises, by whom is the exigency to be judged of and decided? Is the President the sole and exclusive judge whether the exigency has arisen, or is it to be considered as an open question, upon which every officer to whom the orders of the President are addressed, may decide for himself, and equally open to be contested by every military man who shall refuse to obey the orders of the President? We are all of opinion, that the authority to decide whether the exigency has arisen, belongs exclusively to the President, and that his decision is conclusive upon all other persons."

To the same effect is Luther v. Borden, 7 How. 44.

For a court to attempt to review the action of the General Assembly in enacting the statute in question, would be as unwarranted an invasion of the province of another co-ordinate department of government as it would be if the Legislature should grant a litigant a new trial. To hold otherwise is to decide that the act in question may be overthrown by the verdict of a jury, despite the restrictions of Article III of our Constitution. The legislative power is vested in the General Assembly and not in the courts. The protection against unwise or oppressive legislation, within constitutional bounds is by an appeal to the justice and patriotism of the representatives of the people. If this fails, the people in their sovereign capacity can correct the evil; but courts can not assume their rights. Cooley Const. Lim. side pp. 168, 183, and cases cited.

Says Perkins, J., in M. & I. R. R. Co. v. Whiteneck, 8 Ind., on p. 222: "The legislative power in this State, where the Constitution imposes no limits, must be practically absolute, whether it operates according to natural justice, or not, in any particular case; for when a law is created by the Legislature, the executive must enforce it, and is vested with control of the military power of the State to enable him to do it; and, aside from the physical power of the united people of the State, there is no power to arrest the execution except the judiciary, and that department can only do it when the law conflicts with the Constitution. It can not run a race of opinions upon points of right, reason and expediency with the law-making power. Herman v. The State, 4 Am. L. Reg. 344; Beebe v. The State, 6 Ind. 501." To the same effect are Eastman v. The State, 109 Ind. 278; Heddrick v. The State, 101 Ind. 564; Robinson v. Rippey, 111 Ind. 112, 114.

The Legislature found it right, reasonable and expedient to pass this act, and this court has no power to review that decision.

THE POLITICAL QUESTION.

The next proposition that I desire to advance is that the act in question is an exercise of political power, and the authority to control it is, therefore, beyond the province of the judiciary. Not only does the grant of power to the courts authorize them to exercise judicial powers alone, but Article III, of our Constitution, places an absolute inhibition upon their dealings with questions not judicial. If, therefore, a question presented at the bar of a court is a political and not a judicial one, it is the plain duty of the court to refuse to pass upon it, even where it is claimed that the Constitution has been violated by one of the other departments of the government.

“In measures exclusively of a political, legislative or executive character, it is plain, that, as the supreme authority as to these questions belongs to the legislative and executive departments, they can not be re-examined elsewhere. Thus Congress, having the power to declare war, to levy taxes, to appropriate money, to regulate intercourse and commerce with foreign nations, their mode of executing these powers can never become the subject of re-examination in any other tribunal. So the power to make treaties, being confined to the President and Senate, when a treaty is properly ratified, it becomes the law of the land, and no other tribunal can gainsay its stipulations. Yet cases may readily be imagined in which a tax may be laid, or a treaty made upon motives and grounds wholly beside the intention of the Constitution. The remedy, however, in such cases is solely by an appeal to the people at the elections, or by the salutary power of amendment provided by the Constitution itself.” Story’s Com. on the Const., sec. 374. (Quoted from 1 Bryce Am. Com. 265.)

In State of Mississippi v. Johnson, President, 4 Wall. 475, a motion was made on behalf of the State of Mississippi for leave to file a bill praying the Supreme Court to perpetually enjoin Andrew Johnson, the President of the United States, or if the injunction could not go against him as President, then against him individually as a citizen of Tennessee, from enforcing the acts commonly called the “Reconstruction Acts.” Chief Justice Chase, in pronouncing the opinion of the court, says: “An attempt on the part of the judicial department of the government to enforce the performance of such duties by the President might be justly characterized, in the language of Chief Justice Marshall, as ‘absurd and excessive extravagance.’ It is true that in the instance before us the interposition of the court is not sought to enforce action by the executive under constitutional legislation, but to restrain such action under legislation alleged to be unconstitutional. But we are unable to perceive that this circumstance takes the case out of the general principles which forbid judicial interference with the exercise of executive discretion.”

In State of Georgia v. Stanton, 6 Wall. 50, a bill was filed in the Supreme Court of the United States asking that Stanton, Secretary of War; Grant as General of the Army, and Pope, as Major-General in command of certain States, be enjoined from enforcing the "Reconstruction Acts," on the ground that the acts were unconstitutional, but the court dismissed the bill for want of jurisdiction. In the course of the opinion the court said: "The judicial power is vested in one Supreme Court and in such inferior courts as Congress may ordain and establish; the political power of the government is in the other two departments. The distinction between judicial and political power is so generally acknowledged in the jurisprudence both of England and of this country, that we need do no more than refer to some of the authorities on the subject. They are all in one direction. * * * The jurisdiction conferred on the Supreme Court by the Constitution extends only to rights of persons or property, and not to injunction against the exercise of political power." The same doctrine is thus stated by Cooley, in his work on the principles of constitutional law, p. 138: "Over political questions the courts have no authority, but must accept the determination of the political departments of the government as conclusive." Speaking of the want of authority in the Supreme Court of the United States to interpret the Federal Constitution, where the question before it is a political one, it is said in 1 Hare's Am. Const. L., 124: "Admirable as is the adjustment which renders the Supreme Court the interpreter of the Constitution, it does not from the nature of things cover the entire ground; and there are cases where Congress are the sole judges of the nature and extent of their powers, and an appeal can not be had to the judiciary."

To those who, from a superficial consideration, regard the doctrine of the above authorities as dangerous and likely to result in the destruction of all constitutional limitations, I say, in the language of Frazer, J., in Brown v. Buzan, 24 Ind. 194, 197, that their conclusion results "from a failure to comprehend the character of our forms of government, and the fundamental basis upon which they rest." In the nature of things, each department of the government must be the repository of some unlimited powers; if each was not within its own proper sphere supreme they could not be co-ordinate, for any other construction would result in the subordination of one or two of the departments. It is true that we have a government of checks and balances, but after applying every check which the machinery of government will bear and continue to operate, it will be found that there is a considerable residuum of absolute power which must be distributed and lodged in the different departments. Again, it does not follow that because the courts are assigned the general duty of interpreting the Constitution that they can better be intrusted with all of these absolute powers. Indeed, there is one absolute power—the political power—which in our National and State constitutions has always been intrusted to a department much nearer to the people than the courts, with a view of relying upon the people rather than the courts to correct any abuse of it. This department in our State government is the legislative. In Brown v. Buzan, supra, the court say: “The Legislature is peculiarly under the control of the popular will. It is liable to be changed at short intervals, by elections. Its errors can, therefore, be quickly cured. The courts are more remote from the reach of the people. If we, by following our doubts, in the absence of clear convictions, shall abridge the just authority of the Legislature, there is no remedy for six years. Thus, to whatever extent this court might err in denying the rightful authority of the law-making department, we would chain that authority for a long period at our feet. It is better and safer, therefore, that the judiciary, if err it must, should not err in that direction. If either department of the government may slightly overstep the limits of its constitutional powers, it should be that one whose official life shall soonest end. It has the least motive to usurp power not given, and the people can sooner relieve themselves of its mistakes.” In the same case it is said: “Then, too, the judiciary ought to accord to the Legislature as much purity of purpose as it would claim for itself—as honest a desire to obey the Constitution, and, also, a high capacity to judge of its meaning.” In Robertson v. State ex rel. Smith, 109 Ind. 79, 124, Elliott, C. J., in his separate opinion said: “The grant of power to the Legislature can not be defeated upon the presumption that it will not be justly exercised. On the contrary, it is the duty of the judiciary to assume that legislators will faithfully and impartially perform the duty imposed upon them by the Constitution they have solemnly sworn to support. Courts must accord to the Legislature the same solemn sense of duty, and the same conscientious resolution to perform it, unmoved by improper motives, that they can claim for themselves.”

Having shown that the judiciary are cut off from the consideration of questions of political power, and having sought to vindicate that policy, the inquiry narrows to the questions, what is political power? and is the statute in question an exercise of it?

The term is thus defined in People ex rel. v. Morgan, 90 Ill. 558, 562: "Political power is the policy of government or its administration, and may be exercised in the formation or administration of government, or both." So it is said in Rhode Island v. Massachusetts, 12. Pet. 657, 787: "These considerations lead to the definitions of political and judicial power; the former is that which a sovereign or State exerts by his or its own authority, as reprisal and confiscation; the latter is that which is granted to a court or judicial tribunal."

In the light of the above authorities and definitions there can be no doubt that in levying taxes, expending revenues, and providing for deficits in the revenues, the Legislature exercises political powers. This latter proposition closes the door to all controversy, respecting the validity of the act in question. It is a matter of much satisfaction to me, however, that I have been able to fortify the doctrines here grouped together by some cases directly in point.

I refer to Franklin v. Board, 23 Cal. 173, and People v. Pacheco, 27 Cal. 175.

In Franklin v. Board, supra, an action in mandamus was brought by the appellant to compel the State Board of Examiners to allow and audit his claim to bounty under an act of the Legislature providing for such allowances. The Constitution of the State contained the following limitation: "The Legislature shall not in any manner create any debt or debts, liability or liabilities, which shall singly or in the aggregate with any previous debts or liabilities, exceed the sum of $300,000, except in case of war, to repel invasion or suppress insurrection," etc. The act in question provided for the creation of a debt which might amount to $600,000; and it was admitted that the indebtedness of the State, at the time of the passage of the law greatly exceeded the constitutional limit of $300,000. It is stated in the opinion, that, in arguing the question presented, it was insisted on the one hand that the power of the Legislature to create debts was unlimited only in cases where war actually existed in the State or where there was an invasion or threatened invasion of the State. On the other hand, it was argued that where a war or insurrection exists in any part of the United States, or there is an invasion or threatened invasion of any territory within the national jurisdiction, that it is then competent for the Legislature to authorize the creation of a debt for the purposes indicated in the exception to the constitutional provision quoted. But the court disposes of this contention, and of the case, as follows: "We do not deem it necessary to investigate this question, or to attempt to give an exact or definite construction of the terms thus used in the Constitution. The evident intention was to impose limitations upon the general power of the Legislature to create debts, leaving them free, however, from such restrictions in great emergencies caused by a war, an invasion, or an insurrection. In such cases the Legislature should be left free to exercise their judgment and discretion upon the subject, answerable alone to the people for any abuse of the power. The existence of the emergency calling for the exercise of the power is purely a political question, and the Legislature, as the body in whom the political power of the State is vested, are the sole judges as to the existence of such emergency. It is the exercise of a purely political power, upon a political subject, in no manner of a judicial character, and it is not, therefore, subject to review, or liable to be controlled by the judicial department of the State. The Legislature is, therefore, the proper judge of the construction to be given to the Constitution upon this subject."

In People v. Pacheco, supra, it was sought to enjoin a railway company from enforcing or seeking to enforce the collection of certain bonds issued to it by the State as a bonus for the construction of a so-called Military Railroad. It was contended that the bonds were invalid because the Legislature, under the constitutional provision before quoted, could only create a debt when there was war in the State, or an invasion or threatened invasion thereof, and that the Court knew judicially that such a state of facts did not exist. It was also contended that the bonds were invalid because an indebtedness could be created for war only, while in that case it was incurred for peace as well as for war purposes. The Court disposes of the case by asserting that it is for the Legislature to determine when the contingency has arisen which authorizes it to create a debt, and that it was for that body, and not for the courts, to provide the ways and means of suppressing insurrection or repelling invasion. "If this power is exercised improvidently or unwisely, the individual members of those departments are responsible therefor to their constituents. But when the political departments of the government have determined that the emergency has arisen, and acted upon that determination, that action is conclusive, and not subject to be reviewed by the courts."

In Cass Township v. Dillon, 16 O. St. 38, 41, it is said: "The decision of the question as to whether a state of facts existed which created an exigency for the defense of the State, is necessarily vested in, and left to the wisdom and discretion of, the political department of the government; and the existence of the exigency having been decided by that department, it is not within the province of the judiciary to review that decision. If, for example, the Legislature had authorized the State directly to aid in raising troops called for by the President, and to this end, had offered the bounties in question, and provided for their payment by taxation, it would not be within the province of the Court to question the validity of the law, either upon the ground that no necessity existed for the defense of the State, or that the mode of defense adopted was not legitimate."

THE LEGISLATIVE CONSTRUCTION.

Three times has the legislative department spoken on the fundamental question here involved. Sec. 1, Acts 1873, p. 177, is as follows:

"SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, That for the purpose of carrying on the government, if it shall become necessary, to meet the appropriation for the present fiscal year, it shall be lawful for the Governor, Auditor and Treasurer of State to make temporary loans to meet such appropriations, to be repaid out of the funds appropriated at the present session of this General Assembly for the purpose aforesaid, when they shall be paid into the Treasury."

This act was approved March 10, 1873. It will be observed that there is no recital of a "casual deficit" to be found in any part of the act. In the court below it was said that Governor Hendricks, although he approved the act alluded to, doubted its constitutionality, refused to make the loan, and took possession of the State sinking fund and used it to supply the "casual deficit." Counsel for the parties who have bid on the State bonds ignore the fact that by the act of December 13, 1872 (Acts 1872, p. 27; R. S. 1881, sec. 6248, et seq.), the State debt sinking fund, on the first day of February, 1873, merged in and became a part of the general fund in the State Treasury. (Sec. 6250, R. S. 1881.) The fact is, however, that Gov. Hendricks did negotiate three loans under the act of 1873, amounting to $910,000.

Section 1, acts 1885, p. 24, is as follows :

“SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, That, for the purpose of carrying on the State government, if it shall be necessary to meet the appropriations made by this General Assembly, it shall be lawful for the Governor, Auditor and Treasurer of State to make a temporary loan of six hundred thousand dollars to meet such appropriations.

“For the purpose of borrowing said sums of money, with which to pay such appropriations, the Governor, Auditor and Treasurer of State may issue and sell the bonds of the State, redeemable at the pleasure of the State, after five years, and payable in ten years from the date thereof, bearing interest at a rate not exceeding four per centum per annum, payable semi-annually out of funds in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated. Said bonds shall not be sold for less than par value, and shall be signed, on the part of the State, by the Governor, Auditor and Treasurer of State, and proper record of the same kept in the offices of said officers.”

It will be observed that there is no recital in this act.

It is evident that the act of 1889 was copied almost literally from the act of 1885. By virtue of the act of 1885 large sums of money had been borrowed by the State, and this fact was shown to the last Legislature by the report of the Auditor of State and the message of the Governor, as set forth in the answer. With these facts before the General Assembly, and with a legislative precedent dating back to 1873, when the law was approved by Gov. Thomas A. Hendricks, an able lawyer and a member of the Constitutional Convention; and another dated in 1885, approved by Gov. Isaac P. Gray, it is not to be wondered that the last General Assembly did not question the right to pass the law now before the court.

This uniform and long acquiesced in legislative interpretation is entitled to great weight, and especially in view of the fact that to hold this legislation unconstitutional is to force repudiation upon the State.

IV.

THE DEPARTMENTAL INTERPRETATION.

In State ex rel. Michener v. Harrison, 116 Ind. 300, it is held that the practical construction given to a statute by the officers of State, and acted upon by the people, is entitled to weight, and especially when, "in that construction, practice and usage of the administrative department, the other departments have also acquiesced, although several sessions of the Legislature have intervened, or at least no objection has been made in any quarter until this action was commenced." See numerous authorities there cited. The officers of State construed the act of 1873 as constitutional, and made three loans by virtue thereof. The Auditor of State has furnished the following statement of such loans:

1. Issued under authority act March 10, 1873, acts 1873, p. 177, dated March 12, 1873, bear- ing eight per cent. interest, due in two years, known as Temporary Loan, March 12, 1873, payable to W. H. English, Presi- dent.....	$200,000 00
2. Issued under authority act March 10, 1873, acts 1873, p. 177, dated April 15, 1873, bear- ing seven per cent., due in three years, known as Temporary Loan, April 15, 1873, payable to bearer	510,000 00
3. Issued under authority act March 10, 1873, acts 1873, p. 177, dated December 1, 1873, bearing eight per cent. interest, known as Temporary Loan, December 1, 1873, pay- able to bearer	200,000 00
In all	<hr/> $910,000 00

These loans were reported by the Auditor of State to the Legislature until they were finally paid. See Auditor's reports.

And the State officers put a similar construction on the act of February 21, 1885, acts 1885, p. 24, and made the following loan, as shown by the Auditor of State, Hon. James H. Rice, in his report of 1886, p. 22:

“The additional temporary loan of six hundred thousand dollars was authorized by the same act as the foregoing, through the same Board, and bids were invited by general publication. The provision of the act, however, in this case limited the length of the term of the loan by making it redeemable at the pleasure of the State after five years and within ten years; and, therefore, while the rate of interest secured was the same as in the Funding Loan, three and one-half per cent., the premium was only $1\frac{3}{8}$. This loan, therefore, aggregated in principal and premium, \$608,250, which amount was secured and placed to the credit of the General Fund. These bonds were denominated ‘Registered Bond, Temporary Loan,’ and are dated March 1, 1885, interest payable semi-annually.”

This loan was reported to the General Assembly in Auditor’s report, 1888, p. 21, and is still a part of our debt. We thus show, not only the practical construction of the Legislature, and of the departmental officers, but we show the acquiescence of the people therein.

It is now too late, as it seems to me, to depart from this construction, and that it must prevail.

Before concluding this opinion it may be well to consider some general principles governing the interpretation of this act.

(a). A legislative intent to violate the Constitution is never to be assumed, if the language of the statute can be satisfied by a contrary construction. The application of this rule requires that, whenever a statute is susceptible of two constructions, of which the one would make it unconstitutional, the latter is to be adopted. Endlich on Interp. of State, Secs. 178, 181; Bishop on Written Laws, Sec. 90.

Judge Cooley has said: “For as a conflict between the statute and the Constitution is not to be implied, it would seem to follow, where the meaning of the Constitution is clear, that the court, if possible, must give the statute such a construction as will enable it to have effect. This is only saying in another form of words, that the court must construe the statute in accordance with the legislative intent; since it is always to be presumed the Legislature designed the statute to take effect, and not to be a nullity.” Const. Lim., side pp. 184, 185, 186.

The rule on this subject is thus stated by the Supreme Court of Illinois: “Whenever an act of the Legislature can be so construed and applied as to avoid conflict with the Constitution and give it the force of law, such construction will be adopted by the courts." Newland v. Marsh, 19 Ill., 376, 384. To the same effect are Bigelow v. West Wis. R. R. Co., 27 Wis. 478; Attorney-General v. Eau Clair, 37 Wis. 400; Don v. Norris, 4 N. H., 16, 18; Dubuque v. Supervisors of Orange, 39 Iowa 56; Coleman v. Yesler, 1 Wash. Ter. 591.

In Warren v. Britton, 84 Ind., on p. 22, it is said: "When the constitutionality of a statute, or any of its provisions, has been under consideration, it has been the uniform rule in this court to construe and interpret the same, if it can be done, in such manner as to sustain and not defeat the law in question." To the same effect are Shoemaker v. Smith, 37 Ind. 122; Fry v. State, 63 Ind. 552; Clare v. State, 68 Ind. 17; McComas v. Krug, 81 Ind. 327; Campbell v. Dwiggins, 83 Ind. 469; Hays v. Tippy, 91 Ind. 102.

(b). As no departure from the Constitution can be assumed to be intended by the Legislature, it follows that the meaning of the language used in a statute must be understood to conform with, and be construed with reference to, the intention expressed upon the same subject matter by the Constitution; and the provisions of a statute must be understood as silently embracing those prescribed by the Constitution. Endlich on Interest Stat., Sec. 181.

With these principles in mind, let us consider the act of 1889.

1. By section 3, Art. 10, of our Constitution, it is provided: "No money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in pursuance of appropriations made by law."

Hence it follows that money borrowed by the State "to meet casual deficits in the revenue" can only be drawn from the Treasury in pursuance of lawful appropriations.

If there is, or if there shall be, no money in the Treasury with which to pay appropriations made by law, then there is a "casual deficit," and the money put in the Treasury by means of the temporary loan would be paid out on such appropriations. Money is not put in the Treasury for any other purpose, nor is the borrower bound to follow the money to see how it is applied.

The State government must be carried on; "the ordinary expenses of the government" must be paid. (Art. 10, Sec. 2.) Why authorize a loan? To get money with which to carry on the State government by payment of its appropriations. The presumption is conclusive that, if it had not been necessary to use for such purpose, the money so obtained, the loan would not have been authorized. Why necessary? Because of a "casual deficit," which made it imperative that a loan should be made in order to make "payment of the ordinary expense of the government." These "casual deficits" exist because the general revenues of the State are not sufficient to meet the appropriations made by law. The very existence of a present deficit is to consume the money now in the Treasury, thereby making it necessary to borrow money to meet the wants of the future. Therefore, the recital in the bill that the loan is "to carry on the State government" is entirely consistent with the idea that the loan is to meet a casual deficit. The government can not be carried on if these deficits are allowed to continue, and so the Legislature, in using the language "for the purpose of carrying on the State government," intended nothing more nor less than to provide such sum, when added to the sum derived from taxation, as would enable the State to pay its lawful claims under appropriation laws.

The words in the act which direct the use of the borrowed money to pay appropriations are but in recognition of the constitutional inhibition which we have quoted. Counsel representing the proposed purchasers of the bonds have endeavored to show that appropriations do not create debts, but they can not maintain the proposition that appropriations do or may not create deficiencies.

2. But this law, as we have shown, is to be construed as if the words of the Constitution "to meet casual deficits in the revenue" were incorporated, or "silently embraced" in the act. Counsel assail the act because it does not contain a recital that the loan is to meet casual deficits, but even if this is an omission of a necessary thing, it is one the courts will supply by construction. So this act must be held to read thus: "Be it enacted, etc., that to meet casual deficits in the revenue for the purpose of carrying on the State government," etc. In this way, and so applying the rules before stated, this act is made harmonious with the Constitution, and effect is given to the legislative intent beyond a reasonable doubt.

COUNSEL'S ARGUMENT CRITICISED.

1. It is urged by counsel that the debates of the Constitutional Convention show an intent to deny the Legislature the right which was claimed in the passage of this act.

VALUE OF DEBATES.

The debates of a constitutional convention are of little value in interpreting the instrument which it frames, for the reason that it is the opinion of the people who ratify it, and not the opinions of a majority of the members, which gives the instrument its true significance. The views of the members do at most but throw a reflected light on public sentiment at the time. But no attention should be given to a supposed public sentiment, indicated in any manner, in a case where the words of the Constitution, as used, have an obvious and certain meaning, for the very act of the people in ratifying the instrument absolutely rebuts the supposed sentiment to the contrary. Let us look at the authorities on this subject. Judge Cooley says: "For as the Constitution does not derive its force from the convention which framed, but from the people who ratified it, the intent to be arrived at is that of the people, and as it is not to be supposed that they have looked for any dark or abstruse meaning in the words employed, but rather that they have accepted them in the sense most obvious to the common understanding, and ratified the instrument in the belief that that was the sense designed to be conveyed." Const. Lim., side p. 66.

In Taylor v. Taylor et al., 10 Minn. 107, 126, the court say: "But we think such debates should not influence a court in expounding a constitution in any case."

As stated by another authority: "It must be very plain—nay, absolutely certain—that the people did not intend what the language they have employed, in its national signification, imparts, before a court will feel itself at liberty to depart from the plain reading of a constitutional provision." Lewis v. Doron, 5 Nev. 399, 412.

Now what do the debates and proceedings of the convention show? I shall not encumber this opinion with extracts from the debates, but I assert that they show on this subject that the only crystallized sentiment of the convention was against the State incurring any further debt on account of internal improvements. The proposition that the hands of the State should be absolutely tied, was violently opposed, and much debate was had upon the proposition for the Legislature to submit to the people the question whether a debt should be created in a given case. Little opposition existed to and the necessity was felt of, permitting the Legislature to incur debts for strictly governmental purposes.

The debates do not show that the question was discussed after November, 1850, though it was about three months thereafter that the supposed inhibition was adopted.

2. Much is said by counsel about the original phraseology and punctuation of the section we are discussing. What are the facts?

On February 7, 1851, Mr. Owen, of the Committee on Revision, Arrangement and Phraseology—and right here we desire to call the attention of the Court to the fact that the committee mentioned was a committee on revision—reported back, as a part of the completed instrument, the following: “No law shall authorize any debt to be contracted on behalf of the State, except in the following cases: To meet casual deficits in the revenue, the interest on the State debt, to repel invasion, to suppress insurrection, or if hostilities are threatened, provide for the public defense.” Journal, p. 957. It will be noticed that the words “to pay” are wholly omitted. The report was adopted. Journal, p. 959. If the question depends upon the language of the section according to the journal, counsel’s labored interpretation must surely fall. But what is still more against their position is the fact that the enrolled Constitution in the office of the Secretary of State has a semicolon after the word revenue. Indeed, a semicolon for each comma in the clause. This punctuation means more than it does in a statute, for each of the members of the convention signed the instrument as it stood, and thereby adopted the enrollment as his own act. That was the instrument which went before the people. That they supposed in ratifying the instrument that the Legislature was empowered to meet casual deficits in the revenue by a loan, we can have no doubt, for, as I am free to confess, after pouring over the section myself for many days, it did not occur to me that it could be read in any other way than as it appears. The discovery, I admit, does much credit to counsel's astuteness, but that the common people, who had the instrument submitted to them punctuated the other way, should also have interpreted it as counsel has, I deny. I do not believe that the people in adopting the Constitution, gave any heed to "philological niceties, more noticeable for their ingenuity than their practical good sense."

The address to the electors does not give color to counsel's claim that the constitutional convention did not intend to permit the Legislature to go in debt, except to pay interest on the public debt, suppress insurrection, etc. Only one fact is stated in this connection, and that is, that had the same provision been in the Constitution of 1816, six million dollars would have been saved to the State. What "six million dollars" was referred to? It was the six millions remaining after the acceptance of the Butler compromise measure, by which the creditors of the State, on account of internal improvements, compromised a debt of twelve million dollars by taking bonds for six millions and the canals for the balance. I admit that the State can not now contract debts except for governmental purposes.

3. The cases cited by counsel concerning the power to borrow are not in point.

In State ex rel. v. School Fund, 4 Kan. 261, a debt was authorized "for the purpose of paying the officers and members of the State Legislature, and current expenses of the State." The Constitution of Kansas provides that the Legislature shall each year provide for raising a revenue sufficient to defray current expenses. Debts could be contracted for "extraordinary expenses." The court held that the act itself showed that the expense for which debt created was not "extraordinary."

In the California cases the Legislature authorized the creation of a debt in which the constitutional limit of $300,000 was exceeded.

In the South Carolina case, under a Constitution containing substantially the same provision concerning the creation of debts as is contained in the Constitution of Kansas, the court held that a certain expense was "extraordinary," within the meaning of the Constitution.

In the Florida case the court condemns the law from its face.

In the case in 7 Ohio St., the act authorized a debt of about $1,300,000, while the constitutional limit was $750,000.

The case in 52 N. Y. 556, is not in point. The Constitution of New York limits the debt to $1,000,000, "unless authorized by a law for some single work or object to be distinctly specified therein, and such law can not take effect until by a submission to the people at a general election it shall have received a majority of all votes cast for or against it." * * *

It is next claimed by counsel that the title of the act is double. I submit that the title and the act itself cover but one subject—that of loans. State ex rel. v. Tucker, 46 Ind. 355, and Montclair v. Ramsdell, 107 U. S. 147, a bond case, are conclusive of the question.

The assault made upon the motives of the Legislature in passing the act in question is fully met by the language of the Court, in Wright v. Defrees, 8 Ind. 202, 303, where it is said: "It is now proposed that one of the three powers shall institute an inquiry into the conduct of another department, and form an issue to try by what motives the Legislature were governed in the enactment of a law. If this may be done, we may also inquire by what motives the executive is induced to approve a bill or withhold his approval, and in case of withholding it corruptly, by our mandate compel its approval. To institute the proposed inquiry would be a direct attack upon the independence of the Legislature, and a usurpation of power subversive of the Constitution." To the same effect is the language of Marshall, C. J., in Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch 87.

The great importance of the question you have submitted has led me to present an unusually lengthy argument, but I hope it will not prove tedious or unprofitable.

The rate of interest on deferred payments for congressional township school lands sold prior to March 2, 1889, is eight per cent.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—You ask me whether the rate of interest on deferred payments for congressional township school land, sold under the provisions of Section 4346, R. S. 1881, is changed to six per cent. by the act of March 2, 1889, the sale having been made prior thereto.

The act to which you call attention is not retrospective in its operation. Moreover, it only applies to interest on school funds which "shall be loaned," and not to interest on deferred payments of purchase money for congressional township school land.

In Wasson v. Bank, 107 Ind. 206, 212, the court say: "In ordinary parlance, 'money at interest' has reference more to loaned than to interest bearing notes and accounts received for property sold." So I think that in this case that a regulation of interest on loans merely is not effective to change the rate of interest established by law on deferred payments of purchase money. In my opinion the later act does not operate to lower the interest in the case you put. However, as to interest on deferred payments on sales subsequently made, I think that the rate is six per cent., for the reason that Section 4346 does not specify the rate of interest, but merely provides that the "deferred payments shall be regarded as a part of the congressional township fund and reported as such," thus establishing the rate of interest at which the counties are compelled to account for the common school fund principal intrusted to them as the criterion for the rate of interest that persons buying congressional township school land shall pay on the deferred payments.

Cumulative sentences of imprisonment can not be imposed.

James Murdock, Warden:

SIR—You ask me the following question:

"Where separate sentences of imprisonment are imposed by a court on separate charges, do the periods of imprisonment run concurrently, if there is no provision in the second judgment that it shall not become operative until the expiration of the first judgment?"

The doctrine of the Indiana Supreme Court, established since an early day, is, that there is no authority to impose cumulative sentences of imprisonment. Miller v. Allen, 11 Ind. 389; Kennedy v. Howard, 74 Ind. 87. Indeed, it is expressly provided by section 6134, R. S. 1881, that "the term of service and imprisonment of every convict shall commence from the day of his conviction and sentence."

I therefore advise that you should treat the judgments as operating to create concurrent, and not cumulative, periods of imprisonment.

The right of the Supreme Court considered to order the Clerk of such court to perform certain labor, and to order payment therefor to be made out of the State Treasury.

Hon. Wm. T. Noble, Clerk of the Supreme Court:

SIR—I acknowledge receipt from you of the following letter:

Hon. L. T. Michener, Attorney General:

DEAR SIR—In view of the fact that the records and papers on file in this office are not in a good state of preservation, and are now in confusion, covered with dirt, and the rubber bands which have been placed around them have rotted away, and in many cases they have become misplaced, many more practically lost; and that no general index has ever been provided, without which it is impossible to find records often inquired for by parties interested, I desire to know whether or not the Supreme Court, under sections 1308 and 1309 of the Revised Statutes of Indiana, is authorized to order the Clerk of such court to clean, assort, arrange, securely tie together and index such records, that they may become accessible, in connection with an order directing him to transcribe parts of such records in order to preserve them, and order an allowance therefor, to be paid out of the general fund.

Very Respectfully,

WM. T. NOBLE.

The sections you cite should be considered with sections 5825, 5826, 5827, 5829, 5830, R. S. 1881.

Section 5825, so far as it relates to the matter in hand, directs you to procure and preserve in the office provided by law all records, and other books and stationery required by the Supreme Court.

Sections 5826 and 5827 direct the Court to make you an allowance, payable out of the State Treasury, for the record-books and stationery furnished by you.

Section 5829 requires the Court to inspect your office, through one of the Judges appointed for that purpose, who shall report concerning the condition of the records and books therein.

Section 5830 makes it your duty, at the expiration of your term, to turn over to your successor all the books and papers in your office. Thus, it clearly appears that all the books and papers in your office are under the general supervision of the Court, and that the Clerk has no property rights therein. They are the property of the State, paid for out of the public treasury, and are preserved for the use of the Court and the public generally.

Because of these facts, and of their great value to the court and the public, it is of the highest importance that they be kept accessible, and in a good state of preservation; otherwise they will be well nigh useless. It was evidently because of these reasons that the General Assembly passed the act of February 7, 1855, now known as sections 1308 and 1309, R. S. 1881. Those sections direct the Supreme Court, whenever it "shall deem it necessary for the preservation of the records of said court, or any part thereof, from mutilation or decay, arising from any cause whatever," to "make an order directing the Clerk * * * to transcribe said records in suitable books, to be by him procured for that purpose," and make him a suitable allowance therefor, to be paid as similar allowances in other cases.

The sections I have cited enjoin the following duties on the Supreme Court:

1. To require the Clerk to procure and preserve in his office all necessary records, books and stationery, and pay for the same out of the State Treasury.

2. To inspect the condition of the records and books in the office of the Clerk.

3. To take such steps as may be necessary to preserve the books and papers of the office, or any part thereof, from mutilation or decay, and pay for the work that may be done by the Clerk in that connection out of the State Treasury.

The statutes cited grant these powers to, and enjoin such duties upon the Supreme Court.

It is a familiar rule of law that when a general power is given, or a duty enjoined, every particular power necessary for the exercise of the one or the performance of the other, is given by implication. Bishop on Written Laws, section 137; Endlick on Int. of Stat., secs. 418, 419, 421.

Therefore it seems to me to be clear, on the facts you state, that the Supreme Court has the power to direct you to transcribe parts of such records and papers in order to preserve them, and, as incidental thereto, to direct you to clean, assort, arrange, tie together and index such records and papers, and pay you for such labor out of the State Treasury. In no other way can the principal order be made effectual, or the records and papers be preserved, or be rendered accessible and useful to the court and the public.

I thereforé advise you accordingly.

The sum paid on a contract with a third person for the distribution of the Acts and Journals to the counties, under Section 5597, R. S. 1881, should not be deducted from a specific appropriation to the Secretary of State, of $600, made by the General Assembly, in 1889.

Hon. C. F. Griffin, Secretary of State:

SIR—You have submitted to me the following :

“The General Assembly of 1889 appropriated to the Secretary of State, for the distribution of laws, reports and public documents, the sum of $600, for the year ending October 31, 1889. It is provided by section 5597, R. S. 1881, that the Secretary of State shall contract with some competent person to convey and deliver the volumes of the acts of the General Assembly and the journals in the act mentioned, to the several counties and persons pointed out by the statute, and that the amount provided to be paid by such contract shall be by the Treasurer of State paid ‘out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.’ Should the sum provided for by this section be deducted from the specific appropriation of $600, which is made to the Secretary of State, hereinbefore referred to?”

Your communication states the substance of section 5597. It is, therefore, unnecessary to set it out. The section is a part of an act approved March 7, 1857. Acts 1857, p. 86. The appropriation bill for the present fiscal year appropriates “for the distribution of laws, reports and public documents, which distribution is required to be made by the Secretary of State, the sum of six hundred dollars.” * * *

The question before me amounts to this: Does a provision equivalent to the one quoted operate to repeal section 5597 by implication? Like appropriations have been made by the Legislature since 1859. Acts 1859, p. 13. If the service or expense contemplated by the specific appropriations mentioned is identical with that provided for by section 5597, there is undoubtedly a repeal, otherwise not, for an appropriation to the Secretary of State, or to his office, of a specific sum for the distribution of all books and documents which he is required by law to distribute, can not be built upon a statute which authorizes him to enter into a contract with a third person for the distribution of only a part of the matter mentioned, at a rate of compensation to be fixed by the Secretary. The statute mentioned and the subsequent appropriation bills are so plainly inconsistent that the former must fall, if it relates to the same expense or service for which the appropriation bills provide. If, on the other hand, they relate to different expenses and services, both must stand, and if that is the case, the appropriations are cumulative. I approached the consideration of the question indicated with considerable doubt as to what the Legislature had intended, but after examining other statutes relating to the same general subject, and reviewing the history of section 5597, I entertain no doubt that that section is still in force.

Section 7 of the act of 1857, to which I have referred (section 5600, R. S. 1881), is as follows: "In view of the arduous labor to be performed in superintending the printing and distribution of the acts and journals, and making the contract for and superintending the boxing of said acts and journals, the Secretary of State is hereby allowed such reasonable compensation as may be agreed upon by the Governor, Auditor and Treasurer of State, or a majority of them, not to exceed the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars, to be paid out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated." It is made manifest by this act that the Legislature intended to compensate the Secretary of State for his services in the distribution of the acts and journals. We are thus afforded an opportunity of testing the legislative mind in relation to this question, and in the absence of other subsequent legislation, indicating a contrary purpose, we can but infer that in making a specific appropriation to the Secretary of State for the distribution of books and documents, the Legislature had no purpose to discontinue that compensation by requiring him to assume an expense not charged against him before, which would consume his specific appropriation. I find no legislation of the character mentioned. On the contrary, I find, notwithstanding regular appropriations to the Secretary of State for the distribution of books and documents, extending over a period of thirty years, it appears, as far as can be traced, that section 5597 has been acted upon by the letting of contracts under it for the distribution of acts and journals for sums in excess of the specific appropriations. More than that, it appears from the report of the Secretary of State for 1879 that that official recommended the repeal of the last named section. I quote from page 10 of his report: "The present law provides that the Secretary of State shall contract with some responsible person to convey and deliver the acts and journals to the several persons, counties and places designated by the law. This contract system should be abolished. The fact that all the counties, with a very few exceptions, can be reached by railroad transportation, does away with the necessity of contracting with any one to personally superintend the delivery. The distribution can be just as readily and as well done under the superintendency of the Secretary of State, and more cheaply." This recommendation was brought to the attention of the General Assembly by the Governor in his message of that year (p. 23). The legislative purpose to continue this act in force is evidenced by the failure of the General Assembly to act upon the recommendation, notwithstanding its direct knowledge that the administrative department and the Governor were continuing to treat the statute as in force.

The history of Section 5597 may be compared to that of an act which gave the President of the Benevolent Institutions a certain salary, and also gave salaries to the trustees of the several institutions, and made the President ex officio a trustee of each. At the session at which the act was passed the appropriation made the President an allowance in addition to his salary of an amount equivalent to the total of the salaries of a trustee in two of the institutions. Thereafter, although no subsequent appropriation bill made mention of the President of the Benevolent Institutions, he continued to draw the amount which he was entitled to when the appropriation bill made him the additional allowance mentioned. In State ex rel. Attorney General v. Harrison, 116 Ind. 300, the President of the Benevolent Institutions was sued for moneys received as salary in excess of the allowance made him by statute, and the question presented was whether he was entitled to a salary, not only as President but also as Trustee of each institution. The court say: "As we have said, there is room for argument and for doubt. After a careful examination of the several statutes and the question in issue, we have concluded that in this case the doubt should be solved and the question settled by a resort to the construction given to the statutes by the Legislature, the executive department, which, under our constitution, includes the administrative department, by the practice and usage of that department, and the acquiescence of Harrison and his predecessor in that construction, practice and usage. In that construction, practice and usage of the administrative department, the other departments have also acquiesced, although several sessions of the Legislature have intervened."

The history of Section 5597 is such that it can not well be disregarded. Add to this the weight of the presumption against a repeal by implication, and it can not but be affirmed that that section is yet in force.

I therefore advise you that you may contract for the distribution of the Acts and Journals under Section 5597, and that the provision in the appropriation bill to which you refer was intended to compensate you for services and reimburse you for expenses in the preparation of the various documents and books which you are required to transmit to the counties, and also to reimburse you for the expense of transmitting to the counties those documents and books not covered by the provisions of Section 5597.

The appropriations for the deputies and assistants of the Attorney General's office considered.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State :

SIR—I have received the following communication from you:

"Will you please favor me with your opinion as to the correct construction of the acts of the General Assembly relating to the following:

"1. The Attorney General's act of 1873 empowers the Governor, Auditor and Secretary of State to appoint assistants for the Attorney General, at an expense not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum. The act concerning the Attorney General, passed at the last session of the General Assembly, fixes the salary of the deputy of the Attorney General at fifteen hundred dollars per annum. The deficiency appropriation act appropriates six hundred dollars for the salary of the deputy. Which of these appropriations governs?"

The act of March 5, 1889 (Acts 1889, p. 124), provides that "the salary of the Deputy Attorney General shall be fifteen hundred dollars per annum." The deficiency appropriation bill which was presented to the Governor on the 9th day of March, 1889, and signed two days thereafter, appropriates "for the salary of Deputy Attorney General, six hundred dollars."

It is not entirely clear that there was a repeal of the first act mentioned by the provision noted in the deficiency appropriation bill. See the last sentence of section 14, Article V, State Constitution. But it is not necessary to consider this question, as the clerks and deputies of the Attorney General now are, and for a number of years past have been, dependent in the main upon section 12, of the act of March 10, 1873 (Acts 1873, p. 18), for their compensation, and it has not been necessary, and I do not think will be, to rely upon the current appropriation except to the extent of six hundred dollars. For this reason I shall not seek to determine between the six hundred and the fifteen hundred dollar appropriations. The only question which concerns you is whether the section mentioned of the act of 1873, is in force. That section is as follows: "The Attorney General shall have such clerks and deputies as the Governor, Secretary and Auditor of State may deem necessary, provided that not more than two thousand dollars shall be paid out of the Treasury in any one year for any such purpose—the salary of such clerk or deputy to be paid out of any funds in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, on the certificate of said State officers."

On the 31st day of March, 1879 (Acts 1879, p. 130), an act was approved which fixed the salaries of many of the State officers, although it did not purport to affect those whose "salaries, fees and compensation" were "otherwise provided by law." That act provided that "the salary of the clerk of the Attorney General shall be six hundred dollars per year." The appropriation act of 1879 made an appropriation for "the clerk and deputy of the Attorney General." The effect of these acts was not to repeal the act of 1873, because they only authorized the Attorney General to himself appoint a clerk (or deputy) and fixed his salary, just as the offices of Deputy Auditor and Deputy Treasurer and others are established, by a mere statement that the salary of such deputy shall be a certain sum. (Sections 5626, 5655, R. S. 1881). It must needs follow that the Attorney General had the power himself to appoint a clerk (or deputy) under the acts of 1879, because the acts imply that he shall have a clerk (or deputy) in any event, and that his salary shall be a specific sum, viz: $600. This leaves the Board provided for by the act of 1873 without any duties, so far as the acts of 1879 were concerned. They could not determine, under these latter acts, the number of clerks (or deputies), for there was to be but one, nor his salary, for the statute had intervened and fixed the salary. I deem it clear, therefore, that the acts of 1879 were not built on the act of 1873, but that the latter acts authorized the appointment of a clerk (or deputy) wholly irrespective of the act of 1873. So far as these two statutes are concerned, the question is, therefore, does an act authorizing an official to employ one clerk (or deputy) at a specific salary repeal an earlier act empowering a Board, in their discretion, to employ for that officer an unlimited number of deputies and clerks at salaries fixed by them, but at a limited total compensation, which is to be paid on the order of the Board out of the State Treasury? The fee bill of 1879, in itself, furnishes pretty conclusive evidence that it was intended to provide an additional clerk for the Attorney General, since it did not repeal the appropriation for the Attorney General's clerks and deputies appointed by the Board mentioned, because of the limitation that the act should not affect those officers whose "salaries, fees and compensation are otherwise provided by law."

The precedent having been established of providing the Attorney-General with at least one assistant, whether the Board created by the act of 1873 provided help for him or not, it became and is customary for the Legislature at each session to make an appropriation for such object.

I now proceed to the question suggested above, and its solution depends largely upon the application of the principles concerning repeals by implication.

Some of the acts in question contain general clauses repealing all acts in conflict with them. Of course, in such a case the Legislature does not stand convicted of an omission to repeal conflicting acts, and the presumption against a repeal yields somewhat more readily (Endlich Inter. Stat., Sec. 206), but, particularly in cases of general repealing clauses at the end of long appropriation acts, the difference can not be very substantial; since if a subsequent statute does conflict in point of fact, there is a repeal, whether provided for or not.

Thus, Bishop says (Written Laws, section 152): "Not unfrequently a clause is inserted in a statute repealing all laws in conflict or inconsistent with it, 'contravening' it or the like. If the provisions of the former and present enactments are in direct contrariety, the repeal takes place, but only to the extent of the repugnance. If, on the other hand, by any reasonable contracting, expanding, cutting short or extending of the old laws or the new, as explained in the foregoing chapter, they can be brought into harmony without repeal, the interpretation should be so, and all suffered to stand together." Regarding the question, then, as substantially this: Has the act of 1873 been repealed by implication? I shall first consider the doctrine concerning such repeals. To say that they are regarded with disfavor is to state a doctrine that in some form, more or less pronounced, is found in almost every law report, both of England and America. When a Legislature enacts a law, it breathes into that law a vigor sufficient to cause it to live forever, if not struck down by a subsequent law; so, if, in the enactment of a later law, the Legislature has omitted to search out and expressly repeal the old law, the only just presumption, in case the two laws can be reconciled, is that the Legislature intended the old law to live on. I quote from some of the authorities concerning implied repeals. Dwarris says, (Statutes 154), that although two cases do not go so far, "the leaning of the courts is so strong against repealing the positive provisions of a former statute by construction, as almost to establish the doctrine of 'no repeal by implication.'"

"The maxim 'leges posteriores priores contrarias abrogant' is not a primary rule in the construction of statutes; it is a der-nier resort never to be used while there is a possibility of reconciling the statutes together." McNeely v. Woodruff, 1 Green (N. J.) 352, 356.

"The implication must be necessary. There must be a positive repugnancy between the provisions of the new laws and those of the old." Ex Parte Crow Dog, 109 U. S. 556, 570.

"When the Legislature intend to repeal a statute we may, as a general rule, expect them to do it in express terms, or by the use of words which are equivalent to an express repeal. No court will, if it can be consistently avoided, determine that a statute is repealed by implication." Ludlow v. Johnson, 3 Ohio 553, 564.

"The repeal of a statute by implication is never permitted if it can be avoided on any reasonable hypothesis." Butz v. Kerr, 123 Ill. 659, 662.

"Although two acts are seemingly repugnant, yet they shall, if possible, have such construction that one may not be a repeal of the other by implication." Smith v. City of Vicksburg, 54 Miss. 615, 619.

"The leaning of the courts is against the doctrine if it be possible to reconcile the two acts of the Legislature together." McCool v. Smith, 1 Black. 459, 471.

"To repeal a statute by implication there must be such a positive repugnancy between the provisions of the new law and the old that they can not stand together or be consistently reconciled." County of Clay v. Society of Savings, 14 Otto 579, citing McCool v. Smith, 1 Black 459; Wood v. United States, 16 Pet. 342; Ide v. Story, 47 Vt. 62. To the same effect, Arthur v. Homer, 96 U. S. 137; Flabbi v. Murphy, 95 U. S. 191.

"Repeals by implication are seldom admitted except on the ground of repugnancy; and never, we think, when the former can stand together with the new act." Ex parte Yerger, 8 Wall. 85.

"To repeal a statute by implication there must be a repugnancy between the provisions of the new law and the old so positive as to be irreconcilable." In Re Barber, 86 Penn. St. 392, 400.

"Statutory enactments can not be repealed by implication, if the implication does not necessarily follow from the language used." Pratt v. I. & St. L. R. R. Co., 42 Me. 579, 587. To the same effect, Richards v. Patterson, 30 Miss. 583; Naylor v. Field, 5 Dutch. 287. Moreover, an affirmative duty is devolved upon courts to reconcile statutes and uphold both, where it is possible to do so. "It is the duty of the court to construe these apparently repugnant provisions so as to give them effect." Stockett v. Bird, 18 Md. 484, 488. "Repeals by implication are not favored by the law, and a later statute will never be held to operate as a repeal of an earlier statute, unless the two are so inconsistent or repugnant that they can not be reconciled. To justify a repeal by implication the repugnance between the statutes must be clear and plain, and, if they are seemingly repugnant, it is the duty of the courts so to construe them as to avoid such repeal by implication." Hunt v. Chicago, Etc., Ry. Co., 121 Ill. 638, 644.

This doctrine has been distinctly announced by our own Supreme Court in Blain v. Bailey, 25 Ind. 195, 196, where the court say: "It is a maxim in the construction of statutes, that the law does not favor a repeal by implication, and it has accordingly been held that where two acts are seemingly repugnant, they must, if possible, be so construed that the latter may not operate as a repeal of the former." To the same effect see Connor v. Southern Express Co., 37 Ga. 397; People v. Barr, 44 Ill. 198; McCool v. Smith, 1 Black. 459; Henderson's Tobacco, 11 Wall. 652; The Distilled Spirits, id. 356.

Having shown by the authorities the strong leaning of the courts against constructive repeals, and that in such cases the courts will endeavor to reconcile even repugnant provisions, I am prepared to take up the ultimate question which I have before stated, but which, for convenience, I state here: Does an act authorizing an official to employ one clerk at a specific salary repeal an earlier act empowering a Board, in their discretion, to employ for that officer an unlimited number of deputies and clerks at salaries fixed by them, but at a limited total compensation, which is to be paid on the order of the Board out of the State Treasury? Even on this question we have the light of the authorities: "It is not sufficient to establish that subsequent laws cover some or even all of the cases provided for by it, for they may be merely affirmative, or cumulative, or auxiliary." Story, J., in Wood v. United States, 16 Pet. 341, 362, and followed in Daviess v. Fairbairn, 3 How. 636; Harden v. Gordon, 2 Mason 541.

“Nor does an affirmative statute, giving a new right of itself, of necessity destroy a previously existing right, unless the intention of the Legislature be apparent that the two acts should not exist together.” Broom's Leg. Max. 29.

Our own Supreme Court has said: “The fact that both of the statutes are directed to the attainment of the same end does not warrant the conclusion that the later repeals the former. * * The fact that the statutes relate to the same subject and seek the same end does not necessarily require it to be held that the later supersedes the earlier.” Why can not the power in the Attorney-General to appoint an assistant exist conjointly with a power in a Board to provide him with such clerks and deputies as they may deem necessary? Both statutes, in the language of Endlich (Inter. of Stat. 211), “run in parallel lines without meeting.” The case of Daw v. Metropolitan Board, 104 Con. L. R. 161, furnishes us an instance where two statutes could not so operate. In that case the question was whether an act authorizing the Metropolitan Board to number the houses in the city of London operated to repeal a prior act vesting the same authority in the Commissioners of Sewers. It was held that there was a repeal. The court say: “The purpose of numbering houses is to distinguish them from each other; and, if the Commissioners of Sewers of the city of London and the Metropolitan Board of Works had each the power to alter the numbers, that purpose would be frustrated. I am, therefore, of opinion that the two powers can not co-exist.” In the case before us, as I have before stated, I can see no reason why the statutes of 1873 and 1879 can not operate together. The fact that the definite article, “the,” is used in the act of 1879 furnishes no semblance of reason for the position that there was to be but one clerk, for in the light of the fact that a new appointing power, viz.: the Attorney-General, was being provided, the words, “the clerk of the Attorney-General,” mean fairly “the clerk the Attorney-General appoints.” Besides, as I have before observed, the Board provided for by the act of 1873 was not obliged to act at all. It was for them to determine how many, if any, clerks and deputies they would provide for the Attorney-General. They might “deem” that neither a clerk or a deputy was “necessary,” and preliminary to their bringing into official existence, by their act, a clerk or deputy of the Attorney-General, the latter’s appointee would be properly termed "the clerk." Again, by the fairest diction, the clerks or deputies appointed by the Board, under the act of 1873, may be termed the clerks or deputies of the Board, rather than of the Attorney-General, for the Board brings them into official existence; it determines how long they shall continue to hold their places; it determines their salaries, and its certificate is necessary to enable them to draw their salaries. In this view there is an entire want of identity between the subject matter of the two acts. In other words, the question amounts to this: Does a provision in a statute that the salary of the appointee of A shall be a certain sum, establish the salary of the appointee of B, C and D? I need not answer this question. There is an entire want of identity between the assistants to which the act of 1873 and the other act refer. I quote from the opinion of the Supreme Court of Illinois in Rawson v. Rawson, 52 Ill. 63-69: "To say that there is a repeal, not directly, but by fair implication, is saying what the acts themselves, when the subject matter of them is considered, will not justify. The acts are not upon the same subject, and if the rule be, as it undoubtedly is, that a subsequent act on the same subject, will not be held to repeal a former act by implication, unless the new act contains provisions contrary to or irreconcilable with, those of the former act, with how much more force and propriety may it be argued that a subsequent act, not on the same subject, shall not be construed to repeal a former act by mere implication?"

This is not a case which, to my mind, calls for any ingenuity to avoid the holding that the earlier act is repealed by the act of 1879, or by subsequent appropriations based on it, for it must strike the mind at first blush that the Legislature would not have cut the pay of the assistants of a growing office, at one swoop, down to less than one-third of what it formerly was, and especially does it seem that the Legislature would not have done so in view of the liberal scale of salaries paid to other deputies and clerks. Some explanation the mind at once expects, and it can satisfactorily rest in the conclusion that it was intended that the act of 1873 should remain in force. Instead of these two acts being conflicting, the former, in its operation, is a perfect supplement to the later. The Attorney-General is given a clerk by law, and whenever the necessities of his office demand it a Board is empowered to furnish him with additional assistants. I pass over the appropriation bills intervening since 1879, for they simply continue a specific appropriation for an assistant of the Attorney-General, and contain no provisions which might be supposed to affect the act of 1873 that I have not already discussed, or shall hereafter discuss, in considering the current appropriation bill.

I next take up the consideration of the general act governing the office of the Attorney-General, approved March 6, 1889. That act bears internal evidence that it was not intended to repeal the act of 1873, except where inconsistent, for Section 16 of the present act repeals expressly Sections 4 and 10 of the act of 1873, thus treating the act of 1873 as in force for at least some purposes; the case, therefore, does not fall within the rule that the renovation of one act by a subsequent act works an implied repeal of the former. See Robinson v. Rippey, 111 Ind. 112. On this proposition the case of Crosby v. Patch, 18 Cal. 438, is exactly in point. In that case the court say: "From the specification of certain sections of the act of 1854, as repealed, it is evident that the Legislature never contemplated the total repeal of that act, as one general repealing clause would, in that case have been used, carrying the entire act. The specification of particular sections, as repealed, is equivalent to a declaration that the remaining sections shall continue in force."

Another consideration of controlling force in the consideration as to whether section 12 of the act of 1873 is in operation is the fact that two administrations have acted upon it. In 1885, 1887 and 1888, when the appropriation for an Attorney General's clerk was not sufficient to enable him to appoint one, or it was necessary to have additional assistance, the Board, composed of the Governor, the Auditor of State and the Secretary of State, made appointments under the act of 1873. The holding by the State's Chief Executive, whose constitutional duty is to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed," and one of whose duties, therefore, is, the constitutional one, to take care that "no money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in pursuance of appropriations made by law," that a certain act is in force and creates an appropriation, is peculiarly forceful. The general subject of the effect of a practical construction is considered in the case of State ex rel. Att'y Gen'l

v. Harrison, 116 Ind. 300. I quote from pp. 307, 308 and 309 of the opinion: "And so, the practical construction given to a statute by the public officers of the State, and acted upon by those interested, and by the people, is to be regarded in cases of doubt." In some cases it has been held to be conclusive. Sedg. Constr. Stat., p. 227. In the case of Blake v. Nat'l Banks, 23 Wall. 307, 321, the Supreme Court of the United States used this language: 'The ambiguous terms of the statute prevent the possibility of a satisfactory solution of the question presented. We are inclined to adopt the construction practically placed upon it by the administrative department of the government.' See, also, Solomon v. Commissioners, etc., 41 Ga. 157; Endlich Interp. Stat., sec. 357; Bishop, Written Laws, sec. 104; Bailey v. Rolfe, 16 N. H. 247; Chestnut v. Shane, 16 Ohio 599. In Endlich, on the Interpretation of Statutes, at sec. 34, is this: 'Another class of external circumstances which have, under peculiar circumstances been sometimes taken into consideration in construing a statute, consists of acts done under it; for usage may determine the meaning of the language, at all events, when the meaning is not free from ambiguity.' See, also, Moers v. City of Reading, 21 Pa. St. 188; McKeen v. Delancy, 5 Cranch. 22.

In speaking of the consideration to be given by the courts to a construction placed upon a statute by another department of the government, and to the practice and usage of such departments, etc., this court, in the case of Board, etc., v. Bunting, 111 Ind. 143, said: 'We know judicially that it has always been the custom to make suitable provision for the sheriff's residence, and this custom has given a construction to the law which could not be disregarded, even if there was doubt as to the meaning of the statute.' In speaking of a practical construction given to a statute, the Supreme Court of Illinois said: 'It has always been regarded by the courts as equivalent to a positive law.' Bruce v. Scuyler, 4 Gilm. 221. By another court the principle was stated, and it was said: 'We can not shake a principle which in practice has so long and so extensively prevailed.' Rogers v. Goodwin, 2 Mass. 475. There are many cases which declare and enforce this principle. Among them are Stuart v. Laird, 1 Cranch 299; Martin v. Hunter, 1 Wheat. 304; Cohens v. Virginia, 6 Wheat. 264; Ogden v. Sowders, 12 Wheat. 213; Minor v. Happersett, 21

Wall. 162; State v. Parkinson, 5 Nev. 15; Pike v. Megoun, 44 Mo. 491; People v. Supervisors, 100 Ill. 495; State v. French, 2 Pinney (Wis.) 181; see, also, Weaver v. Templin, 113 Ind. 298." Nothing need be added to the reasoning and authorities of the above case. The section of the act of 1873 we have been considering has been recognized as in force by the Indiana Supreme Court in the very recent case of Julian v. State, 23 N. E. Rep. 690. The Revision Committee also took the view that the statute of 1873 was in force, for they brought it forward into the Revised Statutes of 1881 as section 5671.

The provision of all the appropriation bills that the sums appropriated to the several officers, offices, institutions and services named shall be in full of all that shall be paid on that account, does not affect the statute of 1873, because the assistants therein provided for are not mentioned in the appropriation bills and do not exist except when the Board sees fit to exercise its appointive function. Appropriations to "offices," as used, must be held to mean specific appropriations to officers to meet the miscellaneous expenses of their offices, and appropriations for "services" relate to specific allowances for persons other than officers. The purpose of such a provision is to prevent double appropriations to those persons who are authorized to draw under the appropriation bill. Any other holding on this subject than the one indicated would cause an appropriation bill passed during the last days of a legislative session to work chaos not only with standing appropriations but also with specific appropriations made at that very session. To hold otherwise on the appropriation bill of 1889 would defeat at least two-thirds of the specific appropriations made by that Legislature. The appropriation bill of 1885, which was in force when Governor Gray and the other State officers, composing the Board, twice acted, contained the same provision as that noted concerning the appropriation bill of 1889.

I can not forbear the suggestion of a further consideration, and that is this: The question whether the act of 1873 is in force stands now precisely as it has for years; to hold that it is not in force would be to work the greatest hardship upon persons who have served the State for years; in other words, such a construction would deprive them of any compensation for their labors. Such a construction must be avoided if it is possible.

Of a case involving much less hardship than this the Supreme Court of the United States has said: "Repeal by implication, upon the ground that the subsequent provision upon the same subject is repugnant to the prior law, is not favored in any case; but where such repeal would operate to re-open accounts at the Treasury Department, long since settled and closed, the supposed repugnancy ought to be clear and controlling before it can be held to have that effect." United States v. Walker, 22 How. 299, 311.

When direct reasoning is supplemented by the strong presumption against the repeal of the statute of 1873, and to this is added the fact that it has been treated as in force by the Supreme Court and by the Governor and the leading officers in the administrative department of the government, as well as by a Revision Committee, composed of able lawyers, and that persons have relied upon that construction and expended years of service for the State, I submit that the fact that the statute of 1873 is in force must be considered as at rest.

I, therefore, advise you that the Board named may, in its discretion, set apart a sum not exceeding two thousand dollars per annum for the payment of the assistants which it appoints. Whether the appropriation which the Attorney General may lawfully expend in payment of his appointee is six hundred or fifteen hundred dollars, I need not now determine, for the six hundred dollar appropriation will not, and in safety should not, be exceeded.

The Secretary of State is entitled to reimbursement on account of $200 paid out by him for messenger hire, from November 1, 1887, to October 31, 1888.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—You ask me whether the Secretary of State is entitled to draw a warrant for the amount paid out by him for the salary of messenger, computed at the rate of two hundred dollars per year, for the time from November 1, 1887, to October 31, 1888?

By section 2 of the deficiency appropriation act there is appropriated for the year beginning on the 1st day of November, 1888, and ending on the 31st day of October, 1889, "for the Secretary of State's office, * * the sum of two hundred

IN RE OPINION, PAGES 49 TO 60.

Three legislative sessions have passed during which the Legislature had full notice of the claim that there was a standing appropriation for the assistants of the Attorney-General and that sums of money were being, and had been since November, 1884, expended under such standing appropriation, in excess of the allowances in the appropriation bills. (Auditor of State's Report for 1884, p. 50; id. for 1887, p. 6, et seq.; Attorney-General's Report for 1888 pp. 155 to 158, and the various financial exhibits provided for by law.) And yet that body made no attempt to repeal the statute which it knew that it was claimed created a standing appropriation, nor did it question the legality of the expenditures in excess of its appropriations in appropriation bills, by directing the bringing of suits for such excessive expenditures, either for the year 1884, or for any subsequent year, but throughout it sat by without dissent and permitted individuals to expend their labors for the State on the faith of the construction mentioned. This certainly makes a case of estoppel. It is true that the mere unauthorized acts of State officers do not estop the State, but the opposite doctrine obtains as to the Legislature, which represents the State in its sovereign capacity. 2 Herman on Estoppel, sec. 677, et seq. "Resolute good faith should characterize the conduct of States in their dealings with individuals, and there is no reason, in morals or law, that will exempt them from the doctrine of estoppel." State v. Milk, 11 Fed. Rep. 389, 397, and cases there cited. One of the strongest cases on the subject is that of State v. Bailey, 19 Ind. 452. In that case the action was quo warranto to obtain the dissolution of a corporation, because of an uncertainty in its articles of incorporation filed in the office of the Secretary of State eight years before. The Court held that the filing of the articles in the office of the Secretary of State put the State on notice, and that after so long an acquiescence, during which the corporation and others had acted on the faith of the articles, the State was estopped to contest the question of such uncertainty. If the facts in the case mentioned created an estoppel, there ought to be no question as to the result in the case in hand, where notice is traced directly home to the Legislature, and the facts still more plainly called upon it to assert the State's claim, if opposed to that of the individuals dealing with it. "He who has been silent as to his alleged rights when he ought in good faith to have spoken shall not be heard to speak when he ought to be silent."

dollars for salary of messenger.” Section 1 of that act provides: “That the several appropriations herein made shall be held to mean an appropriation * * for the year beginning November 1, 1887, and ending October 31, 1888, except where in this act otherwise specifically provided.” There is no provision in the appropriation bill that the appropriation for the Secretary of State’s messenger shall not apply to the fiscal year commencing November 1, 1887, and ending October 31, 1888, and I am, therefore, by the plain words of the act, driven to the conclusion that the Legislature intended to allow the Secretary of State for such sums as he may have expended, during the time mentioned, for the salary of a messenger, at the rate of two hundred dollars a year.

If the act merely undertook to cure the irregularity of paying money out of the State Treasury in the absence of appropriations, there might be ground for contending that it would not authorize the reimbursing of the Secretary of State for an expense paid by him, but the act is much broader than that, for it makes appropriations for the time that there was no appropriation act in force.

I answer your question in the affirmative.

The appropriations for the State Library considered.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State :

SIR—You ask me whether section 3 of the State Library Act or the deficiency appropriation bill shall govern you in drawing warrants for books and binding.

Section 3 of the State Library Act provides: “There is hereby appropriated, to be paid out of the general fund of the State Treasury, the sum of five thousand dollars, to be expended during the year beginning April 1, 1889, and ending April 1, 1890, for the purchase and binding of books for the State Library, and the sum of two thousand dollars annually thereafter for the same purpose.” The deficiency appropriation act, approved March 11, 1889, appropriates “for new books and binding for State Library for the fiscal year ending October 31, 1889, one thousand dollars.” Section 1 of the last named act provides that the appropriations it makes shall be in full of all "appropriations made or expenditures authorized by any existing laws for said terms on account of the officers, offices, institutions and services therein named." If the specific and the general appropriations mentioned, related to the same period of time, the holding would seem to be unavoidable that a repeal by implication of the specific appropriation had resulted, or at least the deficiency appropriation act had superseded the other, but the acts do not relate to the same period of time. So far as the appropriation act is concerned, there is nothing to prevent the expenditure of the $5,000 appropriation after October 31, 1889, and prior to April 1, 1890. For this reason, and because of the duty to so construe statutes, if possible, as to make both the earlier and the later enactments effective, I am compelled to hold that the deficiency appropriation bill did not of itself operate to repeal or supersede the specific appropriation mentioned.

A further question yet remains before the appropriation of the library act can be sustained on the ground that there is nothing to prevent the expenditure of the money after the fiscal year, and prior to April 1, 1890, and that is this: The general appropriation bill which goes into operation November 1, 1889, contains the same provision as that already quoted from section 1 of the deficiency appropriation act. No provision, however, is made in that bill for the purchase and binding of books, although the pay of the librarian and his assistants is provided for and an appropriation is made for "office expenses and distribution of documents." Does this act cut off the specific appropriation? After some consideration, I have concluded that it does not. The words "officers, offices, institutions and services," must be construed in connection with the subject matter of the act. Therefore, the appropriations to "offices" would ordinarily mean appropriations to meet contingent expenses of offices, where such expenses are expressly provided for, and appropriations to institutions should be held to relate to what the law treats as institutions. I do not think that it was the purpose of the Legislature by the provision under consideration to cut off expenditures provided for by existing laws, not enumerated in, and of a character different from the allowances made in the appropriation bill. It may be safely affirmed that the purposes of the provision was merely to prevent double appropriations.

I therefore advise you that section 3 of the library act is not repealed or superseded, and that the $5,000 appropriation and the $1,000 appropriation in the deficiency bill are cumulative.

"Consecutive days" means successive days.

Hon. Harvey M. LaFollette,

President State Board of Education :

SIR—You ask my opinion as to "What is the proper interpretation of the expression, 'twenty-one consecutive days,' as referred to in section 2, of the school text-book law, passed by the last General Assembly?"

In my opinion the words "consecutive days," can be understood to mean only successive days, or uninterrupted by any omission whatever. Such was evidently the intent of the Legislature in framing the phrase in question.

Where all three of the departments of State Government unite in affirming the validity of certain bonds issued by the State, the State will be afterward estopped to deny their validity.

Hon. J. A. Lemcke, Treasurer of State :

SIR—You have submitted for my consideration the following :

"Now that the Supreme Court of this State has affirmed the validity of the act of the General Assembly authorizing certain State officers to negotiate a loan to carry on the State government (Acts 1889, p. 390), can any possible question remain as to the validity of bonds duly issued by virtue of the provisions of that act?"

Although from the time I had completed the investigation of the questions presented by the objections which have been urged against the act you mention, I have not faltered in the opinion that the act was constitutional, yet in answering the question you ask I lay aside any predilections of opinion which I may have acquired, for I realize that what you desire to know, now that the Supreme Court of the State has held the act valid, is whether a contrary opinion by any person or tribunal as to the constitutionality of the act could cast even a shadow of discredit upon the bonds which you propose to issue under it. Thus understanding your question, I answer it in the negative.

The Supreme Court of the United States has said: "The truth is, States and cities, when they borrow money and contract to pay it with interest, are not acting as sovereignties; they come down to the level of ordinary individuals. Their contracts have the same meaning as that of similar contracts between private persons." Murray v. Charleston, 96 U. S. 432, 445, quoted approvingly in Gray, Governor, et al. v. State ex rel. Coghlen, 72 Ind. 567, 580. This being so, there must be some limit to the right of the State to plead ultra vires. It may be safely asserted that an estoppel occurs when all the departments of the government unite in affirming the validity of an act authorizing a loan to the State—thus establishing the act as a law of the land—and on the strength of such representations and rulings, and while they are in force, bonds issued under such act are negotiated. It may be a rough sort of justice which, under such circumstances, renders a State liable, irrespective of its fundamental law, but this principle is in accord with the sternest sense of morality, and it has been announced and upheld by the highest judicial tribunal in the United States. In Gelpcke v. City of Dubuque, 1 Wall. 175, the facts were that an act of the Iowa Legislature authorized cities to issue bonds in certain cases; the Supreme Court of the State had affirmed the constitutionality of the act. While this state of affairs existed, the city of Dubuque, acting under such act, issued and put upon the market the bonds in controversy. Subsequently the Iowa Supreme Court held the act unconstitutional. Upon the validity of the bonds coming before the Supreme Court of the United States, in the case mentioned, the court say: "However we may regard the late case in Iowa as affecting the future, it can have no effect upon the past. 'The sound and true rule is, that if the contract, when made, was valid by the laws of the State as then expounded by all departments of the government, and administered in its courts of justice, its validity and obligation can not be impaired by any subsequent action of legislation, or decision of its courts altering the construction of the law.' ”

In accordance with the opinion of the case from which I have quoted, I advise you that upon the issuing of the bonds in question, the door will be closed against all controversy respecting their validity.

A voluntary bond given by a contractor to the Text-Book Commissioners to secure the performance of a contract would be valid.

The Text-Book Commissioners may reject any and all bids.

Hon. Harvey M. LaFollette,

President State Board of Education :

SIR—You have submitted to me the following :

1. “Has, the Text-Book Commissioners, as named in the new text-book law, the right to require a bond for the faithful performance of the contracts entered into, and is said Commission limited as to the amount of bond required?”

2. “Does the concluding clause of section 2 of the act apply to the whole act, or only to manuscripts that are presented?”

1. I am of opinion that a bond which your Board might see fit to require for the faithful performance of a contract would be valid as a common law bond, although not required by the act. I refer you for an opinion on this subject to my published report, p. 45. The amount of the bond in such cases is within your sound discretion.

2. The last clause of section 2 is as follows: “And such Board shall have the right to reject any and all bids, and at their option such Board shall have the right to reject any bid as to a part of such books and to accept the same as to the residue thereof.” The proviso which precedes the above clause refers to manuscripts that may be donated to the State. The clause quoted clearly has reference to the proposals which the Board is authorized to receive. A bid involves the offer of a price, therefore a provision concerning the rejection of a bid can have no relation to a previous provision concerning a gift.

Consult opinion for the points therein determined.

Prof. H. A. Huston, State Chemist:

SIR—You submit to me the following:

1. "Can the State Chemist be required to make an official analysis in case no affidavit is submitted, or in case a defective affidavit is submitted?"

2. "After a sample and its affidavit is received, can the sample be withdrawn and another substituted for it?"

3. "After a sample and affidavit are received and the sample analyzed, is not the dealer or manufacturer required to take at least 500 labels, as provided in section 4895?"

4. "Can the State Chemist be required to report the results of an official analysis to the dealer or manufacturer before the tags or labels are ordered?"

I answer the first, second and fourth questions in the negative; third question I answer in the affirmative. There is no room for discussion over these conclusions.

An opinion as to the effect of a certain condition in a deed made to the Auditor of State in trust for the State for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the act for the drainage of the wet lands in the neighborhood of the Kankakee river.

Hon. John W. Coons, Secretary Momence Rock Commission:

SIR—You ask me as to the effect of a clause in a deed to the Auditor of State, in trust for the State, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the act for the drainage of the wet lands in the neighborhood of the Kankakee river. Acts 1889, p. 291. The clause is as follows: "Provided, however, And this conveyance is expressly conditioned that the State of Indiana shall, within five (5) years from the first day of November, A. D., 1837, cause the stone ledge at and above and below Momence to be removed for a space of not less than one hundred feet nor more than two hundred feet in width; and so as to lower the bed of the river seven feet at the highest point of said ledge; and should the State of Indiana fail to comply with this condition the Auditor of State of said State, or his successors in office, shall reconvey to the grantor herein, his heirs or assigns: Provided, however, That should the said State be stayed by litigation in commencing or prosecuting said improvement, the time of said prohibition shall be no part of the time limited for the completion of said improvement."

The clause quoted creates a valid condition subsequent which would operate to defeat the title of the State to the lands deeded, unless, within the time specified, the ledge be removed "not less than one hundred feet, nor more than two hundred feet in width, and so as to lower the bed of the river seven feet at the highest point of said ledge." To comply with this condition, the ledge must be removed so that the bed of the stream shall be lowered at least seven feet at the highest point of the ledge; the excavation to be at least one hundred feet wide at the bottom as well as at the top thereof, and it must extend the whole length of the "stone ledge at and above and below Mommence."

If the amount of money at the disposal of the Commission will not justify the undertaking of the work on the terms mentioned, I would suggest that new deeds be procured or that a modification of conditions in deeds like the above be obtained by way of releases. The statute provides for the execution of all deeds by May 1, 1889, but, in my opinion, this provision is directory and valid deeds may be taken subsequently.

An opinion as to the appropriations for the maintenance of the School for Feeble-Minded Youth.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—You ask me what appropriation or appropriations are available for the maintenance of the School for Feeble-Minded Youth.

Section 8 of an act concerning the school mentioned, approved March 5, 1889 (Acts 1889, p. 129), provides that the Auditor of State shall draw his warrant on the Treasury in favor of the Treasurer of the Board for an amount equal to fifteen dollars per month for each inmate, less the amount of money theretofore received for current expenses and not paid out or contracted to be paid out on account of the institution.

The deficiency appropriation act, approved March 11, 1889, contains the following: "That for the fiscal year beginning on the 1st day of November, 1888, and ending on the 31st day of October, 1889, there are hereby appropriated the following sums of money: For the maintenance of the School for Feeble-Minded Youth, thirty-nine thousand six hundred and ninety-two dollars and seventy-nine cents." Section 1 of the last named act provides that the "sums so appropriated shall be held to include all appropriations made or expenditures authorized by any existing law for said terms on account of the officers, offices, institutions and services therein named." Section 5 of that act repeals all conflicting legislation.

So far as the earlier act makes an appropriation for the maintenance of the institution, the conclusion can not be escaped that it is superseded.

I advise you to act accordingly.

A person who has taught for six consecutive years in the Common Schools of the State, and thereafter obtains a two-years license as a teacher, is, with certain limitations, exempt from the requirements of the general statute concerning licenses to teach.

Hon. H. M. LaFollette,

Superintendent of Public Instruction:

SIR—I am in receipt of the following from you:

"The last General Assembly passed an act relating to the licensing of teachers. Acts 1889, p. 85. The act provides that there shall be several grades of licenses, based upon the ratio of correct answers to the questions propounded upon the several examinations therein provided. These several grades are six, twelve, twenty-four and thirty-six months' license. In the latter part of section one of such act, in two instances, the twenty-four and thirty-six months' license are used synonymously. These questions arise by virtue of the contradictory terms named:

"1. What is the proper interpretation of this proviso?

"2. What grade of license is a teacher required to hold before coming within the exemption therein provided?"

The part of the statute you refer to is the last proviso which reads as follows: "Provided, further, That any person who has taught for six consecutive years in the common schools of this State, and now holds a two years' license to teach therein, or who, having previously taught for six consecutive years in said common schools, shall hereafter obtain a two years' license to teach therein, shall be forever afterward exempt from examination so long as he or she shall teach in the common schools of the county in which said three years' license was obtained; but if such person shall, at any time after said exemption accrues, suffer a period of one year to pass without having taught one full school year in the common schools of said county within said period, then said exemption shall cease; and if such person shall, during such exemption, seek employment to teach other or higher branches in the common schools of this State than those branches which are included in the examination upon which said three years' license was issued, then he or she shall be examined in such additional branches."

Looking at the act alone, there seems to be an irreconcilable conflict in the language quoted, so far as it relates to the term or life of the license necessary to create the right of exemption. The rule is that where, in a statute, there are clauses which present, as compared with each other, an irreconcilable conflict, the one last in order of date or local position must prevail, and the others be deemed abrogated to the extent of such repugnancy, whether the conflicting clauses be sections of the same act or merely portions of the same section. Endlich on Interpretation of Statutes, section 183, and numerous cases cited; Bishop on Written Laws, section 65; Sedgwick on Construction of Stat. and Const. Law, 2d ed. 353; Bacon's Abridgement, Stat. D.; State v. Williams, 7 Blackf. 314; Quick v. White Water Township, 7 Ind. 570. But before resorting to this arbitrary rule we must exhaust all legitimate means of ascertaining the legislative purpose, for "it is a rule of common sense as well as a familiar principle of law that statutes shall, if possible, be so construed as to accomplish the end which the Legislature had in view and not so as to defeat it." The State v. Blair, 32 Ind. 313. Laws are expounded and enforced, not made, by the courts. The makers are entitled to have their real meaning, if it can be ascertained, carried out. Hence the primary object of all rules for interpreting statutes is to ascertain the legislative intent. Bishop on Written Laws, section 70; Endlich on Interpretation of Statutes, section 73, et seq.; Sedgw. on Stat. and Const. Law, 2d ed. 193, 197.

We must put ourselves in the position of the Legislature, stand, in contemplating a statute, where the maker of it stood, the better to discern the reason and scope of the provision. They who voted for the measure must have had in mind a meaning for the enacted words, and the meaning thus perceived must be given them by the courts. Bishop on Written Laws, section 75. Formerly, in England, it was the custom of the judges to go to Parliament and inquire what they meant where the language of the statute was ambiguous or contradictory. Campbell's Lives of the Lord Chancellors, Vol. 1, p. 241; Spencer v. The State, 5 Ind. 41, 48. But now, and especially in this country, the courts go to the recorded history of the act while on its passage by the General Assembly, with the view of ascertaining therefrom the legislative will and intention in the enactment of a law. The Walter A. Wood Mowing, etc., Co. v. Clodwell, 54 Ind. 270; Edger v. Board of Commissioners, 70 Ind. 331.

The legislative history of the act in question shows that it was introduced in the Senate by Senator Johnson, where it was passed after being amended in some particulars. The bill then went to the House, where it was referred to the Committee on Education. The last proviso in the bill, as it passed the Senate, contained the words "three years" in connection with the word "license" wherever it is now found therein, and it went in that condition to the committee mentioned. That committee made the following report to the House :

Mr. Speaker.

Your Committee on Education, to which was referred Senate Bill No. 122, introduced by Senator Johnson, recommend that it be amended as follows : On page seven (7), line thirteen (13), strike out the word "ten," and insert in lieu thereof the word "six;" and on eight (8) by striking out the word "three" in line two (2) and insert in place thereof, the word "two;" and in line four (4) on page eight (8) by striking out the word "ten" and insert in lieu thereof the word "six;" in line six (6) by striking out the word "three" and insert in lieu thereof the word "two," and on page nine (9) in lines one (1) and two

(2) strike out the words "three consecutive years," and insert in lieu thereof the words "one year," and when so amended that said bill do pass.

GEORGE S. PLEASANTS, Chairman.

The report was adopted, the bill was amended accordingly, and passed by the House. The Senate then concurred in the House amendments. In that way the word "two" was inserted where it now appears in the last proviso of the act.

It thus appears to me that it was the legislative intent that the obtaining of a two years' license was one of the conditions precedent to securing the exemption named in the proviso. Why should the word "two" be substituted for the word "three," if such was not the legislative intent? It will be observed, also that the amendment reduces, in each instance, the time fixed in the Senate bill, so far as the proviso is concerned, thus showing a general intent to make the act more favorable to the common school teachers than as it originally passed the Senate.

Looking at the proviso in the light of its legislative history, I think it plain that it must be so interpreted as to require a two years' and not a three years' license.

I therefore advise you that a person who has taught for six consecutive years in the common schools of the State, and thereafter obtains a two years' license as a teacher, is exempt from the requirements of the statute concerning licenses to teach, under the limitations in the statute mentioned.

An opinion that the act of March 8, 1889, authorizing a loan for the purpose of paying off the school fund bonds of the State, is constitutional.

Hon. J. A. Lemcke, Treasurer of State:

SIR—You ask whether the act of March 8, 1889 (Acts 1889, p. 235), authorizing a loan for the purpose of paying off the school fund bonds of the State is constitutional.

First. The act you refer to authorizes such loan "to pay off the debt of the State, due the school fund of the State of Indiana, as evidenced by school fund bonds, numbers one, two, three, four and five." The bonds mentioned are based on the act of December 20, 1865 (Acts 1865, p. 54); the act of March 7, 1867 (Acts 1867, p. 28); the act of March 11, 1867 (Acts 1867, p. 21); and the act of March 11, 1873 (Acts 1873, p. 41). These acts, and the acts mentioned therein, as well as the act of March 8, 1889, are predicated on Article VIII, and section 5, of Article X, of our Constitution.

Section 2 of Article VIII declares what funds and properties shall constitute the common school fund of the State. Certain other funds and taxes are added to the common school fund by sections 4325 and 4465, R. S. 1881. Article VIII was considered in Greencastle Township v. Black, 5 Ind. 557, where it was said by Hovey, J.: "It was evidently the intention of the framers of the Constitution to place the common school system under the direct control and supervision of the State, and make it a quasi department of the State government. To control and manage this department, the Constitution provides for the election of a Superintendent of Public Instruction by the popular vote, and enjoins upon the Legislature the duty of providing by law for a general and uniform system, wherein tuition is to be without charge, and open to all. Placed in this condition, the State occupies the position of a parent to her children, whose duty it is to see that all are equally provided with the means of education. For the purpose of supplying such means, the Constitution authorizes her not only to use the funds heretofore set apart for that purpose, but to compel the elder brothers of the same family, by 'a uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation,' to aid her in carrying out the scheme, and as the diffusion of knowledge and learning is regarded by the Constitution as 'essential to the preservation of free governments,' it would seem but just that those who enjoy such a government should equally assist in contributing to its preservation."

The principle established by this case makes the common school system one of the departments of the State government, and the State, by reason of that fact, as well as by the command of Article VIII, is under the highest obligation to provide by law for its support. This is the general duty imposed upon the law-making department, and its power is full and complete. In the exercise of this power the legislative department makes use of a discretion which is uncontrollable. Quick v. White Water Township, 7 Ind. 570, 576. The acts mentioned having been passed by the Legislature, the courts will assume that the legislative discretion has been properly exercised, and will not attempt to control the manner of its exercise. The legislative action is conclusive on the subject. This is the doctrine of Hovey, Governor, v. Foster, No. 14,868, decided by our Supreme Court on the 26th day of April, 1889. The opinion in that case disposes of the fundamental question here presented, and I therefore advise you that all of the acts mentioned are constitutional in directing the making of the loans.

Second. Again, the acts cited are constitutional as having been passed in the exercise of the political power vested in the General Assembly by the Constitution. In providing for the making of such loans for the maintenance of the common school system, the Legislature exercises political power, which is defined to be "the policy of government or its administration, and may be exercised in the formation or administration of government, or both." People ex rel. v. Morgan, 90 Ill. 558, 562. The existence of the emergency calling for the exercise of the power is purely a political question, and the Legislature, as the body in whom the political power of the State is vested, are the sole judges as to the existence of such emergency. It is the exercise of a purely political power, upon a political subject, in no manner of a judicial character, and it is not, therefore, subject to review, or liable to be controlled by the judicial department of the State. The Legislature is, therefore, the proper judge of the construction to be given to the Constitution upon this subject. Franklin v. Board, 23 Cal. 173; People v. Pacheco, 27 Cal. 175; Cass Township v. Dillon, 16 Ohio St. 38, 41; Mississippi v. Johnson, 4 Wall. 475; Georgia v. Stanton, 6 Wall. 50; Story's Com. on the Const., section 374; 1 Bryce's Am. Com. 265. In passing the acts mentioned, the Legislature decided that it was necessary to make these loans, and that decision is conclusive.

Third. The fourth section of the act of March 8, 1889, directs that money thus borrowed shall be distributed to the counties in a certain ratio. This section is constitutional. Section 4, Article VIII of the Constitution. Quick v. White Water Township, 7 Ind. 570; Shoemaker v. Smith, 37 Ind. 122; Davis v. State, 44 Ind. 38.

Fourth. The fifth section of the act makes the counties liable for the preservation of the funds intrusted to them, and for the payment of the annual interest thereon. This section, also, is constitutional. Section 6, Article VIII of the Constitution; Shoemaker v. Smith, 37 Ind. 122; Davis v. State, 44 Ind. 38; State ex rel. Attorney General v. Board of Commissioners, 90 Ind. 359; Board of Commissioners v. The State ex rel. Attorney General, 106 Ind. 270.

I am clearly of the opinion that the whole act is constitutional.

Until a person elected to an office has qualified, his predecessor in office is entitled to the salary attached thereto.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—You have asked me to decide when the salaries of the new trustees of the insane asylum begin to run. In State ex rel. Carson v. Harrison, 113 Ind. 431, it was held that the provision of section 3 of article XV of the State Constitution is applicable to the officers you name. That section is as follows: "Whenever it is provided in this Constitution, or in any law which may be hereafter passed, that any officer, other than a member of the General Assembly, shall hold his office for any given term, the same shall be construed to mean that such officer shall hold his office for such term, and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified."

In State v. Niebling, 6 Ohio St. 44, it was held that the word "qualified" imports that the person elected has complied with the requisitions of the statute, by giving bond and taking the oath of office. To the same effect are Steinback v. State, 38 Ind. 483; State v. Bemenderfer, 96 Ind. 374, and the cases there cited.

By section 1, acts 1889, p. 120, such trustees must give bond, to be approved by the Governor. It is not a valid bond until it is approved by the Governor. Therefore, it follows that such trustees are not qualified until their bonds have met with the approval of the Governor.

Hence, I advise you that the new trustees are entitled to their official salaries from the time that they severally completed their qualifications by taking the oath of office and filing their official bonds to the approval of the Governor, and that their predecessors are entitled to the salaries which accrued prior to that time.

The buildings, machinery and pipes of a gas company or of an individual, on the lands of such company or individual or on the lands of another, are to be taxed as real estate. In the proper case, they may be taxed as additional improvements, under section 6391, R. S. 1881.

The pipes laid in roads, streets and alleys must be treated and taxed as personal property. Section 6295, R. S. 1881.

Rentals not yet due are not to be assessed, but those due and unpaid are choses in action, and should be taxed as personal property.

The capital stock of gas corporations is to be listed and taxed according to section 6357, R. S. 1881.

Corporate franchises should be taxed as personal property.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—You have asked me to answer the following communication put to you by a County Auditor:

“We have in our county a number of natural gas wells and pipe lines owned by non-residents, and through which gas is carried to various points outside of our county.

“We have also a number of wells owned by private individuals residing in this county, from which wells they are supplied, as well as some of their near neighbors.

“We have some private wells used only by owners in burning brick, tile, etc.

“A large number of our farmers and land owners have leased their lands to gas companies, for which they receive an annual rental, some in money, some in money and fuel, some only in fuel.

“What we would like to know is, to what extent this class of property is subject to taxation; on what basis should it be assessed and how is it to be listed?”

By section 6271, R. S. 1881, all real property within the State and all personal property owned by residents or non-residents is subject to taxation. So, whether this gas property is real or personal, it is clear that it must be listed and assessed.

Section 6272, R. S. 1881, is as follows: “The terms ‘real property,’ ‘real estate,’ and ‘lands,’ wherever used in this act, shall be held to mean and include, not only the land itself, whether laid out in town lots or otherwise, with all things contained therein, but also all buildings, structures, trees, and other fixtures of whatsoever kind thereon, and all rights and privileges belonging, or in any wise appertaining thereto.” In construing a similar statute, it has been held that the term “property in lands” is not confined to a title in fee, but is sufficiently comprehensive to include any usufructuary interest, whether it be a leasehold or a mere right in possession. State v. Moore, 12 Cal. 56-70. The term "property," as applied to lands comprehends every species of tittle, although it may be inchoate and incomplete. It is supposed to embrace those rights which lie in contract; those which are executory, as well as those which are executed. Marshall, C. J., in Soulard v. United States, 4 Peters, 511. See, also, 1 Desty on Taxation, section 66, p. 318. It is held that the lands, buildings, machinery and mains of a water company are all real estate, and subject as such to taxation, in the absence of a statute to the contrary. In re Appeal of Des Moines Water Co., 48 Iowa 324; Providence Gas Co. v. Therber, 2 R. I. 21.

Where land is owned by one person, and buildings thereon by another, the two are to be assessed separately, and the assessment of the buildings as real estate is proper. Cooley on Taxation, 367, and cases cited.

Turning to section 6273, R. S. 1881, we see that the term "personal property" must be construed to include, among other things, "all rights, credits and choses in action; all other credits or investments, whether within or without this State; and the shares of stock of incorporated companies and associations organized under any law of this State or the United States." In this connection I will state that rent in arrears is a chose in action and taxable as a credit, but rent to become due is a part of the land, an incident to it, passing as such to a grantee, and is therefore not subject to taxation against the owner of the land which is also taxed. Scully v. The People, 104 Ill. 349; Hull v. County of Luzerne, 93 Pa. St. 502. Shares of capital stock in incorporated companies of this State are listed by and assessed to the companies. Secs. 6357, 6358, 6359, R. S. 1881.

The mains and pipes of gas companies laid in roads, streets or alleys are to be listed as personal property. Sec. 6295, R. S. 1881.

Franchises granted by any law of this State, owned or used by any person or corporation, are to be listed as personal property. Sec. 6303, R. S. 1881. See, also, Stein v. Mayor of Mobile, 17 Ala. 234.

Applying these rules to the cases you put I advise you as follows:

1. That the buildings, machinery and pipes of a gas company, or of an individual, on the lands of such company or individual, or on the lands of another, are to be taxed as real estate. In the proper case they may be taxed as additional improvements under section 6391, R. S. 1881.

2. But the pipes laid in roads, streets and alleys must be treated and taxed as personal property. Sec. 6295, R. S. 1881.

3. Rentals not yet due are not to be assessed, but those due and unpaid are choses in action, and should be taxed as personal property.

4. The capital stock of gas corporations is to be listed and taxed according to section 6357, R. S. 1881.

5. Corporate franchises should be taxed as personal property. Sec. 6303, R. S. 1881.

A County Treasurer is not entitled to retain fees from the local tax for tuition, collected by him.

Hon. Harvey M. LaFollette,

Superintendent of Public Instruction :

SIR—You ask whether or not a County Treasurer is entitled to retain from the fund, fees for collecting the local tax for tuition, assessed and collected under sections 4469, 4470, R. S. 1881.

Section 4469 authorizes the trustees of civil townships, and of incorporated towns, and the common councils of cities, to levy annually, certain taxes on property and polls, which taxes are assessed and collected, as are the taxes for the State and county revenue. Section 4470 directs that “the funds arising from such tax shall be under the charge and control of the same officers, secured by the same guarantees, subject to the same rules and regulations, and applied and expended in the same manner as funds arising from taxation for common school purposes by the laws of this State.” This language is imperative. The money derived from this source of taxation has thrown about it every protection and guaranty belonging to the funds arising from taxation for common school purposes by the laws of this State; it is collected under the same rules and regulations, and is to be applied and expended in the same manner.

By section 4465 it is directed that "there shall be annually assessed and collected, as State and county revenues are assessed and collected, sixteen cents on each one hundred dollars of taxable property, real and personal, in the State, and fifty cents on each taxable poll, for the purpose of supporting a general system of common schools." The fund so collected becomes a part of the school revenue for tuition, and it is distributed to the several counties of the State according to sections 4477 to 4485, R. S. 1881. But the local tax for tuition, levied by virtue of section 4469, in compliance with the proviso in section 4470, is applied and expended in the same township, town or city, in and for which it was assessed and collected. With this exception, the local tax for tuition stands upon the same footing as the school revenue for tuition derived from general taxation under section 4465.

The funds known as "The Common School Fund," "The Congressional Township School Fund," and the "School Revenue for Tuition," are appropriated to and "applied exclusively to furnishing tuition to the common schools of the State, without any deduction for the expense of collection or disbursement." Section 4325, R. S. 1881. Section 6, Article VIII, of our Constitution provides that "the several counties shall be held liable for the preservation of so much of the said fund as may be intrusted to them, and for the payment of the annual interest thereon." To the like effect is section 4326, R. S. 1881. These constitutional and statutory provisions furnish the guarantees, prescribe the rules and regulations, and direct the manner of the application and expenditure of the tax collected under section 4470. In other words, the Constitution and statutes which I have cited put this local tax for tuition under the charge and control of the same officers, secure it by the same guarantees, subject it to the same rules and regulations, and require it to be applied and expended in the same manner as the funds arising from taxation under section 4465, with the solitary exception that the funds so assessed and collected under section 4469 go to the several localities named therein. Hence it follows inevitably that, if the county treasurer is not entitled to retain from the funds his fees for collecting the various revenues named in section 4325, he is not entitled to retain therefrom his fees for collecting the local tax for tuition, levied and collected under sections 4469 and 4470. It must not be forgotten that sections 4465 and 4325 are sections one and two of the same act, viz.: the act of March 6, 1865, and that the second section of the act, now known as section 4325, in plain terms includes the taxes mentioned and specified in the first section of the act, which is now known as section 4465.

The language quoted relieves the case you put from all doubt, in my judgment. But we are not without judicial interpretation of sections 4325, 4326 and 4465, and the constitutional provision quoted, for they were passed upon in Davis v. State, 44 Ind. 28; State v. Board, 90 Ind. 359; Board v. State, 103 Ind. 497; Board v. State, 106 Ind. 270; Board v. The State, 106 Ind. 531. In each of these cases it was held that the funds set apart for the common schools are trust funds of a class or character that can not be diverted, directly or indirectly, to any other purpose than that to which they are devoted by express law; that the counties are required to bear the expense of protecting and collecting the school funds, and that for money paid out of the school funds to its officers for the management thereof, an action will lie against the county. It is also held in those cases that the defense of the statute of limitations can not be interposed by the county when a suit is brought by the Attorney General against the county to recover money which it had paid to its officers for collecting and disbursing the school funds. These cases hold, also, that a settlement between the board and the officers does not constitute a defense.

I therefore advise you that a County Treasurer is not entitled to deduct his fees from the local tax for tuition which he may collect or disburse; nor is it competent for the Board of Commissioners to do it, or to permit it to be done, directly or indirectly, and that the county is liable for all amounts thus deducted or paid.

The voting precincts under the election law of March 6, 1889, should be formed at the June session, 1889, of the Boards of County Commissioners.

Hon. Chas. F. Griffin, Secretary of State:

SIR—You have asked me to decide when the new voting precincts are to be formed under the election law of March 6, 1889, acts 1889, p. 157.

The first section of the act directs the formation of such precincts by the Board of Commissioners "at their first session after the taking effect of this act." When does the act take effect? It contains no emergency clause. The second proviso in the last section of the act is as follows: "And, provided further, That the the provisions of this act shall not apply to any election to be held prior to the first Monday in June, 1890, and all elections to be held prior to said date of the first Monday of June, 1890, shall be held and conducted under the provisions of the laws now in force, and all elections to be held after the first Monday in June, 1890, shall be provided for and held under the provisions of this act."

In my judgment this language must be held to forbid the formation of new election precincts until the first Monday in June, 1890; all elections held prior to that time are to "be held and conducted under the provisions of the laws now in force." This can only mean that the election laws enacted prior to March 6, 1889, and unrepealed, should remain in force until the first Monday in June, 1890, and all elections held before the last named date should be "held and conducted" in accordance with such laws. Again, "all elections to be held after the first Monday in June, 1890, shall be provided for and held under the provisions of this act." This proviso, when construed with section one of the same act, and with section 5736, R. S. 1881, fixing the times for the holdings of the regular sessions of the County Commissioners, clearly directs, as it seems to me, that the new precincts shall be formed at the June session of the Boards in 1890, and not before. By forming them at that time, and not before, the local elections which occur before June, 1890, will be governed by the old law, and the elections to be held thereafter will be controlled by the new law, and thus every command of the proviso quoted will be obeyed.

I advise you accordingly.

Bidders for the furnishing of school text-books must accompany their bids by bonds for fifty thousand dollars, with sufficient resident freehold sureties.

The State Board of Education:

GENTLEMEN—I have received from you the following:

“Directing your attention to the Proviso, in the third clause of section two, of the act of March 2, 1889 (Acts 1889, p. 74), we ask your opinion on the following questions:

“1. Can we consider any bid which is not accompanied by such a bond as that specified therein?

“2. Is it sufficient if a bidder present a bond signed by himself alone, but accompanied by a certificate showing a deposit of fifty thousand dollars in a bank of this city?”

The Proviso, to which you refer, is as follows: “Provided, That any and all bids by publishers, herein provided for, must be accompanied by a bond in the penal sum of fifty thousand dollars, with resident freehold surety, to the acceptance and satisfaction of the Governor of this State, conditioned that if any contract be awarded to any bidder hereunder, such bidder will enter into a contract to perform the conditions of his bid to the acceptance and satisfaction of said board.”

This language is mandatory, and not directory. You are not allowed to use any discretion in the matter; your plain duty is to see that the command is strictly obeyed. Before you can consider a bid, it must appear that all of the provisions of the statute quoted have been complied with. The bond must be signed by a resident freehold surety. The deposit of money can not take the place of such surety. I answer both of your questions in the negative.

The Circuit Court, on appeal from the Board of Commissioners, in a contested election case based upon Section 4758, et seq., R. S. 1881, has no authority to determine that the office is vacant.

An office is not vacant which is held by the person lawfully elected thereto under his constitutional right to hold beyond his original term until his successor shall have been elected and qualified.

When the Circuit Court has determined that there was no election of a Prosecuting Attorney it is the duty of the Governor to call a special election, although one of the parties to the action has perfected an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Gov. A. P. Hovey:

SIR—You submit to me the following:

“At the last election William R. Asher and William H. Beaman were opposing candidates in the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit for the office of Prosecutor. The count elected Beaman by a few votes. Upon a recount Asher was declared to have received three majority. A contest was had, and upon appeal Judge Howland found that they had each received the same number of votes, and he rendered judgment annulling the election and declaring the office vacant. From this judgment Beaman prayed an appeal and filed his bond. Beaman was commissioned and has been exercising the duties of the office. Asher was Prosecuting Attorney. Who, if any one, is authorized to act? Does Asher hold over? Is Beaman authorized to act pending appeal? Is it a case for a special election? Does the Governor appoint pending the election?"

The proceeding had in the Morgan Circuit Court, as I learn from a transcript of the record, was a special one, based upon Section 4758, et seq., R. S. 1881. As the statute requires, the proceeding was begun before the Board of Commissioners. The jurisdiction of the Board was limited to a determination of the rights of the contestants growing out of the general election held in the year 1888. It follows, therefore, that the Circuit Court on appeal possessed no broader jurisdiction than did the Board of Commissioners. Jolly v. Ghering, 40 Ind. 139. From this consideration it results that the court's adjudication that the office was vacant must be held to amount only to a determination that no election had been had.

Until his successor is elected and qualified, Mr. Asher, unless he has become disqualified, holds over by virtue of section three of article XV, of the Constitution of the State. In Gosman v. State, 106 Ind. 203, 205, 206, it is said: "If no contingency has intervened to disqualify an incumbent from holding the office, or cut off his defeasible title, no vacancy has occurred merely because his prescribed term has expired, if in the meantime the right of his successor has not attached. In such a case, the body with whom the power to fill vacancies is lodged has no function to perform. The office is lawfully occupied by a qualified incumbent, whose title has not been defeated; it is not vacant. * * The right to hold over is not defeated or terminated by the election of a successor. The successor must have been elected and qualified." There is no claim that Mr. Asher has disqualified himself from holding the office, and it is, therefore, clear that no vacancy exists therein.

It remains to inquire whether it is your duty to call a special election to fill the office. Section 4731, R. S. 1881, provides that "a special election shall be held in the following cases: * * Third, whenever two or more persons receiving votes at any election shall have the highest and an equal number of votes for the same office." It is evident from the provisions of the statute quoted, that it is your duty to call a special election to fill the office in question, unless the fact that an appeal has been taken to the Supreme Court and a bond given operates to suspend the operation and force of the judgment rendered by the Morgan Circuit Court. Does the appeal have such effect? I am of the opinion that it does not. The only effect of an appeal to a court where the cause is not tried de novo is, when accompanied by the proper proceedings, to stay execution. So far as the intrinsic operation of the judgment in such case is concerned, it continues in full force until vacated. Thus, in Walls v. Palmer, 64 Ind. 493, it was held that an appeal and supersedeas from a judgment disbarring an attorney, did not permit him to practice pending the appeal. The court say: "The effect of the appeal and supersedeas is to stay the judgment of suspension as it is, and prevent further proceedings against the petitioner. It does not reverse, suspend or supersede the force of the judgment. That remains in all respects the same. The judgment itself requires no further execution than its own terms; it executes itself, except as to the collection of costs, which is stayed by the appeal and supersedeas. The only effect of an appeal to a court of error, when perfected and while pending, is to stay execution upon the judgment from which it is taken." To the same effect, see Montgomery v. Jones, 5 Ind. 526; Mill v. Comparet, 16 Ind. 107; Burton v. Burton, 28 Ind. 342; State v. Chase, 41 Ind. 356; Randles v. Randles, 67 Ind. 43; Hayes v. Hayes, 75 Ind. 395.

An adjudication, arrived at in the manner pointed out by law, exists in the Morgan Circuit Court, establishing the existence of the facts set forth in subdivision third of section 4731 supra, relative to the office in question.

I, therefore, advise you, that you may properly call a special election, for the election of a prosecutor in the fifteenth judicial circuit.

Upon the receipt, by an association, from the Comptroller of the Treasury, of a certificate that such association has complied with all the provisions required to be complied with before commencing the business of banking, and that it is authorized to commence such business, such association becomes a bank within the meaning of the taxation act. The fact that the capital stock is not all paid in does not exempt the stock from taxation, but such fact may be considered in assessing the shares.

A "share" in a corporation is a right to participate in the profits or in a final distribution of the corporate property, pro rata. The fact therefore that the certificates of shares in a bank organized prior to the 1st of April of a certain year were not issued until the 7th day of April, does not enable the shareholders to escape the taxation on their stock for that year.

For the manner in which such shares may be assessed, when omitted, so as to make the assessment a lien on the stock, see opinion,

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—You submit for my consideration the following letter from a county auditor:

"A national bank was organized on the 10th day of February, 1883, on the basis of a capital stock of $100,000, and on said day $61,730 of the capital stock was paid in by the stockholders, all of which except $9,761 was invested in United States bonds on said day, and said bonds were deposited with the Government to secure circulation. On the 5th day of March, 1883, the Government accepted the organization of the bank, so notified the association of stockholders, and issued a certificate of organization to the bank on that day. On the 7th day of April, 1883, the remaining 40 per cent. of the stock was paid in by the stockholders, and certificates of stock were issued to each stockholder for the amount of stock he had subscribed. On the same day the Government issued to the bank its circulating notes. Questions—

1. Were the shares of stock of said bank liable to assessment for taxes for the year 1883?

2. Did the taxes thereon for said year become a lien on said shares on the 1st day of April, 1883?"

But two restrictions exist, under the United States Statutes, upon the power of the States to tax the shares of stock of national banks, and they are—that the taxation shall not be at a greater rate than is assessed upon other moneyed capital in the hands of individual citizens of the particular State, and that the shares owned by non-residents of the State shall be taxed in the city or town where the bank is located, and not elsewhere. Section 5219, R. S. United States.

In assessing the shares it is not necessary to make a deduction in respect to capital invested in national securities. First Nat. Bank v. Concord, 59 N. H. 75; First Nat. Bank v. Petersborough, 56 N. H. 38; First Nat. Bank v. Farwell, 10 Biss. 270; S. C., 7 Fed. Rep. 518; Exchange Nat. Bank v. Miller, 19 Fed. Rep. 372; Phila. Contr. Co. v. Com., 98 Pa. St. 48.

When the persons proposing to organize a national bank have filed their articles of association and the proper organization certificate with the Comptroller of the Currency, have paid in 50 per centum of the capital stock of the association, have elected directors who have qualified, and have transferred and delivered to the Treasurer of the United States registered bonds, bearing interest, to an amount not less than thirty thousand dollars, and not less than one-third of the capital stock paid in, it becomes the duty of the Comptroller of the Currency, upon such facts being certified to him, to examine into the same, and if satisfied therewith, section 5169, R. S. United States, requires him to "give to such association a certificate, under his hand and official seal, that such association has complied with all the provisions required to be complied with before commencing the business of banking, and that such association is authorized to commence such business." Upon the receipt of the certificate mentioned, since the association is then authorized to do a banking business, I deem it clear that the association becomes a bank within the meaning of our taxation statute. The fact that the capital stock was not all paid in would not exempt the stock from taxation, but I am of opinion that such fact may be considered in assessing the shares. Section 6345, R. S. Ind. 1881.

I do not think that an exemption from taxation for 1883 can be claimed by the shareholders on the ground that the certificates of shares were not issued until the 7th day of April of that year. To so hold would be to affirm that the members of the association could entirely escape taxation on their interests in the capital stock of the bank, not only for 1883, but for the whole time that the corporation exists, by merely causing the proper officers to omit to issue certificates of stock. It is true that our statute taxes the "shares" of banks. It must be determined, therefore, what is a share in a corporation. Is such a share a certificate? It is not. In Field v. Pierce, 102 Mass.

261, it is held that "a share in a corporation is a right to participate in the profits, or in a final distribution of the corporate property pro rata." To the same effect is People v. Com'rs of Taxes, 40 Barb. 353. Section 5134, R. S. United States, provides that the organization certificate shall specifically state "the amount of the capital stock and the number of shares into which the same is divided," and "the names and places of residence of the shareholders and the number of shares held by each of them." As this organization certificate is based on the articles of association, it is clear that the respective rights of the several members to participate in the profits, or share in the final distribution of the corporate property, were established prior to April 1st, 1883. The corporators, therefore, owned "shares of capital stock" in the bank at the time last mentioned, within the meaning of section 6344, R. S. Ind. 1881.

2. Section 6348, R. S. Ind. 1881, enacts that "taxes assessed upon shares of bank stock shall become a lien thereon upon the first day of April of the current year, and such lien shall be in nowise affected by any sale or transfer of such stock." Omitted property may be assessed and placed upon the duplicate by the county auditor, under the act of 1881, as amended by acts 1889, p. 341. When such proceedings have been had, the taxes for 1883 will be a lien on the bank stock.

The eight hour law does not apply to the deputy warden, clerk and assistant keepers of the State Prison or to the convicts therein.

Hon. J. B. Patten, Warden State Prison South:

SIR—You have submitted the following to me:

"We would like an opinion from you on the eight hour law enacted by the late Legislature. Acts 1889, p. 143. Do the provisions of the law apply to the employment of convict labor by the State, or by contractors under any new contract that may be entered into by the officers or directors of the prison? Does it apply to the employment of guards and other officers of a prison? Is it to be understood that the law declares eight hours a full day's work for such persons?"

It was, doubtless, the purpose of the General Assembly, in passing the law you mention, to protect those persons who most need it, and who are most likely to suffer without it. The history of American legislation shows many efforts to give legal protection to those who are obliged to toil for others. All such enactments are predicated on the theory that such persons, without the aid of friendly legislation, are not able to cope with the capital and power belonging to employers. This is the evil which such statutes are expected to remedy, and in applying them, courts and officers should bear in mind the rule that they are to be construed liberally, in order to carry out the purpose of the enactment, suppress the mischief and advance the remedy contemplated by the Legislature. The objects of such statutes being to cure a weakness in the old law, to supply an omission, to enforce a right, or to redress a wrong, it is but reasonable to suppose that the Legislature intended to do so as effectually, broadly and completely as the language, when understood in its most extensive signification, would indicate, but we are not to go beyond its real object and scope as gathered from the language used when so interpreted. Endlich on Interpretation of Statutes, sections 103, 107, 108; Sedgw. on Stat. Const. (2 ed.) 308. We must study the language of the act in the light of these rules.

The statute under consideration gives its protection to "all classes of mechanics, workingmen and laborers, excepting those engaged in agricultural or domestic labor."—Section 1. As the terms used are not defined by the statutes, we must turn to the lexicographers and the courts for their definitions, for in such case, "words and phrases shall be taken in their plain or ordinary and usual sense."—Sec. 240, R. S. 1881. Webster defines the word "laborer" as follows: "One who labors in a toilsome occupation; a man who does work that requires little skill, as distinguished from an artisan—sometimes called a laboring man." The courts hold that it means the common laborer, the man who earns his bread by ordinary labor. Balch v. N. Y. & O. M. R. R. Co., 46 N. Y. 521; Wentroth's Appeal, 46 Pa. St. 57; Dano v. M. O. & R. R. R. Co., 27 Ark. 564; Taylor v. Hathaway, 29 Ark. 597; Weymouth v. Sanborn, 43 N. H. 171; Caraker v. Mathews, 25 Ga. 571; P. & D. R. R. Co. v. Leuffer, 84 Pa. St. 168; Whitaker v. Smith, 81 N. C. 340; Watson v. Watson Manf. Co., 30 N. J. Eq. 588. And it is held that it does not include officers of incorporations, nor those who render professional, scientific or supervisional services. Coffin v. Reynolds, 37 N. Y. 640; Ericson v. Brown, 38 Barb. 390; Atken v. Wasson, 24 N. Y. 482; Price v. Kirk, 90 Pa. St. 47; Lehigh Coal & Nav. Co. v. Central R. R. Co., 1 N. J. Law Rep. 103; Weymouth v. Sanborn, 43 N. H. 171; Schwacke v. Langton, 12 Phil. 402; P. & D. R. R. Co. v. Leuffer, 84 Pa. St. 168; Brockway v. Innes, 39 Mich. 47; Dean v. De Wolf, 16 Hun. 186; Whitaker v. Smith, 81 N. C. 340.

The word "mechanic" is defined by Webster as follows: "One who works with machines or instruments; a workman or laborer other than agricultural; an artisan; an artificer; more specifically, one who practices any mechanic art. * *" This definition has been approved by the courts. Gulledge v. Preddy, 32 Ark. 433; Berks Co. v. Bertelot, 15 Pa. St. 522.

Webster gives us this definition of the term, "workingman:": "A laboring man; a man who earns his daily support by manual labor." I have not been able to find any definition of the word by the courts. It seems to be nearly, if not quite, equivalent in meaning to the word "laborer." At any rate, the words used in section 1 of the statute clearly embrace all classes of working people not within the exception. In Leuffer v. Penn. & Del. R. R. Co., 84 Pa. St. 168, it is said: "When we speak of the laboring or working classes, we thereby intend those who are engaged, not in head, but in hand work, and who depend on such hand work for a living." These rules and definitions must be considered in applying the statute generally.

Does this statute cover those persons appointed by the warden of the prison, or the convicts confined therein? I think not, and for the following reasons:

1. The warden of the prison appoints the deputy warden, clerk and assistant keepers, who are usually called guards, all of whom take and subscribe an oath faithfully to discharge their duties. Section 6133, R. S. 1881. This statute designates them as officers, and they are held to be officers in Manning v. Mayne, 68 Ind. 285. As they are officers of the prison, and perform official duties in connection therewith, they can not be held to be laborers, mechanics or working men within the scope of the act you cite.

2. The right of the individual to his labor and liberty are subject to forfeiture as a punishment for crime, and the State Government, as the representative of society, is empowered to declare the forfeiture through the judgment of a court, under certain constitutional limitations. The most common mode of punishment is confinement in a jail or penitentiary. For the commission of serious or grave offenses our statutes provide for the incarceration of convicts in the State prisons, where they are required to perform hard labor for the benefit of the State, R. S. 1881, section 6138, 6142. Thus the product of their labor is taken by the State in payment, or at least in part payment, of the cost of maintaining the convicts. See, generally, on this subject, Tiedeman's Limitations of Police Power, pp. 97-101. To give such convicts the protection of the act under discussion would be to place them on an equality with free laborers, and that is not to be done unless expressly provided by the law you cite. There is no such provision in the act.

3. The acts for the government of the prisons (sections 6129 to 6161, R. S. 1881) are special in their character, for they relate to particular institutions and officers and to a special class of individuals. Having already given its attention to the particular subject and provided for it, the Legislature is reasonably presumed not to intend to alter that special provision by a general enactment, unless that intention is manifested by explicit language, or there is something which shows that the general one was intended to embrace the special cases within the previous one. Endlich on Interpretation of Statutes, sections 223, 229. No maxim receives more universal recognition, or is more rigidly adhered to by the courts in the construction of statutes, than that the law does not favor repeals by implication. To statutes enacted for a special purpose, such as the prison acts I have cited, this rule has peculiar application. Such statutes for the government of the prisons and the convicts confined therein, until they are expressly repealed or clearly modified, must be regarded as furnishing the guide for your conduct in everything connected with the management of the affairs of the prison and the control of the officers and prisoners. See, generally, State ex rel. Robinson v. Carr, 111 Ind. 335.

4. Thus far I have treated the act of 1889 as though it were a general one throughout, but it is not. The general language of section 1 is limited by section 2. In the latter section it is provided that "this act shall apply to * * all mechanics, working men and laborers, now or hereafter employed by this State * * for performance of labor on the public works of this State." This section narrows the range of the act, so far as the State and its officers are concerned, to the employment by the State of labor on the public works of the State. Convicts in the State prison are not covered by the terms of section 2, which furnished the rule of application. They are not employed by the State on its public works.

I am constrained to answer your question in the negative.

For points determined, consult opinion.

Prof. H. E. Stockbridge, Lafayette, Ind.:

SIR—I am of opinion that the power to appoint the "Committee of Experimental Agriculture and Horticulture of the Board of Trustees," is vested in the Board of Trustees. The regularity of the appointment of the committee would not be open to question in any suit growing out of any act on its part, for the reason that the law assumes its existence, and for the further reason that such a question can not be raised collaterally. Wilkins v. State, 113 Ind. 514, 521.

The Faculty of the School of Agriculture, and the committee mentioned, exercise the authority vested in them by sections one and two of the act, conjointly. The committee alone, however, audits all demands against the appropriation.

A surplus in the special school fund of a school corporation can not be transferred to the tuition fund and used for the payment of teachers.

Hon. H. M. LaFollette,

Superintendent of Public Instruction:

SIR—You have submitted to me the following:

"In case there is a surplus of special school fund, may it be transferred to the tuition fund and be used for the payment of teachers?"

Sec. 4467, R. S. 1881, provides "that the trustees of the several townships, towns and cities shall have power to levy a special tax in their respective townships, towns or cities, for the construction, renting, or repairing of school houses, for providing furniture, school apparatus, and fuel therefor, and for the payment of other necessary expenses of the school, except tuition."

The word "tuition," as it occurs in the above statute and elsewhere in the various acts relating to common schools, evidently refers to the salaries of teachers. See section 4325, R. S. 1881.

Although the statute under consideration, in terms, only prohibits the levying of a special tax for "tuition" purposes, yet I think its spirit would prohibit the using of any surplus of that revenue for the purpose mentioned for the use of the fund, for that purpose would render another or a greater levy necessary in the future to meet the legitimate objects of the tax, and thereby the people would be made to indirectly pay a tax for an object which the law provides shall be met in another way. The Legislature has seen fit, for a presumably wise purpose, to impose the limitation mentioned upon the trustees, and it is for the courts and officers concerned to place such a construction on the statute as will not render the legislative provision nugatory.

The printing, binding and stationery of the Custodian of Public Buildings and Property should be executed and purchased through the Bureau of Public Printing, when authorized by the State House Executive Council, and the cost thereof should be charged to the appropriation for State House supplies.

C. A. Bookwalter,

Clerk Bureau of Public Printing:

SIR—You ask me the following question :

"The act creating the office of Custodian of Public Buildings and Property, and making necessary appropriations (Acts 1889, p. 114), does not specifically provide the manner of payment for the printing, stationery, blanks and blank books of said officer. Shall such work be allowed upon order of the Executive Council created by said act, and paid out of the funds appropriated for such custodian, or shall the same be ordered through the Bureau of Public Printing and paid out of the general appropriation for printing, stationery and binding?"

The provisions of three statutes determine the question which you ask. Section 4 of the act you mention provides that "the custodian is hereby empowered, and it shall be his duty, to purchase from time to time such needed supplies as are required, under the orders of an Executive Council composed of the Governor, Secretary of State and Treasurer of State." * * Section 12 of the same act contains the following appropriation: "There is hereby appropriated annually for the fiscal years ending October 31, 1889, October 31, 1890, and October 31, 1891, out of the general fund of the State, the following sums, for the purpose herein specified and named: * * for necessary purchases and repairs, as in this act provided for, to be made by the custodian and engineer as herein provided, under the directions of the Executive Council, the sum of three thousand dollars annually." Section 6 of the act of 1885 concerning public printing, etc. (Acts 1885, p. 215), enacts that all the printing, binding and stationery authorized by law, at the expense of the State and chargeable to the State, shall be executed through the Commissioners and Clerk in this act before named." When the Executive Council presents a requisition for the supplies named, they are "authorized by law" within the meaning of section 6 of the act of 1885 above quoted.

I therefore advise you that the printing, binding and stationery of the Custodian of Public Buildings and Property is to be executed and purchased through the Bureau of Public Printing, when authorized by the State House Executive Council, and that the cost thereof is to be charged to the appropriation for State House supplies.

In seeking bids for the publication of manuscripts, the Board of Text-book Commissioners should advertise for twenty-one consecutive days in the papers designated in section 2 of the school book law.

There is no limitation on the right of the Board to advertise, but its appropriation therefor is limited to $1,000.

The effect considered of the statutory provision that the books adopted shall be at least equal to certain mentioned books.

The Board should not allow a publisher to modify a bid already made by substituting another book for the sample submitted.

Hon. Harvey M. LaFollette,

President Board Text-Book Commissioners :

SIR—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication requesting answers to the questions set out below :

“1. In seeking bids for the publication of the manuscript books are we, as the Board of Text-Book Commissioners, required to advertise for twenty-one consecutive days, and in the papers designated in section 2 of the school book law? Acts 1889, p. 71.”

The section of the act referred to provides that the Board shall “advertise for twenty-one consecutive days” in certain papers that at a certain time and place it will receive sealed proposals: 1—For furnishing books; 2—For manuscripts of books; and, 3—From persons willing to undertake the compilation of books. This section, you will observe, does not authorize the Board to seek bids for the publication of manuscripts. Section 4, however, provides that “if, upon the examination of such proposals, it shall be the opinion of such Board of Commissioners that such books can be furnished cheaper to the patrons for use in the common schools of this State by procuring and causing to be published the manuscript of any or all of such books, it shall be their duty to procure such manuscript, and to advertise for sealed proposals for publishing the same, in a like manner as hereinbefore provided, and under the same conditions and restrictions.” As the manner of advertising “hereinbefore provided” refers to section two of the act, I answer your question in the affirmative.

“2. Are we prevented from further advertising when the $1,000 appropriated for that purpose has been expended?”

The limit of your appropriation for advertising purposes is $1,000. Section 14 of the act. This section creates no limitation on your right to advertise. You can advertise further, although your appropriation is exhausted, if you can make the necessary arrangements with the newspapers.

"3. What is the proper interpretation of the language of section one of the law under consideration, with reference to the points of comparison? Will the falling below the standard in any particular (as quality of material or style of binding), prevent us from adopting such book, though the real value of such book be equal to the standard as a whole, through superior excellence in some one or more of the other points?"

Section one of the act provides that "the foregoing books shall be at least equal in size and quality, as to matter, material, style of binding and mechanical execution as the following text books now in general use, namely: * *" By this section the Legislature has established the standard of the several text-books required. You are not authorized to accept a book unless it is "at least equal" to the prescribed standard, in each particular mentioned in the law. I may properly call your attention, however, to the maxim, "De minimis non curat lex;" "the law cares not for trifles." This maxim may be applied in the construction of a statute, if the deviation is "a mere trifle, which, if continued in practice, would weigh little or nothing on the public interest." Broom's Legal Maxims, 147. I may also, properly suggest to you that as to those particulars in which a book submitted is not capable of a definite and tangible comparison with the designated standard, the determination of your board is conclusive, whether the book submitted be accepted or rejected.

"4. Is it proper for this Board to allow a publisher to so modify a bid already made as to substitute another set of copy books for the one named in his original bid?"

Section two requires publishers of school text-books who submit bids for the furnishing of such books, to accompany "such bid with specimen copies of each and all books proposed to be furnished." The law seeks, through the medium of competition and sealed proposals, to obtain the lowest possible prices for the required books. The inducement to each publisher entering into the competition to make the best bid possible, is the knowledge that he may fail to secure the contract, because some other publisher may submit a better bid. If, on the other hand, he may submit with his bid an inferior book, and in case of a better offer, or of the Board refusing to contract with him, he may, nevertheless, secure the contract by offering a better book, the temptation is not to submit the best specimen book at the outset, in order that he may first take the chance of having an inferior book accepted. To permit a change in the book submitted as a specimen, would be as vicious (if the bid was subsequently accepted) as to accept a bid made after the other bids had been opened. The purpose of competition and sealed bids is to induce each bidder to make his best bid at the outset. This is the only means of testing his mind. If it were lawful to accept bids subsequently made, the Board would only secure fictitious bids at the outset; each bidder would await the opening of the bids to ascertain the state of the competition, if any, and then trust to making terms with the Board; with such a practice in vogue, no inducement would be offered to a bidder to make the best possible offer, but he would only be justified in making an offer which would be lower than those of his competitors, and which would meet with the acceptance of the Board. Since the introduction of such a practice would utterly destroy the value of competition and sealed bids as a means of obtaining work or property at the lowest price at which it can be afforded, it must be held that the requirement of the statute that specimen copies of books offered shall accompany each bid is mandatory.

The new school book law is mandatory.

If a Trustee fails to obey the provisions of the law concerning him, he will be liable in damages on his official bond.

It is the duty of the Trustee to see that the adopted books are used in his schools to the exclusion of the old.

The Trustee may by rule provide that children who do not provide themselves with new books shall be suspended.

The County Board of Education can not enter into a contract with a publisher to use his books.

Mandate is a proper remedy if a Trustee fails to order or use the books provided for in the law in his schools.

Section 4436, R. S. 1881, is operative so far as relates to books not contracted for by the State.

Trustees must order all the books which in their judgment are needed to supply the pupils in their respective school corporations.

Hon. Harvey M. LaFollette,

Superintendent of Public Instruction :

SIR—You have put to me certain questions, which I copy and answer in their order :

“ 1. Is the new school book law compulsory upon the school trustees, or is it directory ? ”

The language of the act, so far as it defines the duties of the school trustees, is imperative or compulsory in its nature. See sections 7 and 8.

“2. Is the Trustee liable on his official bond if he refuses to make requisition or demand for the books provided for by the new school law?”

Section 7 of the act makes it the duty of the school trustees to certify to the County Superintendent the number of school books provided for in the contract which are required by the children for use in the schools of their several school corporations. That section defines the duty of a trustee in that particular. Section 5528, R. S. 1881, is as follows: “All official bonds shall be payable to the State of Indiana; and every such bond shall be obligatory to such State upon the principals and sureties, for the faithful discharge of all duties required of such officer by any law, then or subsequently in force, for the use of any person injured by any breach of the condition thereof. If a trustee fails to obey any command of the new school book law, he will violate the conditions of his bond, and will be liable in damages in an action thereon brought by any person injured by reason of such violation. See, also, Davis v. The State, 44 Ind. 38.

“3. Can trustees retain the old books in the schools and permit the pupils to buy only such books as are now necessary; or must they demand of the pupils that they buy all new books, as far as adopted by the State Board, in order to secure uniformity?”

The trustees are not allowed to retain the old books in the schools and permit the pupils to buy such books only as are now necessary. The trustees are not given any discretionary powers in such matters by the act under consideration. They possess such powers only as are given by the express terms of the act or by necessary implication. The last proviso of section 7 recognizes the right of school trustees to devise means and make arrangements for the sale, exchange or other disposition of such books as may be owned by pupils at the time of the adoption of the books under the provisions of the act. No other powers are given them by the act, so far as the books now in use are concerned. If the Legislature had intended that the trustees should have the power to permit the use of the old books, it would, presumably, have been conferred in plain terms, or would have been made to appear by the use of language warranting such an interpretation without doing violence to the ordinary rules of statutory construction. Again, it is apparent that one of the objects of the new law is to secure uniformity in the use of school books in the common schools throughout the State. Such uniformity can not be obtained if the pupils are allowed to retain the books now in use, for some of the pupils, by necessity, will be compelled to buy the new books, while others would be using the old ones, to the utter destruction of uniformity. Upon the trustees is cast the duty of selling the books and securing the desired uniformity. With this duty dwells the corresponding power to demand that the pupils shall buy the new books adopted by the State Board of Education.

“4. If patrons refuse to purchase new books and send their children to school with their old books, can they be compelled to purchase the newly-adopted books, with the alternative of having their children suspended from school? Can a child be excluded from school privileges for refusing to buy the newly-adopted books?”

The various duties enumerated in the act, or arising from necessary implication, devolve upon the officers of the law only, for none other than official duties are defined. The law, however, expects pupils to use the new books if they attend the common schools, but it does not fix any penalty if they attend the schools and do not use the new books. Therefore the question of punishment is necessarily left to the decision of the school authorities.

The Trustees have the power to prescribe by rule that the new books shall be used by all the pupils, and fix a reasonable punishment—such as suspension, or the like—if the rule is violated. This principle is established by the decision of our Supreme Court, in The State v. Webber, 108 Ind. 31, decided in 1886, the opinion being written by Chief Justice Howk. The accepted doctrine is that the general power residing in school trustees to take charge of the educational affairs of a district, or prescribed territory of any kind, includes the power to make all reasonable rules and regulations for the discipline, government and management of the schools within the district or territory. It is for the school trustees to decide what reasonable rules shall be prescribed for such purposes. Without such rules there is no way to compel the parents to purchase new books, or prevent the pupils from using the old ones.

“5. Will an unexpired contract between the County Board of Education and any other publishing company than those contracting with the State be binding upon the county represented by such board? Is a written contract, made or adopted by the County Board of Education, binding upon the corporations composing such school county?”

I do not know of any law which has authorized such a contract. If there is none, such a contract has no validity as against the new law. I presume you refer to the adoption of school books by the County Board of Education under Section 4436, R. S. 1881. Such an adoption is not a contract in a legal sense. The object of that law is to prevent the frequent changes of school books.

“6. If the trustees ignore the law, and use the books heretofore adopted and now in use, how can they be compelled to order the use of the new ones? If trustees order the books as required by law, and keep the same on sale, as provided by law, but fail or refuse to enforce the use of the same in the schools under their jurisdiction, how may such trustees be compelled, if at all, to enforce the use of such books in their schools?”

The remedy is the writ of mandate under Section 1168, R. S. 1881.

“7. What part of Section 4436, R. S. 1881, which prescribes the powers of county boards of education in the adoption of text-books, is repealed by operation of this law? In other words, can county boards hereafter adopt text-books in grammar, history, physiology, or any other branches in which text-books have not been contracted for by the State Board of Education, and if so, are such adoptions bound by the limitations of six years as heretofore?”

The section you cite is now operative to the extent that the County Board of Education can only adopt such school-books as are not covered by the contracts made under the new law by the State Board of Education. By reason of the new law the County Board of Education can do no more than adopt school-books not included in the contracts mentioned. The contracts nullify all previous adoptions of school-books embraced within the terms of the contracts. In other words, such adoptions do not prevail against the contracts made under the new law.

“8. Can trustees, in ordering books for their townships, order a less number than will be required, in their judgment, to supply all of the pupils in their respective school corporations?”

No, the statute says that they shall certify “the number of school text-books provided for in such contract required by the children for use in the schools of their several school corporations.” (See Section 7.)

In conclusion, I will say that the words “trustees” and “school trustees,” wherever used in this opinion, are intended to include township trustees and the school trustees of towns and cities. The territory under their control is the township, town and city, respectively. See in this connection Sections 4437, 4438, 4439, 4444 and 4445, R. S. 1881.

The Board of Trustees of one of the additional Hospitals has no power to allow extra compensation to its Treasurer.

Board of Trustees Logansport Insane Hospital :

GENTLEMEN—I am in receipt of a communication from you asking me as to the power of the Board to allow extra compensation to its Treasurer.

Since the Treasurer must be selected from the members of the Board, I am of the opinion that the provision of Section 5 of the act relative to the additional hospitals (Acts 1889, p. 68) operates as a limitation on the power of the Board to allow extra compensation for the performance of the duties of Treasurer. The authority of a Board of Trustees to fix the salaries of its members is much more delicate than an authority to them to establish the salaries of subordinate officers and employes. The former power the Legislature evidently did not see fit to intrust to the Board.

I advise you that extra compensation can not be allowed to the Treasurer of your Board.

For the points determined, see opinion.

Board of Trustees and Faculty of Agricultural School, Purdue University :

GENTLEMEN—I am in receipt of your request for an opinion upon the questions set out below concerning an act of the last session of the General Assembly entitled, “an act to encourage the study of agriculture, etc.” Acts 1889, p. 273.

“1. Have we the right to decide to hold institutes in thirty counties, for example, and not in the others? or is it our duty to endeavor to hold ninety-two institutes?”

If possible, institutes should be held in all the counties. You may only discriminate in the event that, with the most careful expenditure of the appropriation, you are unable to hold institutes in all the counties.

“2. Is the $5,000 appropriated in section three of the act, a continuing appropriation, or is it but for one year?”

The $5,000 appropriation is available at any time. It is not continuing, however, in the sense that there is any renewal of it at the next or any subsequent fiscal year.

“3. Can we use any of the $5,000 for advertising and postage needed to inaugurate the work, prior to November 1, 1889?”

Yes.

The Mayor of a city incorporated under the general law may act in the capacity of a Justice of the Peace in insanity inquests.

Dr. C. E. Wright, Superintendent, Indianapolis Hospital for the Insane :

SIR—I have received from you the following request for an opinion:

“Will you please advise me whether the Mayor of any city in Indiana is qualified to act in the capacity of a Justice of the Peace in insanity inquests.”

By section 12 of an act approved January 15, 1852 (1 G. & H., p. 378), it is required that commitments to the insane hospital shall be made by two Justices of the Peace. Section 17 of the general act concerning cities, approved March 14, 1867 (Acts special session 1867, p. 1), provides that the Mayor “shall have, within the limits of said city, the jurisdiction and powers of a Justice of the Peace in all matters, civil and criminal, arising under the laws of this State." It will be observed that the statute last cited gives the Mayor of a city the same jurisdiction within its limits as is possessed by a Justice of the Peace in all civil matters. The use of the word "matters" shows that the word "civil" was not intended to designate a strictly civil action but was used in its general sense. An insanity inquest is a civil matter, and as it involves the exercise of jurisdiction, I am of opinion that the Mayor of a city incorporated under the general laws for the incorporation of cities may, within the limits of such city, act in the capacity of a Justice in a proceeding to commit a person to the insane asylum.

A judge can not commit a boy to Reform School in vacation.

Prof. T. J. Charlton, Superintendent Reform School:

SIR—You have submitted to me the following question:

"Will you please state whether sections eight and nine of the act of 1883 relating to the Indiana Reform School (Acts 1883, p. 19), contemplate that a boy may be committed in vacation of court?"

After a consideration of the sections referred to, I am of opinion that a judge in vacation can not commit a boy to the Reform School.

It is unlawful to artificially color any vinegar.

Cider or fruit vinegars may be mixed with each other; malt and other vinegars made from harmless substances, not fruit or cider, may be mixed together, but fruit or cider vinegars must not be mixed with other substances.

Dr. C. N. Metcalf, Secretary State Board of Health:

SIR—You submit for my consideration the questions set forth below:

"1. Under the act of the last General Assembly entitled 'An act to prevent the adulteration of vinegar,' etc., approved March 5, 1889 (Acts 1889, p. 123), may cider vinegar be artificially colored?"

"2. Is the mixing of different vinegars permissible?"

1. Section 4 of the act you refer to is as follows: "All vinegars shall be without artificial coloring matter, and shall have an acidity equivalent to the presence of not less than four per cent. by weight of absolute ascertained acid, and in the case of cider vinegar shall contain, in addition, not less than two per cent. by weight of cider vinegar solids upon full evaporation over boiling water; and if any vinegar contains any artificial coloring matter, or less than the above amount of acidity, or, in the case of cider vinegar, if it contains less than the above amount of acidity or of cider vinegar solids, it shall be deemed to be adulterated within the meaning of this act. All vinegars not fruit or cider vinegars shall be without artificial coloring, nor shall they be mixed with cider or fruit vinegars, or in any manner changed to imitate a cider or fruit vinegar." It will be noticed that the first provision is absolute, that "all vinegars shall be without artificial coloring matters." In the next clause is the provision that "if any vinegar contains any artificial coloring matter * * * it shall be deemed adulterated." In view of these unqualified provisions there can be no doubt that it was the legislative purpose to prohibit the artificial coloring of all vinegars. The last sentence of the section contains no implied permission to artificially color cider or fruit vinegars, for that part of the section has no reference to the materials mentioned, but the prohibition is directed at other vinegars changed by coloring or otherwise to imitate cider or fruit vinegars.

2. The last sentence of the section before quoted contains the only provision in the act relating to the mixing of vinegars. It relates to the mixing of other substances with fruit or cider vinegars. Such an act is prohibited absolutely because of the danger, whatever was the purpose in doing it, that the product may be imposed upon the public as fruit or cider vinegar. Cider or fruit vinegars may be mixed with each other; malt and other vinegars made from harmless substances not fruit or cider may be mixed together. It is the mixing of fruit or cider vinegars with other substances which is prohibited, for the product would be an adulterated fruit or cider vinegar.

The Attorney-General is authorized to require counties to make up the amount of fees deducted by officers from the tuition tax levied under Sections 4469 and 4470, R. S. 1881.

Hon. Harvey M. LaFollette,

Superintendent of Public Instruction :

SIR—You ask me whether the Attorney-General is authorized to require counties to make up the amount of fees deducted by officers from the tuition tax levied under Sections 4469 and 4470, R. S. 1881.

As I have before advised you that the deductions mentioned were improperly made, I take it that your inquiry has reference to the authority of the Attorney-General in the premises. It is true that the Attorney-General act only authorizes that officer to collect moneys “where the same is by any law required to be paid to the State, or to any other officer in trust for the State.” Acts 1889, p. 124, Section 9. The question, therefore, narrows itself down to this: Is the tuition tax levied and collected by virtue of Sections 4469 and 4470, paid to the county treasurer “in trust for the State?” I am of opinion that it is. Money is paid in trust for the State where raised for its purposes, although it is paid to an officer for the purpose of having him distribute it to the local school officers. State ex rel. Hord v. Commissioners of St. Joseph County, 90 Ind. 359; Commissioners of Rush County v. State ex rel. Hord, 103 Ind. 497. In other words, the Attorney-General has the same authority to collect moneys which have been diverted from the objects to which the State directed them as he has where the moneys are payable directly to the Treasurer of State. Upon this proposition there is no room for doubt. Next, it may be laid down that the common school system of this State is a part of the State autonomy, and that the duty of providing for the maintenance of the common schools is devolved upon the State, and not upon localities. Section 1, of Article VIII, of the Constitution provides that “it shall be the duty of the General Assembly to * * provide by law for a general and uniform system of common schools, wherein tuition shall be without charge, and equally open to all.” One of the leading objects in the calling of the Constitutional Convention of 1851 was to create a uniform common school system throughout the State, and not to leave the establishment of schools in the various townships of the State to be questioned for the determination of their citizens.

In Robinson v. Schenck, 102 Ind. 307, Sections 4469 and 4470, were attacked on the ground that taxes for tuition purposes must be levied by the Legislature, and that the authority to levy them can not be delegated to the local school corporations of the State. The court in its opinion recognizes the correctness of the first part of the contention, but avoids the latter conclusion by asserting that the local subdivisions of the State act as mere instrumentalities in carrying out the duty devolved upon the Legislature. On pp. 310 and 311 of the report last cited the court say: "The provision that the Legislature shall 'provide by law for a general and uniform system of common schools,' does not mean that the Legislature must directly, and by a statute, levy all taxes for each locality, nor that they shall prescribe rules for every school district in the State. The reasonable interpretation of this language is that the Legislature shall, by a general law, provide for conducting schools and securing revenues from taxation for their support through the instrumentalities of government. These instrumentalities are such political subdivisions as townships, towns and cities, and they are instrumentalities to which local governmental powers may be delegated. There is nothing in the language used which forbids the Legislature from employing these instrumentalities in securing revenues for the support of the common schools. At page 318 of the same report the court, speaking of the constitutional provision quoted, say: "This provision imperatively enjoins the general duty upon the Legislature, but leaves to them much discretion as to the selection of means for the efficient performance of that duty, and if the local agencies of government are employed to assist in building up the school system, there is no evasion of duty by the Legislature. The Legislature may, in their discretion, support all the schools of the State by means of a general levy directly made by a legislative act, or they may thus provide for part of the expense of maintaining the schools, or they may delegate to local officers the power to levy such taxes as in their judgment may be needed to supply the wants of the local schools, and make them useful and effective." It may be remarked in passing that when the question of the validity of a statute authorizing the levying of a tax for school purposes by the local authorities was first before the Supreme Court, the statute was held unconstitutional because only the Legislature could levy a school tax. Greencastle Township v. Black, 5 Ind. 557.

Although the case of Robinson v. Schenck, supra, is probably the better reasoned, and operates to overrule the former case, yet the old case serves to lend emphasis to the proposition that mediately or immediately taxes for school purposes must be levied by the Legislature. In Root v. Erdelmeyer, 37 Ind. 225, 228, the court say: "These taxes for school houses are not levied for any purposes of cities as such, but for a State purpose in the fullest sense of the term. They are levied to carry out the system of common school education provided for by the State, and by virtue of the laws of the State." And again: "Thus each civil township in the State, as well as each incorporated city and town, is made an instrumentality, by means of which the educational purposes of the State are carried out. But when taxes are assessed by means of these instrumentalities for building school houses they are assessed for school or educational purposes, and not for municipal purposes." The force of the cases from which I have quoted upon the question in hand can not be escaped. Full recognition is given by all of them to the proposition that the tax is laid by the sovereignty through the instrumentality of one of its political subdivisions, and that the tax can not constitutionally be laid by the township, town or city as such. We find, then, that the moneys which have been misappropriated from the sources mentioned were raised by the State through the medium of taxation, and that the law requires such moneys to be expended for the benefit of the State's common school system. Under these circumstances it can not but be affirmed, as it seems to me that moneys received by county officers from the source mentioned were paid to such officers "in trust for the State." The proposition that the moneys derived from the tuition taxes constitute a State fund is maintained by the practical construction placed on the statute by the Superintendent of Public Instruction ever since its enactment, in requiring the amount of the tuition tax raised in each county to be reported to him. See table VI, State Superintendent's Report for 1889. The right of the Attorney-General to collect the tuition tax is even clearer than his right to collect the congressional fund. The congressional fund was created by the act of Congress of April 19, 1816, by which the sixteenth section in each congressional township was granted to the State in trust for the inhabitants thereof for school purposes. It was held in State v. Springfield Township, 6 Ind. 83, that the fund is not subject to the disposal of the State for the maintenance of its common schools. Subsequently, in Quick v. Whitewater Township, 7 Ind. 570, it was held that a law which required the reporting of the congressional fund to the State Superintendent and the apportioning of the aggregate amount of the congressional fund and the tuition revenue in proportion to the number of children in each school subdivision was constitutional so long as each of such subdivisions received its full amount of congressional fund. These cases thoroughly establish the proposition that the congressional fund is local, and yet the right of the Attorney-General to collect it has never been questioned, but has been recognized by the Supreme Court. State ex rel. Hord v. Com'rs St. Joseph County, supra; Com'rs Bartholomew County v. State ex rel. Baldwin, 116 Ind. 329. If the Attorney-General can collect a fund which belongs to and is expended in a locality, and which is merely reported to the State Superintendent, it does not seem that there should be any serious doubt as to his right to collect a fund which is raised by the State, belongs to its common school system, and is also reported to the State Superintendent.

I, therefore, answer your question in the affirmative.

A contract for natural gas or other fuel for the use of the State House can only be made by the Executive Council empowering the Custodian to make such a contract.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—You ask me to advise you whether it is the duty of the State House Custodian or of the State House Engineer to contract for natural gas or other fuel for the use of the State House?

Section 5 of the State House Act empowers the Custodian “to purchase from time to time such needed supplies as are required” under the orders of the Executive Council. The general language of this provision, however, must be restrained by the consideration that the Legislature only intended it to apply to purchases in his department. The State House Engineer is given no authority by the act in question to make purchases, other than for repairs, unless it be by the following provision of section twelve of the act in question: "There is hereby appropriated annually for the fiscal years ending October 31, 1889, October 31, 1890, and October 31, 1891, * * * for necessary purchases and repairs as in this act provided for, to be made by the Custodian and Engineer, as herein provided, under the directions of the Executive Council, the sum of three thousand dollars annually." The purchases mentioned in the provision quoted have no reference to natural gas or fuel, for a distinct appropriation of seventy-five hundred dollars is made for that purpose. The regular appropriation bill for 1889 and 1890 appropriates "for the State House Engineer, to be used solely for repairs of furnaces and machinery and purchase of supplies, two thousand five hundred dollars." For the reason already indicated, this provision can have no application to the purchase of natural gas or fuel. No provision is made as to who shall contract for natural gas or fuel, and, since the duties of both the Custodian and the Engineer are indicated with minuteness, I do not think that the right to exercise a power not mentioned, falls to either by implication. It must therefore be held that the Legislature has omitted to make provision as to who shall expend the appropriation in question. This omission can be supplied in but one way: Section 8 of the State House act authorizes the Executive Council to impose on the Custodian such duties as it may see fit, and the Executive Council might direct the Custodian to make the purchase. If that should be done, the Executive Council must approve the contract and the expenditure before you can lawfully issue a warrant for the money due on account of such purchase. See section 6 of the State House act.

The Concurrent Resolution found on page 452, Acts 1889, fixing a price on the Revised Statutes, is invalid.

Hon. Charles F. Griffin, Secretary of State :

SIR—You have asked my views concerning the Concurrent Resolution found on page 452 of the Acts of 1889.

Attorney-General Hord, during his first term of office, rendered an opinion on a similar question, which you will find on page 92 of his report for that term. I concur in that opinion. I wish to call your attention to the fact that the two resolutions are identical in legal effect. Each resolution is powerless and inoperative as against the statute fixing the price at which the Revised Statutes shall be sold.

I therefore advise you to sell the Revised Statutes at the price fixed by statute, and to ignore the resolution mentioned.

The Executive may pardon upon any condition not impossible, illegal or criminal, which the person convicted will accept. The Executive can not, however, by a conditional pardon, commit a person to an institution from which the law excludes him.

Hon. A. P. Hovey, Governor of Indiana :

SIR—I am in receipt of the following communication from you: “Application has been made to me for the commutation of a sentence passed upon one Dora Fitzpatrick, aged seventeen years, convicted in the Marion Criminal Court of grand larceny, and sentenced to the Indiana Reformatory for Girls and Prison for Women, to serve in the penal department for a period of eighteen months. I desire your opinion as to whether or not I have authority to commute the above sentence to confinement in the reformatory department of the said institution.”

The power of the Executive to pardon upon any condition which the convict will accept and which is not impossible, illegal or criminal, is comprehended within the general grant of the pardoning power. 4 Black. Com. 401; 1 Chitty’s Cr. L. 773; Lee v. Murphy, 22 Gratt. 789; ex parte Wells, 18 How. 307; Osborn v. U. S., 91 U. S. 474; Flavell’s Case, 8 Watts and S.

197; State v. Addington, 2 Bailey 516; Perkins v. Stevens, 24 Pick. 277; People v. Potter, 1 Park. C. C. 47; S. C. Edm. Sel. Cas. 235. It would be a valid condition that the prisoner should submit to a punishment known to the law, but not pronounced by the Court. Lee v. Murphy, supra.

The measure of the Executive power in this case would be ample, were the convict alone concerned, but the action suggested would infringe upon the rights of others. The reformatory department of the institution you mention is, as its name indicates, reformatory in its character. Section 2 of the act of March 9, 1889 (Acts 1889, p. 322), is as follows: "That commitments under existing law, or laws which may be hereafter passed, to the reformatory department of the institution mentioned in section one of this act, may be made to read for girls not under eight nor over fifteen years of age." Section 6194, R. S. 1881, provides that "whenever an inmate of the penal department, by continuous good conduct, gives evidence of permanent reformation, she may, in like manner, be transferred to the reformatory department on probation, and may be continued therein so long as her conduct, in the opinion of the Board of Managers and Superintendent, may justify it." This legislation evinces a purpose upon the part of the General Assembly to prevent the admission of girls to the reformatory department who have passed the age of fifteen years, thereby having additional opportunity to become inured to sin, except where they have, under the eye of the management and to its satisfaction, given evidence of permanent reformation.

The management is charged with the duty of seeking the reformation of girls who have been sent to the reformatory department at ages so immature that, with proper training, it may be reasonably hoped to correct their evil tendencies, and it is not liable, in the absence of some provision authorizing it, to have a girl of seventeen years of age, or older, sent there without its consent, who may be hardened in sin and only a fit associate for confirmed criminals. There is no legislation on the subject of the admission of girls to the reformatory department other than that which I have quoted.

I therefore advise that the only way in which a transfer of a convict may be made from the penal to the reformatory department is by the direction of the management of the institution under section 6194, supra.

Consult opinion for points therein determined.

C. E. Wright, Superintendent Central Hospital for Insane:

SIR—You submit the following for my consideration :

“Section 6, p. 394, Acts 1889, provides that the Hospital authorities shall make inquiry as to the values of estates of patients, and in case said estates are adequate to meet the cost of maintenance, that the trustees shall take such action as shall reimburse the State for such cost.

“1. Does this law cover the cost of clothing as well as maintenance?

“2. Is the individual estate of a patient only liable, or may a parent be held responsible for the maintenance of a minor, a husband for a wife, etc.?

“3. When shall suit be brought or collection made, monthly, quarterly, annually, during or after the sojourn of a patient in the Hospital?

“4. Who shall bring suit and how shall cost of suit be defrayed?”

1. I am of opinion that the law intends that, where possible, the State shall be indemnified for the cost of necessary clothing furnished the patient by it, as well as for the cost of other maintenance.

2 The estate of the patient is solely liable.

3. The Board may bring an action whenever any part of a demand accrues.

4. It is the duty of the Board to bring the suit as relators. I think that the Board is authorized, by implication, to allow a reasonable attorney's fee, for services in prosecuting the suit, out of the moneys collected. No liability for costs attaches in a case of this kind. See Acts 1885, p. 239.

Persons committed to the insane hospital from Henry County should be sent to the hospital at Richmond.

C. E. Wright, Superintendent Central Hospital for Insane:

SIR—I am in receipt of the following from you :

“In section 1, p. 392, Acts 1889, the counties comprising the northern, central, eastern and southern districts for the insane are enumerated, but through an evident mistake the name of Henry County was omitted. We have been admitting patients from that county into this hospital, and shall continue to do so unless you decide that said county belongs to the eastern district. Will you please inform me of your opinion at once, for, while the hospital at Richmond is not in operation, this information will be needed next month in compiling our annual report."

Evidently the failure to provide what hospital the patients from Henry County should be sent to was a casus omissus, and since that county is surrounded by counties which are in the eastern district, the Legislature would evidently have put it in that district had it not been omitted. Indeed, it might be said that the placing of all the counties surrounding the county of Henry in the eastern district, operates ipso facto to place that county in the same district. I therefore advise you to treat Henry County as in the eastern district.

If there is an "indispensable public necessity" for the employment of a clerk in the office of the County Superintendent, the Commissioners may order the employment by entering a finding of the above fact of record.

A claim for allowance on such account must be filed for at least ten days prior to the time at which the allowance is made.

Hon. H. M. LaFollette, Superintendent of Public Instruction :

SIR—I have received from you the following:

"In many counties of the State, the work in the office of the County Superintendents is so heavy since the passage of the new text-book law, that this work can not be done by a single person though he works every working day of the year. How may County Commissioners legally allow such superintendents for the necessary clerk hire to enable them to have the work of their offices done promptly and properly?"

If there is an "indispensable public necessity" for the employment of a clerk, for all or part of the time, in the office of the County Superintendent, the Commissioners of the county may order the employment by entering a finding of the above fact of record. No allowance can, however, be made on such account unless the clerk's claim for compensation has been on file for ten days prior to the term at which it is proposed to obtain an allowance, in order that any tax-payer may be afforded an opportunity to contest the claim. Section 5,766, R. S. 1881

The mere announcement of a right in its policies, by a mutual life insurance company, to buy up such of its risks as it sees fit upon certain terms, in case the holders of the certificates desired will surrender them, does not violate the statute prohibiting the issuance of endowment certificates.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—You submit for my consideration the following :

“The Masonic Mutual Benefit Society of Indiana is a corporation organized under the laws of this State for the purpose of doing business on the assessment plan, and has authority from my office to do business. Section 2, Article VII of its by-laws is as follows: ‘Any member having reached the age of fifty-five years, and having paid assessments for a period of twelve consecutive years next preceding, may surrender his certificate of membership and receive in lieu thereof, as the cash surrender value of such certificate, a sum equal to fifty per centum of the mortuary assessments paid by such member, provided such payment shall be made only out of the special fund created for that purpose, and then only at the discretion of the Board of Directors.’ For the purpose of meeting such surrender values, Section 4 of Article IX of the by-laws provides as follows: ‘All sums collected from annual dues shall be set apart as a special fund and used exclusively for the purpose of paying cash surrender values of certificates, as provided by Section 2, Article VII, and when such sums shall, in the judgment of the Board of Directors, exceed the amount necessary for the payment of such surrender values, the excess shall be invested in interest-bearing securities, subject to the approval of the Board of Directors.’ Please give me your opinion as to whether or not said Section 2, Article VII of the by-laws of said society, as stated above, is in conflict with the act of March 9, 1883, on the subject of assessment companies, and particularly as to whether or not said section of its by-laws is in conflict with Section 7 of said act.”

That part of Section 7 of the insurance act mentioned which is pertinent to your inquiry is as follows: “No corporation, association or society organized under the provisions of this act, shall issue endowment certificates or policies undertaking or promising to pay members during life, excepting for accident or temporary illness, any stipulated sum of money.” To fall within the prohibition of that part of the statute quoted, there must be such an undertaking or agreement on the part of an assessment company as would give a member the right, upon the performance of the conditions devolved upon him, to coerce payment from the company after a certain period of time had elapsed. It will be observed that Section 2 of Article VII of the by-laws of the company in question does not give to the several members a right, when they have attained the age of fifty-five years, after having paid assessments for twelve years immediately prior thereto, to compel the payment of fifty per cent. of the mortuary assessments paid by them severally; that section merely provides for the surrender of a certificate of membership on the terms mentioned in case the directors of the company see fit to accept it. Such a provision amounts to nothing more than the announcement of a right upon the part of the company that would seem to be inherent in every insurance company to buy up its own policies, in case it can make terms with the holders. The judicious exercise of such a right would be manifestly to the interest of the company, for the opportunity must, in the nature of things, be frequently afforded it to buy up a risk that would be no longer desirable. In my opinion the provision of our statute which I have quoted was intended to prevent the embarrassment of assessment companies by reason of maturing endowment undertakings, that but for the statute they could not avoid.

I advise you that the by-laws submitted do not in any manner conflict with the insurance act mentioned.

A rule of a Board of County Commissioners requiring applicants for licenses to sell intoxicating liquors to pay the license fee at the time of filing the application, is invalid.

Such a payment, the rule being invalid, is voluntary, and the license fee can not be recovered by the applicant in case his application is rejected.

Hon. Harvey M. LaFollette,

Superintendent of Public Instruction:

SIR—You submit for my consideration the following:

“A person pays into a county treasury one hundred dollars, under a rule of the commissioners requiring applicants for liquor license to pay the license fee at the time of filing the application. Can he recover the money so paid in case his application is subsequently rejected?”

Section 5314, R. S. 1881, provides for the giving of notice of the purpose to apply for a license to sell intoxicating liquors. The next section requires the commissioners to grant the license, on condition that a proper bond be filed, in case such applicant "be a fit person to be intrusted with the sale of intoxicating liquors, and if he be not in the habit of becoming intoxicated." Section 5318 directs that "upon the execution of the bond, * * the presentation of the order of the board of commissioners granting him license, and the county treasurer's receipt" for the license fee, the county auditor shall issue the license. It will thus be seen that the act on the subject of the granting of licenses by counties to sell intoxicating liquor makes definite provision for even the minutia of the procedure. The first step is notice, the second is to obtain the order of the board, and the third is to tender to the auditor the bond required and the treasurer's receipt for the fee. What is to be said of a rule that varies this procedure by making a part of the third step a part of the second? Granting, although there is no statute authorizing it, that a board of commissioners, as a court, possesses the power to establish and enforce such reasonable rules concerning procedure before it as do not conflict with law, yet I do not think the rule in question a valid one, for the reason that it contravenes the law by changing the procedure for the obtaining of a liquor license. As was said in Cates v. Mack, 6 Colo. 401, 403: "A rule of court can not supersede a statute." In Hichernell v. Bank, 62 Pa. St. 146, the court lay down the doctrine that where a law has fixed its own terms for the exercise of a right under it, it is inconsistent with its terms to impose harder and additional terms. Courts may, by reasonable rules, supplement, but they can not vary the procedure. In my opinion, the rule in question is void.

It is upon the question as to the validity of the rule, as it seems to me, that the right of the applicant to recover his money depends. If the rule were valid, so that the payment of the money could be said to have been a condition precedent to the granting of the license by the commissioners, I should not be prepared to affirm that in case the application was rejected, the payment would have been voluntary, but if I am right in the conclusion that the applicant was not bound to observe the rule, it is clear that he has voluntarily parted with his money and can not recover it. It has been held in a number of cases that money paid for a liquor license could not be recovered, although the ordinance providing for the license was void, unless the money was paid under protest and because the officers of the municipality were about to seize the property, or arrest the person of the licensee, on account of the supposed demand. Town v. Ackerman, 46 Ind. 552; Town v. McCammon, 51 Ind. 264; Town v. Hackney, 54 Ind. 83; Town v. Cress, 55 Ind. 14. The case of Board v. Kreuger, 88 Ind. 231, is very much like the one in hand. In that case suit was brought to recover a ratable proportion of the license fee, the money having been paid after the granting of the license by the board of commissioners, but the application having been defeated on appeal by the remonstrants. The court say: "It was for the appellee to decide for himself whether he would pay out his money upon the order of the board granting the license, or wait until the final determination of his application on appeal. He chose, without compulsion, to pay the one hundred dollars and take the license upon the order of the board. His confidence in the merits of his application and his desire to engage in business at once may have determined his choice, but he must be understood to have acted in view of the right of the remonstrants to appeal, and with reference to the results that might follow. He knew that in making the order the board was acting judicially and at his instance; he also knew that in thus acting on his application the board had no power to create any obligation that would be in any way binding on the county." In the case you put, the applicant unnecessarily parted with his money before the license was granted, with a full knowledge that the board might refuse to license him, and it must therefore be held, upon the abundant authority cited, that his payment was voluntary and can not be recovered.

An opinion as to the validity of the articles of incorporation of the National Accident Association of Indianapolis, Indiana.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—I am in receipt of the following communication from you: "I herewith submit, for your examination, the articles of incorporation of the National Accident Association of Indianapolis, Indiana. After a careful and critical reading of every section of the same, I unhesitatingly certified the National Accident Association to be a corporation legally organized under the laws of Indiana to conduct the business of accident insurance on the assessment plan. I submit said articles to you, and ask your opinion as to whether said articles contain any provision or condition in conflict with existing laws relative to insurance on the assessment plan."

In answer, I have to advise you that I have carefully examined the articles of association submitted with your communication, and that I find nothing in said articles which in any manner conflicts with the laws of Indiana.

The duties of a County Auditor pointed out where there has been an omission to charge a railroad company with taxes.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—You have informed me that some of the county auditors, in recent years, have failed to put on the tax duplicates the correct valuations of the assessments and equalizations against certain railroads made by the State Board of Equalization, as certified to the county auditors by the Auditor of State; that by reason thereof, the State has not been paid the full amount of taxes due to it and to the school fund, and you ask me what the remedy is in such cases.

The duties of the Auditor of State, so far as they relate to the certifying of the assessments and equalizations made against railroad property, are defined in Sections 6410, 6412, R. S. 1881; and the duties of the county auditors are prescribed by Sections 6372 and 6410, R. S. 1881. So far as material to the question in hand, Section 6372 is as follows: "The county auditor shall enter the railroad property of all kinds, as listed for taxation, upon the proper tax duplicate, and shall enter the valuation as assessed, corrected and equalized in the manner provided by this act, and against such assessed, corrected or equalized valuation, as the case may require, the county auditor shall compute and extend all taxes for which said property is liable." Section 6410 directs that the county auditors shall distribute the values so certified to them by the Auditor of State to the several townships, cities and towns in their counties which are entitled to a proportionate value of such railroad track and rolling stock, and that said auditors shall compute and extend taxes against such values the same as against other property in such townships, cities and towns. These provisions are mandatory, and public interests should not suffer from their non observance.

No question can exist as to the right of a county auditor to correct the tax duplicate of his county by putting thereon the correct assessments and valuations of railroad property subject to taxation in that county. The companies have their day in court while the State Board of Equalization is in session; every step is there taken to fix the valuation on which each company in the State shall pay taxes. The result of the proceedings of the Board is duly promulgated to the county auditors by the Auditor of State, and no duty other than the mere ministerial one of extending the valuations thus established and made known is devolved upon the auditors of the counties. The failure of a county auditor to do this is a mere misprision and can not affect the rights of the public. In Cooley on Taxation (2 ed.), 316, it is said: "Where the defect consists merely in the failure to copy into a book of records, the official document which evidences some legal transaction, the proper recording officer may correct it at any time by making the required record. This may be done by the officer who should have done it in the first place, or it may be done by his successor in office." See, also, page 314 of the same work. This is the rule, irrespective of statute, but we have a statutory provision which is applicable. It is as follows: "He (the county auditor) shall, from time to time, correct all errors which he may discover in his duplicate, either in the name of the person charged with taxes, the description of the property, or the amount of tax charged, and when such correction is made after the duplicate shall have been delivered to the treasurer for collection, the auditor shall give a certificate of such correction to the treasurer, who shall make the like correction on his duplicate, and keep such certificate as his voucher on settlement with the auditor." Section 6421, R. S. 1881.

If there should be a case where there was an entire omission to charge a company with taxes, the auditor should proceed under the statute prescribing his duties in case property subject to taxation is omitted from the duplicate. Section 6416, R. S. 1881. But in a case where a company has been charged with a less valuation for taxation, in the local subdivisions of a county, than the proper valuations therein, it is the duty of the county auditor to immediately correct the tax duplicate, so as to make it conform with the assessments and equalizations made by the State Board of Equalization and certified by the Auditor of State.

A secret or fraternal society, lodge or association, which, under the supervision of a grand or supreme lodge, secures membership through the lodge system exclusively, thereby providing insurance for its members, is not under the supervision of the Auditor of State.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State:

SIR—You have addressed me a communication concerning the Order of Equity, in which you say: “The order has been duly organized as a secret, charitable and fraternal organization on the lodge system, issuing certificates or policies of insurance to its members on the mutual or assessment plan; the entire business of the Order is under the control of a supreme and district lodge upon representation from the subordinate lodges. The articles of association have been filed and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Marion County, Indiana. The questions on which your opinion is desired are these:

“1. Has the order the right and privilege of issuing certificates of insurance to its members?

“2. Does the exemption clause of the general insurance laws of the State exempt the Order and its operations from the requirements of said laws and from the official supervision of the Auditor of State?”

I have examined the articles of association of the Supreme Council, Order of Equity, and the Constitution thereof, and am of opinion that it is legally incorporated, and has the power to issue certificates of insurance to its members. As a general rule, assessment life insurance companies are governed by the Act of March 9, 1883, but this company is exempted from the provisions of that Act by reason of the language of Section 18, of the Act, which is as follows: “The provisions of this Act shall in no way apply to any secret or fraternal society, or lodge, or association, which, under the supervision of a grand or supreme lodge, secures membership through the lodge system exclusively, and provides insurance to its members."

Therefore, I advise you that the Order of Equity is not under the supervision of the Auditor of State.

Money can not be appropriated by joint resolution.

An appropriation which has expired by its own limitation can not be revived by joint resolution.

A joint resolution may be effectual to impose a duty upon an officer.

Hon. Bruce Carr, Auditor of State :

SIR—You ask me as to your authority to issue warrants on the State Treasury in payment of claims found to be due by the commission constituted by the following provision of the General Assembly. (Acts 1889, p. 230):

"WHEREAS, An Act of the General Assembly, approved April 8, 1885, appropriated money to pay the members of certain regiments of the Indiana Legion, and of independent companies of militia and minute men, for service rendered under orders from the Governor during the Rebellion, and constituted the Governor, the Adjutant-General and the Auditor of State a board to audit and adjust and pay these claims; and,

"WHEREAS, Said act has not been complied with, so far as the company of J. W. Mullen, of Madison, Indiana, is concerned; and,

"WHEREAS, Said company rendered three months' service under orders from the Governor during the Rebellion, for which they have not, at any time, received any compensation; therefore,

"Resolved by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring, That the Governor, or the Auditor of State, and the Adjutant General, be, and they are hereby appointed a commission to proceed to Madison, Jefferson County, at which place the aforesaid company was raised and mustered, and hear testimony as to the services performed by said claimants, and audit, compute and allow to said claimants such sums as they are entitled to under the law, and that the actual and necessary expenses of said commission in regard to said matter be paid out of the appropriation before mentioned."

Section 3, of article 10, of the State Constitution provides that "no money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in pursuance of appropriations made by law." Section 1 of article 4, of the same instrument contains the following: "The style of every law shall be: 'Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana,' and no law shall be enacted except by bill." Literally construed, the above provisions require that appropriations shall be made by law; that such laws shall have the formal commencement mentioned, and be enacted by bills. Are these provisions to be given a literal construction? The question is not open to doubt. To do otherwise in a case like this, where the meaning is not obscure, is to hold that the framers of the organic law did not carefully consider the effect of their words. It is settled doctrine that in interpreting and giving effect to a constitution, courts are bound to intend that the convention which framed it very carefully, weighed and considered the effect of all its provisions. In State ex rel. Hovey v. Noble et al., 118 Ind. 350, 353, it is said by Elliott, C. J., speaking for the court: "But written constitutions are the product of deliberate thought. Words are hammered and crystallized into strength, and if ever there is power in words, it is in the words of a written constitution." The provision to which you direct my attention is not in the form of a law, but is a joint resolution merely. Throughout the Constitution, laws and joint resolutions are carefully distinguished, and, even if the question were open, it would have to be held, in view of the constitutional provisions mentioned, that a joint resolution is not effectual to carry with it an appropriation. The question in this State has, however, been set fully at rest by the determination of the Supreme Court in two carefully considered cases. I refer to May v. Rice, Auditor, 91 Ind. 546, and Rice Auditor v. State, ex rel. Drapier, 95 Ind. 33. I quote the syllabus in May v. Rice, Auditor, supra, as it accurately states the points there decided: "The Constitution prohibits the drawing of money from the State, except in pursuance of appropriations made by law. The Constitution requires that laws shall be enacted by bill, and that the style shall be: 'Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana.' Money can not be appropriated by joint resolution, nor can the Auditor of State issue a warrant for money so appropriated."

For the reason that the legislative provision in question is a joint resolution and not an act, I advise that it is ineffectual to create an appropriation. Although I do not decide the question, I may say that it is even doubtful whether if the resolution was in the form of an act, it could be said to make an appropriation for anything more than the expenses of the commission.

Does the Act of April 8, 1885 (Acts 1885, p. 147), referred to in the joint resolution I have been considering, contain a present available appropriation? It does not. The latter part of Section 1 of that act provides that "at the end of three years from the passage of this act, any unpaid surplus that may remain shall be covered into the Treasury and counted with the general fund." As the appropriation in the act of 1885 had expired by its own limitation, at the time the above joint resolution was passed, it was necessary in order to justify the payment of further money on the same account, that the Legislature should have by act, and not by resolution, provided another appropriation. There is no law authorizing the expenditure of money by the State for the purpose mentioned by you.

It does not follow, however, because the joint resolution does not create an appropriation, that it is ineffectual for any purpose. It was held in State v. Bailey, 16 Ind. 46, that a joint resolution was sufficient to devolve upon an officer the duty of performing a mere ministerial act. I therefore advise that it is the duty of the commission created by the joint resolution set out above, to proceed to Madison, Indiana, and hear the testimony as to the services performed by the claimants of the company mentioned, and to determine what amount is due them severally. The commission should report its action to the General Assembly at its next sitting, with the proper recommendation for payment.

A township trustee may, in good faith, make a contract, for a reasonable time, for the teaching of a school in his township, although the school will not open until after the term of the trustee will have expired.

Hon. Harvey M. LaFollette,

Superintendent of Public Instruction :

SIR—I acknowledge the receipt of a letter from you in which you say :

“Section 4735, R. S. 1881, which provides for the election of township trustees, was amended by the last General Assembly so that the trustees to be elected next April will not assume the duties of their offices until August 1, 1890. In many counties of the State it has been the custom to employ teachers at the close of the school term for the next school year. In this way the trustees are able to secure the best teachers and retain them in their schools; and such teachers are assured of positive employment long before the time of the beginning of the school term. In view of these facts, can the present trustees legally contract with teachers at the close of the present school term for the school year 1890-91?”

Each civil township is a distinct corporation for school purposes, by the name and style of the civil township; by that name it may contract and be contracted with, and the trustee of such civil township is the school trustee of such school corporation. Section 4438, R. S. 1881. Such trustees are required to take charge of the educational affairs of their respective townships, and are empowered to “employ teachers.” Section 4444, R. S. 1881. The language of this section, which authorizes trustees to employ teachers, is general; it does not limit or restrict the trustees in the performance of this duty, but the power to employ is vested in the trustees in broad and comprehensive terms. If it had been the legislative intent that contracts with teachers should not extend beyond the official term of the trustee, it is safe to assume that such purpose would have been declared in the statute in appropriate words. The absence of such qualifying or limiting words, gives emphasis and additional force to the broad terms of the statute, and justifies us in the presumption that the legislative power fully realized that, to limit the right to employ a teacher for a time not beyond the trustee’s term of office, would lead, at times, to great embarrassments, and often deprive the township of the opportunity to secure the services of desirable teachers. It is true that a partial, unwise or corrupt trustee may impose upon the patrons of the school in his exercise of this power, but they have a sufficient remedy against such a contingency. Section 4501, R. S. 1881.

The office of trustee may become vacant by death, removal from township, or removal from office by the judgment of a court. It would be a strange and unreasonable construction of the statute which would terminate the teacher's contract with every such termination of the trustee's office. The power to employ teachers was, doubtless, for these reasons, made general, and the contract for the services of a teacher which extends beyond the trustee's term of office must be held valid, if made in good faith and without fraudulent collusion. Again, the contract made by the trustee is the contract of the corporation, which does not end with the term of the officer, but continues indefinitely.

The statute of the State of New York authorizes the trustee "to contract with and employ all teachers in the district school or schools." There are no limits placed on the exercise of this power, and the courts of that State hold that the trustee may make a contract with a teacher which extends beyond the trustee's term of office. Wait v. Ray, 67 N. Y. 36; Gillis v. Space, 63 Barb. 177; Williams v. Keech, 4 Hill 168; Silver v. Cummings, 7 Wend. 182.

Our own Supreme Court, in Reubelt v. The School Town of Noblesville, 106 Ind. 478, held that the school trustees of an incorporated town had the power to employ a teacher for a time extending beyond the date of the re-organization of the board. In that case the court construed Section 4444, R. S. 1881, so far as it relates to the school trustees of incorporated towns, and held that there is nothing in the grant of power to employ teachers which, in any way, limit the authority to contracts that are to be performed during the existence of any particular organization of that body. The ruling principle in that case governs the case which you present.

I therefore advise you that a trustee now in office may make a contract with a teacher, in good faith, and without fraudulent collusion, extending into the term of, and which will be binding upon his successor.

If the Inspector of Oils inspects certain oils at the request of the party having charge of same, the Inspector can recover his fees for such service, although the oil is afterward shipped out of the State.

Hon. S. T. Yancey, State Inspector of Oils:

SIR—You have advised me that dealers in mineral or petroleum oils, or their products, sometimes demand of you, or suffer of you, to inspect their oils under the law, and subsequently refuse to pay the fees therefor because such oils, in whole or in part, are to be or have been sold to parties out of the State, or are not designed for sale for consumption within the State. You also say that, in such cases, you were not apprised at the time of making the inspection, that the oils, or any portion thereof, were for sale, or sold to parties out of the State. On these facts you have asked my opinion.

All such oils "before being offered for sale or sold for consumption for illuminating purposes within this State," must be inspected by you or your deputies, under the laws of Indiana. Sections 5151, 5152, R. S. 1881. And it is provided by Section 5154, that "said inspector or deputy inspector shall be entitled to demand and receive from the owner or party calling on him, or for whom he shall perform the inspection," certain fees named therein. Thus the right of the inspector or deputy inspector to receive compensation depends upon two things: First. That the oil be inspected for the owner or party who calls on him to do so. Second. That the inspector or deputy shall perform the duties of inspection for the owner or other party. In either case, the inspector or deputy "shall be entitled to demand and receive from the owner or party" his legal compensation, and this is not made to depend upon "consumption for illuminating purposes within this State." The law contemplates that the owner or party will not call for the inspection, or knowingly permit it to be made, unless the oil is to be offered for sale or sold for such consumption within the State. If the "owner or party" calls for, or knowingly permits an inspection of oil which is in his possession, or under his control, without first notifying the officer that, in whole or in part, it is not to be offered for sale or sold for consumption within this State, such action is equivalent to an assertion by him that it is for sale or already sold for that purpose. For the fees of an inspection made under such circumstances, the "owner or party" must be held liable, and he can not escape their payment on the claim afterwards made that the oil, or a part of it was sold or to be sold for consumption out of the State. Having obtained the inspection, or having knowingly permitted it to be made, he becomes liable, at once, to pay the lawful charges, and he can not escape liability by changing the destination of the oil. He who requests the performance of particular services, or knowingly accepts them without objection, becomes liable for their value. See Wood's Master and Servant (2 ed.), Sections 70, 71, and notes. This rule applies to services performed by public officers under such circumstances. Murfree on Sheriffs, Sections 1065, 1079; Crocker on Sheriffs, Section 1162; United States v. Flanders, 112 U. S. 88.

I therefore advise you that the "owner or party" who calls for an inspection of oil, or knowingly permits it to be made without claiming that it is exempt from inspection, under the laws of this State, becomes liable for the payment of the statutory fees and he can not escape this liability by claiming afterward that the oil has been sold, or is for sale, for consumption out of the State.

A native of China can not lawfully be naturalized.

Herman W. Sallwasser,

Clerk of the Laporte Circuit Court :

SIR—You have submitted to me the following:

"I wish to inquire of you whether there is any law prohibiting me from issuing naturalization papers (that is, the first papers) to a Chinaman? Let me know and you will very much oblige me."

As your official action in the matter mentioned concerns the people of the entire State, it seems proper that I should advise you as requested.

Article I, of Section 8, of the United States Constitution, provides that "Congress shall have power to establish an uniform rule of naturalization." The power thus delegated to Congress is exclusive; States can not pass naturalization laws, even if Congress should fail to exercise its function (Pomeroy's Constitutional Law, Section 387), but this consideration is immaterial in Indiana, so far as the exercise of the elective franchise is concerned, because the State Constitution makes the right of an alien to vote dependent upon his having, among other things, "declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States, conformably to the laws of the United States on the subject of naturalization." Article II, Section 2. The correct answer to your question, therefore, depends upon the laws of Congress.

In all the acts of Congress relating to the naturalization of aliens, from that of April 14, 1802, down to that of 1870, the language has been used "that any alien, being a free white person, may be admitted to become a citizen," etc. After the adoption of the thirteenth and fourteenth amendments to the Federal Constitution, Congress, in the act of July 14, 1870, (16 Statute at large, p. 256, Section 7), so amended the naturalization laws as to extend their provisions to aliens "of African nativity, and to persons of African descent."

In the case of In re Ah Yup, 5 Saw. 155, Justice Sawyer, in an opinion in which he treats very learnedly the ethnological question and the history of our naturalization laws, says that he finds nothing "in the history of the country, in common or scientific usage, or in legislative proceedings, to indicate that Congress intended to include in the term 'white person' any other than an individual of the Caucasian race. His conclusion is that a native of China can not lawfully be naturalized. Notwithstanding the high authority from which this decision emanated, and the able manner in which it was vindicated, some courts afterward admitted Chinese to citizenship, and, as the Supreme Court of Utah say, in the case of In re Kanaka Nian, 21 Pac. Rep. 993, it was evidently this fact which led Congress to enact the following provision in the year 1882: "That hereafter, no State court or court of the United States shall admit Chinese to citizenship; and all laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed." (22 Statute at large, p. 61, Section 14.) No statute on the subject of naturalization has been passed since the one last mentioned.

It seems quite clear to me, in view of the earlier legislation, and of the able opinion in the case of In re Ah Yup, supra, that the law has never permitted the naturalization of the Chinese. That such has been the law since the enactment of the statute last quoted does not, of course, admit of doubt.

Section 26, acts 1867, p. 144, authorizing the sale of the lands known as the McCaslin Farm, and the application of the proceeds toward the purchase of other lands and in the erection of buildings for the Reform School, was repealed by acts 1875, p. 95.

Under the acts of 1889, p. 307, section 11, the Auditor of State was authorized to sell such lands and pay the proceeds thereof into the State Treasury to the credit of the general fund.

Hon. T. J. Charlton,

Superintendent Indiana Reform School:

SIR—I have received from you the following letter: “In the acts of 1867, p. 144, section 26, is this clause, which refers to the State’s land recently sold by the Auditor of State: ‘The Governor and said Commissioners are hereby authorized to sell the same for cash, or on credit, and apply the proceeds thereof toward the purchase of other grounds, and the erection of suitable buildings for the institution, and, upon full payment of the purchase money in such case, the Governor is authorized, in the name of the State, to execute a deed to the purchaser, attested by the Secretary and seal of the State.’ Now, I presume that this act has been repealed, but I feel that it will not do any harm to ask your opinion concerning it.”

The land to which you refer, and which is described in the statute you cite, was sold to William McCaslin under the act aforesaid, but he did not pay for it; thereupon considerable litigation followed, the mortgage executed by Mr. McCaslin to the State was foreclosed, and the title of the State to the land was established. McCaslin v. State, 44 Ind. 151; McCaslin v. State, 99 Ind. 428. This litigation lasted about fourteen years, and the case last cited was decided in 1885.

In 1875, while this litigation was pending, the General Assembly passed an act authorizing the Governor, Auditor and Secretary of State to sell the land you allude to. Acts 1875, p. 95. I am of opinion that this act repealed the former one by implication. The land was appraised under the provisions of the act last named, but no one could be found to purchase it under that appraisement.

The last General Assembly, by the act of March 9, 1889, (acts 1889, p. 307, section 11) authorized the Auditor of State to sell certain lands, and put the proceeds thereof in the general fund of the Treasury. As the land you mention is not in actual use by any of the State institutions, nor occupied by any public buildings, nor set apart by any law now in force for State purposes, I am of opinion that the Auditor of State had the power to sell it and pay the proceeds thereof into the general fund of the State Treasury.

The State Board of Health is not authorized to supervise the heating of cars of railroad companies.

Dr. Chas. N. Metcalf, Secretary State Board of Health:

SIR—I have received from you the following:

“Sec. 4987, R. S. 1881, is in part as follows: ‘The State Board of Health shall have the general supervision of the interests of the health and life of the citizens of the State.’

“Sec. 4994, extract: ‘Any person or persons or the officers of any corporation neglecting or refusing, after having been notified in writing, to comply with the requirements of such regulations shall be guilty of a misdemeanor,’ etc.

“1. In view of the foregoing, has this Board the authority to require railroad companies to heat their passenger cars with steam instead of stoves?

“2. Would such an enactment by this Board have the force of law within the State?”

The language you quote is but a portion of each section cited. Sec. 4987, provides that “the State Board of Health shall have the general supervision of the interests of the health and life of the citizens of this State. They shall especially study the vital statistics of this State, and endeavor to make intelligent and profitable use of the collected records of deaths and of sickness among the people; they shall make sanitary investigations and inquiries respecting the causes of disease, and especially of epidemics; the causes of mortality and the effects of localities, employments, conditions, ingesta, habits and circumstances on the health of the people. They shall, when required, or when they deem it best, advise officers of the government or other State Boards, in regard to the location, drainage, water supply, disposal of excreta, heating and ventilation of any public institution or building; and it shall be the duty of the Board to report what in their best judgment is the effect of the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage upon the industry, prosperity, happiness, health and lives of the citizens of the State.”

The officers of the State Board of Health exercise a naked statutory authority, and have no powers except such as are granted to them by law, in express terms or by necessary implication. This is a fundamental rule concerning the powers of officers. Williamson v. Doe, 7 Blackford 12; Vail v. McKernan, 21 Ind. 421; Platter v. Board, 103 Ind. 360, 328; State v. Portsmouth Savings Bank, 106 Ind. 435. Therefore it must be held that the State Board of Health has no other general supervisory powers than those conferred by the section quoted. The first sentence of that section is general in its nature, but it is limited and defined by the specific language which follows in the same section. The section, taken as a whole, prescribes and defines the exact supervisory powers of the Board, and makes it clear that the Legislature did not intend that a general, unlimited power should be vested in the Board. Again, that section gives to the Board the general supervision of the "heating and ventilation of any public institution or building." This language operated as a limitation and precludes the Board from any other supervision in the matter of heating and ventilation. This is on the principle that the express mention of one thing excludes all others not mentioned. If the Legislature had intended that the State Board of Health should have the power to regulate the heating and ventilation of cars on railroads, such intention would have been made manifest by the use of language granting such power in express terms or by necessary implication.

For these reasons I answer both of your questions in the negative.

There will have to be additional legislation before the State Board of Health can exercise such powers as those you mention. I have no doubt that our General Assembly has the constitutional power to enact a law giving to the State Board of Health, or to any other Board or officers, the right to supervise and regulate the heating and ventilation of cars on railroads. Such legislation would be a proper exercise of the power existing in our General Assembly to enact laws for the protection of the health, limbs and lives of the people of the State. This power is generally spoken of as the "police power," and in The State v. Hockett, 105 Ind. 250, the court, in defining the term, said: "It is a power inherent in every sovereignty, and is, in its broadest sense, nothing more than the power of a State to govern men and things within the limits of its own dominion." License Cases, 5 How. 504, 582. It extends to the protection of the lives, limbs, health, comfort and convenience, as well as the property of all persons within the State. It authorizes the Legislature to prescribe the mode and manner in which every one may so use his own as not to injure others, and to do whatever is necessary to promote the public welfare not inconsistent with its own organic law. Thorpe v. R. & B. R. R. Co., 27 Vt. 140. This definition or description is broad enough to cover such legislation as I have mentioned. In the State of New York, there is a law empowering the Board of Railroad Commissioners to supervise the heating of passenger cars on railroads, and to prevent the heating of such cars by any other means than steam, hot water, or hot air. Acts of New York, 1887, p. 828; Acts 1889, p. 250. The Legislature of New York possesses no greater powers in this respect than our own General Assembly, and I know of no reason why we should not have a law of that character.

The eight hour law held constitutional.

Hon. Alvin P. Hovey, Governor of Indiana :

SIR—I have received from you the following letter :

"I desire your opinion as to the constitutionality of the act of March 6, 1889, p. 143. I approved this law because I thought it constitutional, but, as doubts have been expressed in some quarters, I now ask for your views. Is it constitutional?"

The act which you cite, commonly known as "the eight hour law," provides in the first section that eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all classes of mechanics, working men and laborers, excepting those engaged in agricultural or domestic labor, but overwork for an extra compensation by agreement between employer and employe is permitted. The second section declares that the act shall apply to all persons, firms, corporations, companies and associations employing labor in this State, and to all mechanics, workingmen and laborers employed by this State or any municipal corporation therein, though its agents or officers are in the employ of persons contracting with the State, or any municipal corporation thereof, for performance of labor on the public works of this State or such corporation. The third section prescribes a penalty for the violation of this act. The fourth section also denounces a penalty against those employers who "fail to comply with or secretly evade" the provisions of the act. This act must be viewed from two standpoints: the public and the private, for it treats of the employment of labor by the State and its municipal corporations, which necessarily affects the public, and the employment of labor by persons, firms, corporations, companies or associations, which must generally be of a private interest alone.

At the outset, it may be well to seek to mark out the extent of legislative authority by the quotation of a constitutional provision and the statement of a few general rules more or less pertinent to the scope of your inquiry. Our Constitution provides "that the legislative authority of the State shall be vested in the General Assembly." (Article 4, Section 1.) In the case of Beauchamp v. State, 6 Black. 300, our Supreme Court quoted this language and said: "This is not a grant of special, limited and enumerated powers, implying a negative of all others, as is the case with the Constitution of the United States. The legislative authority of this State has the right to exercise supreme and sovereign power, subject to no restrictions except those imposed by our own Constitution, by the federal constitution, and by the laws and treaties made under it. This is the power under which the Legislature passes all laws." It is now the universally accepted doctrine that when the constitution of a State vests in the General Assembly all legislative power, as is the case in this State, it is construed as a general grant of power, and authorizes the Legislature to pass any law within the ordinary functions of legislation, if not delegated to the federal government or expressly or impliedly prohibited by the State Constitution. With this legislative power, and, indeed, as a part of it, there is vested in the General Assembly a goodly portion of the political power and the general police power. I use the term "political power" in the governmental sense. "Political power is the policy of government, or its administration, and may be exercised in the formation or administration of government or both." I make mention of the political power because it is, to some extent, interwoven with the police power, and, also, because it contributes no inconsiderable share in rounding out the authority of government. It was said of the term "police power," by our Supreme Court in Hockett v. State, 105 Ind. 250, 258: "It is a power inherent in every sovereignty, and is, in its broadest sense, nothing more than the power of a State to govern men and things within the limits of its own dominion. It extends to the protection of lives, limbs, health, comfort and convenience, as well as the property of all persons within the State. It authorizes the Legislature to prescribe the mode and manner in which every one may so use his own as not to injure others, and to whatever is necessary to promote the public welfare not inconsistent with its own organic law." By this general power of the State, persons and property are subject to all kinds of restraints and burdens, in order to secure the general comfort, health and prosperity of the State, "of the perfect right in the Legislature to do which, no question ever was, or, upon acknowledged general principles, ever can be made, so far as natural persons are concerned."

These powers, which are alike essential to the maintenance of our form of government and indispensable to the welfare and prosperity of the people, take their origin in the very framework of the organized State, and find expression in the various forms of legislation. To some extent written constitutions direct the law-making bodies in the use of these powers, but generally all matters of public policy or concern, or which relate to taxation or the expenditure of the general funds of the public, or which affect the lives, limbs, health, prosperity or general welfare of the people, are subjects which are left peculiarly within the legislative discretion.

So far as the State and its municipalities are concerned, it seems to me to be perfectly clear that the Legislature has the right to say, by legal enactment, that eight hours shall constitute a day's work on the public works of the State or of its municipalities, and especially do I think so in view of the fact that such works are built in pursuance of legislation in some form, and paid for out of the public revenue, collected and disbursed according to law. In 1866 Congress passed a law which provided that "eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all laborers, workmen and mechanics who may be employed by or on behalf of the Government of the United States, but the question of its constitutionality has not been mooted.

The history of American legislation shows many attempts to provide legal protection to those who are obliged to toil for others. Such enactments are founded on the theory that such persons, without the help of friendly legislation, are not able to successfully cope with the capital and power belonging to the employer. Can such protection be afforded, constitutionally, to the persons named in the act in question? Not unless the right to so legislate falls within some of the legislative powers I have enumerated. It may be said to be a natural right to work every day in the year, yet laws prohibiting labor on the Sabbath day are held constitutional, as establishing sanitary or police regulations, based upon the demonstration of experience that one day's rest in seven is needful to recuperate the exhausted energies of body and mind. And so it is held that the Legislature has the power to declare certain anniversaries to be public holidays, because such an enactment is a matter of police regulation, designed to promote the comfort and welfare of the people. In 1874 the Legislature of Massachusetts passed a law limiting the hours of labor of women and children, and it was held constitutional. If it is desirable as a matter of health and comfort, and lawful as well, to forbid labor on Sabbath days and holidays and to limit the hours of work of women and children, why may it not be both desirable and lawful to limit the hours of labor generally? Why acknowledge the legislative power in the one case and not in the other?

I have sought to suggest some grounds on which legislation might be defended which limited the hours of work, but, for the purposes of this opinion, I need not go farther than to affirm the right of the General Assembly to prescribe the standard of a day's labor, in the absence of an agreement to perform labor according to any other standard, because I do not think that the law in question deprives the persons therein mentioned of the power to contract on some other basis. Judge Cooley, in treating of the police powers of the States, says: "For dealing in the markets, weights and measures are established, and parties must conform under penalty." The first section of the act under consideration fixes eight hours as the standard for a legal day's work. Why may not the Legislature fix such a standard, as well as standards for weights and measures? In either case the Legislature deals with the rights of persons and property, and it seems to me that labor comes as properly within the scope of legislative power as the products of labor which are weighed or measured.

Of course, the fundamental law grants the guaranty of considerable freedom, as was shown in the able opinion lately rendered by our Supreme Court, establishing the validity of the statute designed to stamp out the so-called "pluck-me stores." The authority of government to deny to its subjects the right to labor for more than a certain number of hours, may be a question that lies beyond the frontier of the present judicial determination, but there is much of reason which tends to the conclusion that such legislation is within the sweep of the police power of the State.

I do not entertain a doubt, however, that the law in question is constitutional. So far as it affects the State and the municipal corporations within its borders, the General Assembly has authority over the subject-matter. The other provisions of the law are valid because it is only sought thereby to establish a standard for a day's labor, and it does not practically limit the power of any person to contract.

The Institute for the Education of the Blind is of an educational character; it is not a hospital, and, therefore, the Trustees of the institution should not, without the consent of a parent or guardian, permit an operation to be performed on the eyes of a blind pupil.

In case of malpractice on the part of the surgeon performing such an operation on a pupil, the consent of a parent or guardian to the performance of the operation having been obtained, the Trustees or Superintendent would not be liable in damages in such malpractices, provided they were not parties to it.

Sick pupils may be given ordinary medical treatment in the institution, for that is but an incident of the temporary custodianship assumed of such pupils by the State.

The Trustees of the Institute for the Education of the Blind:

GENTLEMEN—You have asked me the following questions:

"1. Have we, without the consent of the parent or guardian, the right to allow an operation to be performed on the eyes of a blind pupil?

"2. If the parent or guardian should consent to such operation, would we be liable in damages should a case of malpractice be established?"

1. Your institution was first created by the act of January 27, 1847 (Acts 1847, p. 41). The first section of that act is as follows: "There shall be established, at or near Indianapolis, an institute for instructing the blind, to be called the 'Indiana Institute for the Education of the Blind.'" Sections 3, 5, 8 and 9 of the act speaks of the education and instruction of the pupils in the institution. Section 1, Article IX, of the Constitution of 1851 is as follows: "It shall be the duty of the General Assembly to provide by law for the support of institutions for the education of the deaf and dumb, and of the blind, and also for the treatment of the insane." You will observe that the language requires the support of an institution for the education of the blind. Such an institution was then in existence and operation under the laws of 1847, as I have shown. Neither that law, nor the constitutional provision, nor the act of March 6, 1865, R. S. 1881, sections 2762, 2767, contemplates the treatment of the blind for the purpose of removing their blindness. If there had been such an intention in the minds of the legislators or the people, it is fair to presume that it would have found expression in suitable language. The people, in the section of the Constitution quoted, declared that provision should be made for the support of institutions for the treatment of the insane, and such provision has been made by law, but they did not see fit to provide treatment for the blind, nor is there any statute giving them the right to such treatment.

Under the Constitution and the statutes your institution must be considered as educational in its character, and not as a hospital. Hence it follows that I must answer your first question in the negative.

2. Parents and guardians of children are their legal custodians. The general rights of parents and guardians, as such custodians, are not lost by allowing their children or wards to receive instruction or education in your institution. The person who has the right to the legal custody of a child in your institution may authorize the eyes of such child to be operated upon, in the absence of some rule or regulation to the contrary. If such consent is procured and the child is injured through neglect or want of skill on the part of the surgeon, he alone is responsible for the damage, unless you or the Superintendent contribute in some way to the injury. By remaining perfectly passive, you and the Superintendent can escape all liability, in case the parent or guardian consents to such treatment. It may be proper for me to say that you ought not to permit the treatment of a pupil for the purpose mentioned, who has neither parent or guardian, unless the pupil is of lawful age.

This opinion must not be construed as denying the right to provide ordinary medical treatment for sick pupils while in the institution, for the right to furnish such treatment must be held to be an incident of the general powers vested in the Board of Trustees and the Superintendent.

Printing, binding and stationery for the Indiana State Militia should be executed and purchased through the Commissioners of Public Printing, but the cost of the printing, binding and stationery ordered for the purpose mentioned should be paid out of the military fund.

The military fund can only be expended on the order of the Governor, but he may make a general order for its disbursement.

The Commissioners of Public Printing, Binding and Stationery:

GENTLEMEN—You have asked me the following questions:

“1. Does the act to provide for public printing, binding and stationery, approved April 13, 1885, authorize the purchase of stationery and printing supplies for the use of the Indiana State Militia from the appropriation made by the Legislature for State printing and stationery, or should the same be paid for from the appropriation made by an act entitled, ‘An Act for the Organization and Regulation of the Indiana Militia,’ approved March 8, 1889?

“2. Are the provisions of Section 6, page 217, of the act approved April 13, 1885, to be considered as mandatory upon the Adjutant and Quartermaster-Generals, and the Board of Commissioners of Public Printing, Binding and Stationery, in so far as said law relates to printing and the method of paying therefor?”

1. The sixth section of the act providing for the public printing, binding and stationery, acts 1885, p. 215, is as follows: “That all the printing, binding and stationery authorized by law, at the expense of the State, and chargeable to the State, shall be executed through the Commissioners and Clerk in this act before named, and all laws authorizing printing, binding and stationery by any officer or institution, to be chargeable to the State, shall be construed to mean that the printing, binding and stationery of such officers or institutions shall be done through such Commissioners." This language is plain and does not need interpretation. Therefore, it is only necessary to inquire whether the printing, binding and stationery for the State Militia is authorized by law, and is to be done at the expense of the State, or is chargeable to the State in any way; if so, it is to be done through the commission. The statutes governing the State Militia (R. S. 1881, Sections 5356 to 5453, and Acts 1889, pp. 325, 335) clearly make necessary and authorize the use of books, blanks and stationery. In the absence of a statute directing the payment therefor out of another appropriation it must be paid out of the military fund according to the command of Section 3, Acts 1889, p 326, for the expense accrues under the military law.

As such printing, binding and stationery is authorized by law, and is to be paid out of the funds of the State, it follows that it is to be done through your Commission and not otherwise.

2. The language of the section which you cite is mandatory, and it must be strictly complied with by the officers you name.

I think it is proper for me to say, also, that while the military fund can only be expended on the order of the Governor, he may provide for the disbursement thereof by general order. Acts 1889, Sections 3 and 4. These statutes are in harmony with that section of our Constitution which makes the Governor Commander-in-Chief of the military and naval forces of the State. Section 12, Art. V. The Governor appoints the Adjutant, Quartermaster and Commissary Generals (Section 2, Art. XII, Constitution). He can authorize the procurement of printing, binding and stationery by those officers, through your Commission, and can pay for the same out of the military fund.

The Secretary of a County Board of Health is not authorized, where he attends himself, to appoint and charge for the services of an assistant, in making a trip for the purpose of examining an animal supposed to be infected with a contagious disease.

There is no provision of law, and, therefore, no authority, for the payment of salaries or compensation to the secretaries of County Boards of Health or their agents, for the performance of the services provided for by section 7, Acts 1889, p. 381.

Mortimer Levering,

Secretary State Live Stock Sanitary Commission:

SIR—You have addressed to me the following:

“At a recent meeting of the Indiana State Live Stock Sanitary Commission a number of bills were filed by secretaries of County Boards of Health for various services performed, which they claim this commission should pay under section 7, Acts 1889, p. 381. I will give you a sample of the bills sent in, viz.:

ROCKVILLE, IND., February 21, 1890.

State of Indiana, debtor to Marion Goss, Secretary of Parke County Board of Health:

May 7, 1889.	To visit to Goodsels, seven miles.....	$4 00
July 31, 1889.	To visit to Geo. Swain by Dr. Buckner..	4 00
Aug. 16, 1889.	To visit to Jas. Spencer, eighteen miles, by Drs. Goss and Buckner	16 00
Aug. 18, 1889.	To visit to E. Koontz, thirteen miles, by Drs. Goss and Buckner	16 00
	To livery hire	7 50

Total$47 50

“You will note that Dr. Goss, Secretary of the County Board of Health, is in partnership with Dr. Buckner. You will see that on the two visits he takes his partner with him and charges the Commission $16.00, which is $8.00 apiece. In addition, he charges livery hire, $7.50. Are not secretaries of Boards of Health, as State officers, expected to do all this work as the duty incumbent upon the office, and shall they not be paid under the provisions of the statutes made in relation to secretaries of Boards of Health?”

Section 7 of the act concerning your Commission is as follows: “It shall be the duty of said Secretary of such County Board of Health to keep a record of all cases so reported to him, including the age, sex and distinguishing characteristics of such animals, and it shall be the duty of such Secretary of said Board of Health to immediately examine, either in person or by a qualified person appointed by him for that purpose, all animals so reported to be diseased, and if they find that said animal or animals are affected with a contagious disease, to immediately report the same to said Commission, or some member thereof, and the said Secretary shall promptly take such measures as he shall deem most expedient to prevent the spread of the disease until said Commission shall be able to relieve him from the charge and care of such animal or animals. All the necessary expenses necessarily incurred by said Secretary of such Board of Health and his agents, in carrying out the provisions of this act, shall be paid in the same manner as are those of the Commission." You will observe that this section requires the Secretary of the County Board of Health to make the examination and report "either in person or by a qualified person appointed by him for that purpose." The statute does not permit him to appoint such a person to assist him, but only to appoint one to do the work when he can not do it himself. In other words, the Secretary is required to do the work himself, or appoint some one to do the work for him, but not with him. Hence it follows that there can be no charge for the services and expenses of Dr. Buckner in the two cases you mention.

The concluding sentence of section 7 allows the Secretary of the County Board of Health the expenses necessarily incurred by him and his agents, to be paid by your Commission. "Expenses" can not be held to embrace salary or per diem compensation, for it only means that which is expended, laid out or consumed. An expense account can not properly embrace items of salary or compensation. The act does not authorize your Commission to pay salaries or compensation to secretaries of County Boards of Health, or their agents. The Secretary of a County Board of Health is paid for his services by the Board of Commissioners of his county. Section 4993, R. S. 1881. He can not receive compensation from any other source in the absence of a statute entitling him thereto. Mechem on Public Officers, sections 855, 856. The Legislature may attach additional duties to an office without increasing the compensation. Turpen v. The Board, 7 Ind. 172; The Board v. Blake, 21

Ind. 32; The Board v. Gresham, 101 Ind. 53, and cases there cited; Mechem on Public Officers, section 862.

It is clear that the act creating your Commission has imposed additional duties upon the secretaries of County Boards of Health, and has not empowered the Commission to pay therefor. Therefore it follows that such secretaries and their agents are not entitled to compensation from your Commission.

Where the term of office of Justice of the Peace will regularly expire in 1892, an election to fill the vacancy should be held in April, 1890.

It is the duty of the Township Election Board to certify who a Justice of the Peace is elected to succeed.

Hon. Charles F. Griffin, Secretary of State:

SIR—You have laid the following state of facts before me for my opinion:

“In one of the townships of this State A, B and C were elected Justices of the Peace at the late township election. The Inspectors certified to the Clerk of the Circuit Court that A was elected to succeed D, whose term had expired; that B should succeed a Justice whose term will expire in July of this year, and that C should succeed a Justice whose term will expire in about two years. The Clerk of the Circuit Court certifies to me in accordance with the above. Was it the duty of the Inspectors to determine and certify who the newly elected Justices should succeed?”

The act of March 11, 1889 (Acts 1889, p. 425, section 1), provides that Justices of the Peace shall be elected on the first Monday of April, 1890, and every fourth year thereafter. The Justices of the Peace now in office were elected in 1886 and 1888. Even if the act of 1889 had not been passed it would have been necessary to elect on the first Monday of April, 1890, successors to those who were elected in 1886. R. S. 1881, Sections 1422, 4375. The passage of the law of 1889 made it necessary, also, to elect on the first Monday in April, 1890, the successors of those who were elected in 1888, because their terms will expire in 1892, or two years before the next April election, which will be held in 1894. As the vacancies in such cases will occur in 1892, Section 1422, R. S. 1881, required the filling thereof at the recent April election. Township elections are governed by Sections 4735 to 4737, R. S. 1881, and "by the provisions of the law with respect to general elections so far as applicable."

The Election Board is required to "certify the result" to the Clerk of the Circuit Court, and he is required to "certify the result" to the Secretary of State. (Sections 4736, 4737.) Webster defines "result" as follows: "That which results; the conclusion or end to which any course or condition of things leads, or which is attained by any process or operation, consequence or effect. The decision or determination of a council or deliberative assembly." Its synonyms are "effect, consequence, conclusion, inference, issue, event." We are safe in assuming that the Legislature understood the ordinary meaning of the word "result," and intended that it should receive its usual interpretation, for the statutes cited do not contain any restrictions, qualifications or limitations. How can the officers named in those sections "certify the result" of the election of justices in a township without showing who the newly elected officers are to succeed? They can not certify the result "without stating the conclusion or end to which" the "condition of things leads;" they must state the "consequence or effect" of the election, and they can not do this unless they show who each justice is to succeed, in order that the commission may name the office with certainty, and fix the beginning and end of the official term. This information being certified to the Governor and Secretary of State, they are able to issue the commission in such a manner as to convey definite rights, and thus prevent uncertainty and confusion. This view is fully sustained by the legislative and departmental interpretation. By the act of June 15, 1852 (1 Davis Stat. 447, 448, section 2), the Board of Judges were directed to "declare the result of such election" and "give a certificate thereof to such persons as are elected," which certificate entitled such a person to take the office, when he complied with the other requirements of the law, including the obtaining of a commission from the Governor. I am advised that the records in your office will show that the election officers, in certifying the result of such elections, have, for many years, stated who the newly elected justices would succeed; and that the blank certificate sent out to the election officers and the County Clerks required such statement from them, and that the commission was issued on the statement contained in the certificate. The General Assembly, when it passed the act of September 19, 1881, (R. S. 1881, sections 4735 to 4737), must have known of this practice, and the acquiescence of the people therein, and as the sections cited require the certifying of the result by the officers therein named, but do not define what the result is, the necessary inference is that the Legislature contemplated the observance of the former practice. Those who passed the law of 1881 must have had in mind a meaning for the enacted words, and that meaning must be given them by courts and officers. We must transport ourselves back to the time when the law was framed, consider the condition of things then existing, and give the language the meaning which it, as then used, and other considerations, require. (Bishop, on Written Laws, sections 75, 76.) The practical interpretation before mentioned, which has been given the law, is of great weight in case of uncertainty in the construction of a statute. In this instance it can not be disregarded. By the election officers certifying who elected justices should succeed, and the Governor and Secretary of State acting in accordance with such information, we have a practical interpretation of the statutes in question by the election of officers, including the County Clerks, and two of the departments of the State government. The construction thus put on the statutes has been acquiesced in by the people without litigation or dispute, as I believe. A practical construction of a statute by one or more of the departments of State government is of greatest importance. (Bishop, on Written Laws, section 35; Cooley, on Const. Lim., side p. 69.) It is yielded to with readiness by the court, and departed from only in cases of imperious necessity. Of such a construction the Supreme Court of Illinois said: "It has always been regarded by the courts as equivalent to a positive law." (Bruce v. Souylar, 4 Gilm. 221.) By another court it has been said that "we can not shake a system which has so long and so extensively prevailed." Rogers v. Goodwin, 2 Mass. 478. The case of State ex rel. Michener v. Harrison, 116 Ind. 300, contains an excellent statement of the doctrine of departmental construction, and is in exact harmony with the views I have expressed concerning the value of such interpretation.

Having regard for the ordinary meaning of the language used in the act of 1852, the interpretation put upon it by the people and public officers, and the use of language of similar import in the act of 1881, I am of opinion that the Legislature, in enacting the law last named, intended that the election officers, in certifying the result, should state who the newly elected officer should succeed. See, also, section 4722, R. S. 1881.

Such certification is not to be held as conclusive upon the parties who may lay claim to the office, but it serves to furnish information upon which the Governor and Secretary of State may safely act.

The provision of the State Constitution that the common school fund shall consist among other things, of "all lands and other estate which shall escheat to the State for want of heirs or kindred entitled to the inheritance," is not self-executing.

Moneys paid into the State Treasury to the credit of "the unknown heirs of the decedent," under Sections 2411 to 2415, inclusive, do not escheat.

The act of 1883, p. 98, relates only to "cases where estates have escheated or shall hereafter escheat to the State," and, therefore has no reference to moneys paid into the State Treasury under the sections before cited, at least in the absence of a direct proceeding to judicially determine the fact of an escheat.

Hon. Harvey M. LaFollette,

Superintendent of Public Instruction :

SIR—You ask me what disposition should be made of moneys paid into a county clerk's office by an executor or administrator as the proceeds of the personal estate he has administered on, the parties entitled to such moneys not having secured an order of distribution within two years after the final settlement of the estate. In this connection you call my attention to an act of the Legislature approved March 5, 1883, Acts 1883, p. 98.

The Constitution provides that the common school fund shall consist, among other things, of "all lands and other estate which shall escheat to the State for want of heirs or kindred entitled to the inheritance." It has been held, however, that the above provision is not self-executing. State ex rel. Attorney General v. Meyer, 63 Ind. 33. Sections 2411 to 2415, inclusive, provide that the real and personal estates of persons dying, in the event that the persons entitled to such estates do not appear and claim them within a certain time, shall (instead of escheating to the State, ipso facto) be paid into the State Treasury to the credit of "the unknown heirs of the decedent." Sections 2411 to 2414, inclusive, provide for the leasing and final conversion of real estate under such circumstances and for the payment of the proceeds of such real estate into the State Treasury. Section 2415 is as follows: "If, at the expiration of two years from the final settlement of an estate, no proof of heirship or title by will shall have been made as to all or any portion of the surplus, the court shall direct the same to be paid to the county treasurer, to be, by him, paid to the Treasurer of State, who shall enter the same on his books to the credit of the unknown heirs of the decedent." This section, as is evident when it is considered in connection with the preceding sections, relates entirely to personal estates. The question arises, does the act of 1883, cited by you, repeal the section quoted by implication? If it does, then the moneys mentioned by you should be turned over to the county for the benefit of the common school fund, instead of being paid to the State Treasurer to the "credit of the unknown heirs." I deem it clear that the section quoted was not repealed by the act of 1883. Two reasons may be assigned for this conclusion: First. The act of 1883 relates solely to real estate, and therefore would only operate to repeal, if at all, the sections relating to the disposition of real estate, viz: Sections 2411 to 2414, inclusive. Second. The act of 1883 has reference only to "cases where estates have escheated or shall hereafter escheat to the State." The provision of Section 2415 that the estate shall be held for the benefit of "the unknown heirs of the decedent," shows a clear purpose that there shall be no escheat, at least, in the absence of a direct proceeding, to judicially determine the fact of an escheat. As the act of 1883 relates to escheated estates, the former statute is not repealed. I consider the case of State ex rel. Attorney General v. Meyer, supra, as fully in point on this question.

I therefore advise you that the moneys mentioned by you should be paid to the Treasurer of State, in the absence of any proceeding to declare an escheat.

The right of the State Inspector of Oils to inspect oils under certain circumstances passed on.

Hon. S. T. Yancey, State Inspector of Oils :

SIR—You have put the following questions to me:

“1. Oil is shipped into this State in car tanks and transferred to what is termed ‘storage tanks,’ some of which the oil companies claim are used for storing oils to be shipped out of this State, but from which said companies can, at will, draw oil and sell the same in this State. Should I inspect all illuminating oils shipped into this State and taken from the original car shipping tanks while within this State?

“2. Illuminating oils referred to in the law are shipped into this State in original packages in car tanks containing each a stated definite number of barrels. From these tanks the oil is taken out and placed in tanks as above mentioned. Should I inspect all of this oil in the original packages before the same is drawn out into the storage tanks?

“3. Illuminating oils referred to in the law are shipped into this State from and by the refineries and sold to wholesale dealers here. The sale is made in Indiana and the oil is delivered by and from the refineries to the wholesale dealers in Indiana who dispose of said oil as they see fit. Should all such oil be inspected?”

In Section 5151, R. S. 1881, it is provided: “All mineral or petroleum oil, or any oil-fluid or substance which is a product of petroleum, or into which petroleum or any product of petroleum enters or is found as a constituent element, whether manufactured within this State or not, shall be inspected, as provided in this act, before being offered for sale or sold for consumption for illuminating purposes within this State.” In Section 5152 it is provided that “such State Inspector and his deputies are hereby required, and it is made their duty, to test the quality of all mineral or petroleum oils, or any oil-fluid or substance which is a product of petroleum, or into which petroleum or any product of petroleum enters or is found as a constituent element, which is offered or intended to be offered for sale for illuminating purposes in this State.” By the terms of Section 5155 it is made a misdemeanor to sell, or attempt to sell, to any person in this State any such oils, to be consumed within this State for illuminating purposes, before having the same inspected as required by law.

It is the purpose of these statutes to prevent injury to the public and thwart all attempts of the vender to defraud the vendee. Tiedman's Lim. of Police Power, Section 89. Therefore, they must be so construed as to effect the purposes for which they were intended. Endlich on Interp. of Stat., Section 29; Sedgwick on Stat. Const., 193-195. To carry out effectually the objects of these statutes they must be so construed as to defeat all attempts to do or avoid in an indirect or circuitous manner that which is prohibited or enjoined, and to extend to all such circumventions and render them unavailing. Endlich, Interp. of Stat., Section 138.

In view of these statutes, and applying to them the rules of construction which I have stated, I have no hesitancy in answering all of your questions in the affirmative.

Expenses of County Superintendents or School Trustees in the handling of books or money under the school book law, subsequent to the County Superintendent taking charge of the books, can not be charged to the contractor.

Where money is necessarily expended by County Superintendents or school Trustees for the purposes aforesaid, such expenditures form a proper charge against the respective school corporations such officers serve.

Hon. Alvin P. Hovey, Governor of Indiana :

SIR—I am in receipt of the following communication, addressed to you by the Indiana School Book Company, which communication you have submitted for my consideration :

“Controversies have arisen in some parts of the State concerning the construction to be placed on some parts of the contract which we have with the State of Indiana to furnish school text books. With the desire that we may fully understand what our rights are, we request that you submit the following questions to the Attorney-General and ask an official opinion from him as to each of them :

“1. At the outset of the business in which we are engaged we suggested to each County Superintendent that, as a matter of convenience to him, and particularly to the School Trustees, we would, when requested, instead of insisting on our right to ship the books for the whole county in bulk to him, honor requisitions for books to be put up in packages for each school corporation in the county, and to ship such packages, freight prepaid, consigned to the Superintendent, to the different railroad stations designated by him, so that the Trustee of each school corporation could procure the books intended for his schools at a railroad station most convenient to him. We desire to ask whether a County Superintendent who ordered books shipped as above stated, and delivered them to the Trustee at the designated railroad station, can legally accept as so much cash in his quarterly settlement with the Trustee for sale of school books, a bill for drayage, incurred by the Trustee in transporting the books from the station to the place where he stores them?

“2. Can a County Superintendent legally accept as so much cash, in his quarterly settlement for sale of school books, a bill for a postal money order, said bill having been paid by the Trustee for the money order so that he might remit to the County Superintendent by mail?

“3. Can a County Superintendent legally accept, as so much cash, in his quarterly settlement with the Trustee for sale of school books, a receipt for express charges paid by the Trustee on books which were re-shipped by the County Superintendent to the Trustee, the transportation of the books to the County Superintendent having been prepaid by the contractor?

“4. Can a County Superintendent legally withhold any part of moneys turned over to him by Trustees, at quarterly settlements, for sale of school books, the amount that said County Superintendent claims that he has been compelled to pay out on account of buying drafts at bank with which to remit the cash due the contractor?”

After setting out some of the provisions of the Text Book Act (Acts '89, p. 74), which seem to me applicable to the questions asked, I will proceed to answer such questions seriatim:

Section 3 of the act provides that the price of the books contracted for “shall include all cost and charges for transportation and delivery to the several County School Superintendents.” The contract entered into between the Text Book Commissioners and the contractor for the furnishing of text books contains the same provision. Section 7 of the act above mentioned provides that it shall be the duty of School Trustees to certify the number and character of text books required for use in the schools of their respective corporations to the Superintendent of their respective counties. The section then directs that the County Superintendent shall forthwith make a requisition for said books upon the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who shall in turn make a requisition for same on the contractor. It is made the duty of the latter to "ship the books so ordered directly to the County School Superintendents of the several counties of this State." On the receipt of the books, the County Superintendent is required to notify the proper trustees of the fact. "It shall then be the duty of said School Trustees to immediately procure and take charge and custody" of the books assigned to them. At the expiration of three months after the receipt of the books, each Trustee is required to "make a full and complete report to the County Superintendent of the number of books sold and the amount of moneys received therefor, and the number of books on hand, and at the time of making such report he shall pay over to the County Superintendent all moneys received by him or with which he is chargeable, from the sales of books in his hands." Section 11 of the act requires the County Superintendent, within ten days after receiving the quarterly report of the trustees, as in the act provided, to make a report of the books sold to the contractor, "which report shall be accompanied by all cash received by him from the school officers from sales of books by them sold."

1. It is the duty of the contractor under the above act to "ship the books so ordered directly to the County School Superintendents of the several counties of this State." "All costs and charges for transportation and delivery to the several County Superintendents" must be borne by the contractor. When the books have been thus shipped, and the County Superintendent takes them under his control, the duty of the contractor is at an end; the burden of caring for and disposing of the books is from that moment upon the local authorities. On receipt of the books the Superintendent must then notify the Trustee of the fact, and it thereupon becomes the duty of the latter, in the language of the act, "to immediately procure and take charge and custody" of them. These burdens must be held to severally rest on the shoulders on which the Legislature placed them. The contractor's obligation is marked out by the statute which provided for the obligation, and the contractor has a right to rely and insist upon the performance of all obligations devolved upon officers by the act. As the statute requires the Trustee "to immediately procure and take charge of the books" ordered for his school corporation, it follows that the burden is on him to do so, and that he can not deduct from the money which belongs to the contractor an expense incurred in discharge of the duty. The statute, I may further suggest, directs that the Trustee "shall pay over to the County Superintendent all moneys received by him." It is necessary, therefore, to comply with the statute, that the gross amount of money due be turned over.

2. I answer this question in the negative. The duty is on the Trustee to pay to the County Superintendent all moneys received by him from the sale of books. Much of the reasoning of the answer to the first question is applicable to this.

3. The County Superintendent should not ship books to a Trustee unless requested to do so. By so doing without request the Superintendent would render himself personally liable to the Trustee for the amount of carriage which the latter was compelled to pay. No deduction can be made by the Trustee, however, on such account, for the moneys he is required by the text-book act to turn over to the County Superintendent constitute a trust fund and should not suffer diminution on the account stated.

4. The statute requires that the report of the County Superintendent to the contractor "shall be accompanied by all cash received by him from the school officers from sales of books by them sold." The conclusion can not be escaped that this provision means that the gross amount of all sales shall be turned over to the contractor.

In conclusion, I may say, to prevent misunderstanding, that, in my opinion, where County Superintendents or school Trustees are necessarily compelled to expend money in the discharge of their duties under the school book act they may claim reimbursement in their settlements with the Commissioners, because, as it seems to me, such charges are primarily claims against the corporations which such school officers respectively represent.

The fact that a person was in another State when he became insane does not negative the finding that he is a resident of this State.

It is for the Justices of the Peace holding an insanity inquest to determine whether the person it is sought to commit has a residence and legal settlement in this State.

Dr. C. E. Wright, Superintendent Central Insane Hospital:

SIR—You ask me whether a record of inquest shows that the person committed is a resident of this State, so as to be entitled to treatment at the hospital.

Question No. three of the statement is as follows: “Where is his legal residence?” It is answered, “Otter Creek Township, Vigo County, Indiana.” The justices of the peace who held the inquest certify and find that the person committed “resides in Otter Creek Township, in said county (Vigo) and has a legal settlement in the State of Indiana.” The only thing which at all tends to contradict the above statement and finding is the statement of the medical attendant that “Mr. Johnson was brought here from Kansas,” but I think that the latter statement can be reconciled with the statement and answer set out above. So far as appears, the person committed may have been in Kansas for but a temporary purpose, so as not to have lost his residence or legal settlement in this State. But however this may be, I think that the finding of the Justices of the Peace is conclusive upon the Superintendent. By the statute the authority seems to have been committed exclusively to them to determine concerning the residence and legal settlement of the person sought to be committed, and, besides, it is a general rule that where an officer is required to make a return or to find upon a fact, his return or finding is, for the purposes of that proceeding, not to be disputed. Spalm v. Gillespie, 48 Ind. 397.

The State Board of Agriculture is but a quasi public corporation, and, therefore, the Auditor and Treasurer of State are not authorized to consent to street improvements on streets running in front of the property of such corporation.

Hon. W. A. Banks, President State Board of Agriculture:

SIR—You have submitted to me the following:

“The Auditor and Treasurer of State have signed a petition for street improvements on Central Avenue, Indianapolis, claiming to represent the State Fair Grounds. The petition calls for a brick roadway on the east side of the Fair Grounds, which is objectionable to the Board of Agriculture, as it will entail a heavy expense for costly roadway, having no immediate connection with other improved roads, and not one-tenth part of such territory is improved, a large portion not even laid off in lots. Please inform us if the above mentioned State officers have authority to sign the petition mentioned and to thereby bind the Board."

The statute authorizing the Auditor and Treasurer of State to consent to street improvements in certain cases in which the State is concerned is section 3162, R. S. 1881. So far as applicable to the question in hand that statute is as follows: "When the State of Indiana is the owner of property on or along the street or streets proposed to be improved as hereinbefore provided, the Common Council shall not contract for the execution of said improvements involving the State in any liability, without first obtaining the written consent and approval of the Auditor and Treasurer of State, but such city may make such improvements at her own expense." The question which arises upon your inquiry is, therefore, whether the State of Indiana "is the owner" of the lands mentioned by you.

Under the present Constitution, corporations, other than banking, can not be created by special act. Section 13, Article XI. The State Board of Agriculture was created, however, by special act a few months before the taking effect of the Constitution mentioned, viz.: February 14, 1851. Section 4 of the act mentioned provides that certain persons therein named "be and they are hereby created a body corporate, with perpetual succession in the manner hereafter described, under the name and style of the Indiana State Board of Agriculture." Section 6 of the same act provides that vacancies in the corporation shall be filled at its annual meeting by delegates from the county agricultural societies. By various subsequent acts, which I need not notice, the powers of the corporation were amplified. In the year 1860, the Board purchased thirty-six acres of what is now known as the State Fair Grounds, taking the conveyances therefor in its corporate name. By the act of March 3, 1865, these conveyances were confirmed, and it was further provided "that the Indiana State Board of Agriculture is empowered to purchase and hold real estate, for the purpose of holding State fairs, and other uses of the Board, to an amount not exceeding eighty acres; and to sell any real estate it may hold for the purpose of re-investing the proceeds in other real estate for the same general objects." Twenty acres in addition to, and adjoining, the original purchase was bought by the Board in 1887, and the conveyance taken in its name. At various times the State Board has borrowed money, giving its own obligations therefor.

By the act of April 14, 1881, it was provided that the Board should execute a mortgage on its lands to the State to secure a loan of $25,000. There would be no question that the Board is a private corporation if it were not that the Legislature has from time to time sought to control it by legislation and that it has been the frequent recipient of legislative bounty. Do these facts render the State Board a purely public corporation? I am of opinion that they do not. An authority in point is the case of State ex rel. Robinson v. Carr, Auditor, 111 Ind. 335, where the question involved was whether the loaning of the funds of the State University was governed by a law concerning the loaning of State funds. The court say: "The act under which the State University was established made provision for a Board of Trustees, and enacted that 'they and their successors shall be a body politic, with the style of 'The Trustees of Indiana University,' in that name to sue and be sued, etc.'" This corporate body is invested with the power to possess, take and hold, in their corporate name, all of the real and personal property of the university for its benefit, and is authorized to expend the income thereof for the benefit of the institution. It is authorized to make all by-laws necessary to carry into effect the general purposes for which the institution was organized. The corporation thus organized has none of the essential characteristics of a public corporation. It is not a municipal corporation. Its members are not officers of the government, or subject to the control of the Legislature in the management of its affairs, and the university fund, derived in the manner pointed out in section 4595, does not belong to the State. That the university was established under the direct authority of the State, through a special act of the Legislature, or that the charter contains provisions of a purely public character, nor yet that the institution was wisely established, and is and should be perpetually maintained at the public expense, for the public good, does not make it a public corporation, or constitute its endowment fund a public fund." In view of the above authority, I think there need be no hesitancy in holding that the lands held by the State Board of Agriculture are not lands owned by the State.

It is not necessary for the purposes of this opinion to seek to mark out the extent of the legislative power to control the State Board. All that it is necessary to decide, and all that I do decide, is that the State Board, being at most but a quasi public corporation, is not within the purview of a statute relating to State lands. Most, if not all, of the lands owned by the State are held by it directly; the trustees of institutions occupying State lands have but a naked custodianship thereof. It is in cases where the State has the direct title to lands that the Auditor and Treasurer of State may authorize street improvements. Where those officials act it is for the purpose of binding the State and to create an obligation on its part to appropriate money to pay for such improvements. In a case of this kind the corporation, and not the State, must meet the expense.

I am, therefore, of opinion that the real estate of the State Board of Agriculture is, for the purposes of street improvements, essentially private property and is only liable to have the burden of street improvements laid upon it in the same manner as an individual.

It is the duty of the Boards of Commissioners of their respective counties to notify the Governor, not only when changes are subsequently made, but also on the occasion of the establishment of the election precincts for the first time under the law of 1889.

Hon. Alvin P. Hovey, Governor of Indiana:

SIR—You ask me whether it is the duty of the Boards of County Commissioners of the several counties in this State to report to the Governor the number of precincts established in each county under the new election law, together with the estimated number of votes in each precinct.

The first provision of the new election law (Acts 1889, p. 157) is that the "County Commissioners of each county in this State shall, at their first session after the taking effect of this act, divide the townships of their respective counties into election precincts and establish the boundaries of the same." In a subsequent portion of the same section is a provision concerning changes in precincts to be subsequently made. Following the latter provision is a further requirement that such Commissioners "shall report such division to the Clerk of the Circuit Court and to the Governor of the State, together with the estimated number of votes in each of the new precincts. The question which I have to pass on, therefore, is, does the language of the clause last quoted create the duty therein provided for on the occasion of the first division of the townships into precincts, as well as when subsequent changes are made, or does such clause only create a duty to notify the Governor on such latter occasions? I am of opinion that such notice should be given to the Governor in all cases. I unhesitatingly reach this conclusion, because there is no other means provided for in the act by which the State Board of Election Commissioners, of which the Governor is ex officio a member, may obtain the knowledge which Section 29 contemplates they shall have, of the number of precincts in each county and of the estimated number of votes in each precinct established prior to the first general election held under the new law. The conclusion which I have reached is the natural and necessary one on a reading of Sections 1 and 29 of the act together. Any other construction would lead to a casus omissus in respect to Section 29 of the act, which would leave the important provisions of that section impossible to carry out.

I therefore advise that the clause in section 1 of the act, relating to notice by Boards of Commissioners to the Governor, requires that such notice be given him not only when changes in precincts are subsequently made, but also on the occasion of the establishment of the election precincts for the first time under the new law.

All expenses incurred in fitting out the additional Hospitals for the Insane should be paid for out of the funds placed to the credit of the additional Hospital Commissioners. The Trustees of one of the hospitals can not expend their maintenance and repair fund for such purpose.

William Rahm, Jr., President Board Trustees

Southern Indiana Hospital for Insane:

SIR—I am in receipt of the following communication from you:

"I am instructed by our Board of Trustees to ask you for an official answer, if we have the right to spend money out of our $85,000 annual appropriation, for the purpose of buying carpets, dry goods, linen, bed clothes and painting? The building needs quite a lot of repainting inside, and the central dome on the ground floor ought to be decorated, as that will be used for a visitors' reception room."

Section 1 of an act approved March 2, 1889 (Acts 1889, p. 84), appropriates $165,000, "to be placed to the credit of the fund for the construction, equipment and furnishing of the additional Hospitals for Insane." The general appropriation law (Acts 1889, p. 402,) appropriates "for the maintenance and repairs of the Southern Hospital for Insane, at Evansville, the sum of eighty-five thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary." Under these statutes it is clear that the Legislature intended that the first mentioned appropriation should defray all expenses of construction, equipment and furnishing of the hospitals, and that the latter appropriation should be devoted solely to maintenance and repairs. Otherwise stated, the fact that specific provision has been made for construction, equipment and furnishing, would, of itself, require that the words "maintenance and repair" be so contracted as not to include the objects of the former provision. The word "equipment," used in the first mentioned statute, is very broad. To equip means, in the words of Webster, "to furnish for service, or against a need or exigency; to fit out, to supply with whatever is necessary to efficient action in any way." It is evident that the Legislature intended to provide for the complete fitting out of the hospital by the appropriation to the additional Hospital Commissioners. But apart from any consideration as to the effect of the appropriation last mentioned, I do not think that the terms of your appropriation act would authorize the use of the appropriation for any purpose except to meet the ordinary and necessary expenses of the institution, and to preserve and keep up the property, real and personal. The word "maintain" is defined: "To bear the expenses of, to keep up." (The Encyclopædic Dictionary.) As stated by the Supreme Court of Ohio, in Moorhead v. Little Miami R. R. Co., 17 Ohio 340, 353, the word maintenance has reference to the powers to be exercised after the completion. An English court has thus defined the right of trustees under an authority to maintain property: "You may maintain by keeping in the same state, or you may maintain by keeping in the same state and improving the state, always bearing in mind that it must be maintenance as distinguished from alteration of purpose." (Sevenoaks, etc., R. R. Co. v. London, etc., R. R. Co., 11 Ch. Div. L. R. 625, 635.)

Probably all of the expenditures you desire to make could be charged to a maintenance and repair appropriation, if the hospital had been previously fitted out with the articles desired and it became for any reason necessary to supply new ones, but the authority to maintain can not be construed into an authority to equip. Of course, you may use out of the maintenance and repair appropriation in re-painting, and I presume that it would be within your discretion to order the decorative work that you mention, and to pay for it out of that appropriation. The item of clothing for patients would clearly arrange itself under the head of maintenance, but carpets, bed-clothing, etc., are, when first purchased, a part of the equipment, and payment for them can only, in the first instance, be authorized out of the equipment fund.

It is within the discretion of the Trustees of the Northern Indiana Hospital to insure the property in their charge, and they may pay for such insurance out of their maintenance fund.

Dr. Jos. G. Rogers, Medical Superintendent

Northern Indiana Hospital for Insane :

SIR—I acknowledge the receipt of the following communication from you :

"By direction of the Board of Trustees of the Northern Indiana Hospital for Insane I ask your official opinion as to the powers of said Board to use any part of the maintenance fund, provided by the Legislature for the use of said Board in the care and maintenance of this Hospital, for the purpose of insuring the real and personal property, or any part thereof, under its care. A speedy reply will oblige."

The general appropriation law (Acts 1889, p. 402) provides "for the maintenance and repairs of the Northern Hospital for insane at Logansport, eighty five thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary." To maintain is to bear the expense of; to keep up. (The Encyclopaedic Dictionary.) In keeping up the property with which the Trustees have been intrusted it would seem that they should not be confined to the mere physical effort to keep up such property, but that they might, in their discretion, expend a comparatively small sum out of current funds to obtain indemnity against the fortuitous event of the destruction by fire, or other casualty, of a large portion of the trust property.

It is a general rule that Trustees may make reasonable expenditures out of the trust estate in the payment of insurance on the trust property. Lewin on Trusts (Flint's Notes), 580; Crawford v. Hunter, 8 T. R. 13. They are not personally liable, however, for a loss which they had failed to insure against. Fry v. Fry, 27 Beav. 146. In other words, Trustees, in the exercise of a fair discretion, may insure the property which is the subject of the trust, but they are not bound to do so.

I am of opinion that the Trustees of your institution have devolved upon them the general duties and authority of ordinary trustees, and I therefore advise that they may legally make an expenditure out of their maintenance fund in procuring a reasonable insurance upon the buildings and personal property of the State under their control.

The law requires that public competition be had on all lettings of work by the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument Commission.

Hon. George J. Langsdale,

Pres. Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument Commission:

SIR—I acknowledge the receipt from you of the following communication:

“Can this Commission, under the law enacted for its guidance, contract for any part or all of the decorative work upon the monument without previously publicly advertising for designs and proposals, or is it imperative that there be public competition?”

Section 5 of the act providing for the erection of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument (acts 1887, p. 30) contains the following language: “The Commissioners are authorized to contract for labor, material, transportation, or any distinct portion of the work. All lettings of the work shall be advertised in two or more newspapers of general circulation, and sealed proposals shall be received therefor; but the Commissioners shall have the right to reject any and all bids." Three things may be affirmed with certainty from the language quoted: 1. That all lettings of work should be advertised in the manner provided. 2. That sealed proposals should be received for the performance of the work advertised; and, 3, that the minds of the parties to contracts for the performance of such work should be brought together by the acceptance of sealed proposals or bids.

Public competition in the letting of contracts for public works ordinarily affords the best guaranty of securing reasonable proposals for the performance of such works, and, therefore, a provision of statute for public competition in such a case is mandatory.

Section 44 of the new election law construed.

Hon. Alvin P. Hovey, Governor of Indiana:

SIR—You have asked me for an opinion touching Section 44 of the election law, approved March 6, 1889. That section is as follows: "No person entitled to vote at any general, National, State, or county election shall be employed upon the day on which such election shall be held, in any manufacturing, mining, mechanical or mercantile establishment, or any railroad corporation in this State during the period of four hours after the opening of any election in the county in which such person is entitled to vote, except as to works of necessity, in which works of necessity every employe shall be given some period of four hours between the opening and the closing of the polls of said day; and any circuit court may enforce the provisions of this section in term time, or in vacation by mandate, or otherwise, upon the application of any voter. Every officer of any corporation, owner, superintendent, overseer or foreman, who employs or permits to be employed any person in violation of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars."

This language must be taken as a legislative declaration that no person who is entitled to vote at any National, State or county election shall be employed on the day of election in the establishments or corporations named during the period of four hours immediately after the opening of the polls, except as to works of necessity; and where a person is employed in such works of necessity he shall be given time between the opening and the closing of the polls in which to vote.

The language of the statute, in my judgment, is too plain to admit of question. The period of four hours must be held to begin at the hour of opening the polls, and to continue thereafter for the period of four hours.

In case any of the establishments or corporations mentioned do not comply with this statute, or if they should refuse to comply therewith, an action may be maintained in the circuit court to compel them to obey the provisions of the statute, and the officers, owners, superintendents, overseers or foremen who violate this section will be liable to a fine of not less than fifty dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars. In other words, this statute is both mandatory and penal in its nature, and it must be obeyed strictly.

After a decision adverse to a county superintendent, on appeal to the State Superintendent, the former can not be allowed to certify further facts to the latter, for the purpose of obtaining a rehearing.

Hon. Harvey M. LaFollette,

Superintendent of Public Instruction :

SIR—I am in receipt of your favor of the 29th ult. Section 4538, R. S. 1881, to which you refer, is as follows: “Appeals shall be allowed from the decisions of county superintendents of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, on all matters not otherwise provided for in the next preceding section; and the rules that govern appeals from justices of the peace to the circuit courts, as to the time of taking an appeal, giving bond, etc., shall be applicable appeals from county superintendents to the Superintendent of Public Instruction.”

Upon this statute I advise you that after a decision adverse to the county superintendent, as in the case you put, he can not be allowed to certify to you further facts for the purpose of securing a rehearing. Aside from the language of the statute, which seems to me to forbid such an irregular procedure, it must be presumed, as the Legislature has vested you with powers bearing a close analogy to those exercised by judicial tribunals, that it was intended to give parties interested in causes pending before you, their day in court, and to afterward compel them to abide by your decisions, in so far as they may be conclusive of their rights.

An opinion as to the authority of the Board of State Charities to make expenditures out of their appropriation.

Hon. Alexander Johnson,

Secretary Board of State Charities :

SIR—I am in receipt of the following communication from you :

“By order of the Board of State Charities, I am directed to ask you for an opinion upon certain departments of their work as follows :

“The act under which the Board was appointed, Chapter XXXVII of the Statutes of 1889, in prescribing their duties, says, in section 2, ‘They may make such rules and orders for the regulation of their own proceedings as they may deem necessary. They shall investigate the whole system of public charities and correctional institutions of the State ;’ and in section 4, ‘They shall annually prepare and print for the use of the Legislature, a full and complete report * * * showing the actual condition of all the State institutions under their control, with such suggestions as they may deem necessary and pertinent.’ Section 5 appropriates a sum of money to be used for all expenses made necessary by this act.

“In endeavoring to discharge these important duties, the Board have found it necessary to inform themselves, not only upon the present condition of the institutions of Indiana, but also as to the methods practiced in other States with regard to similar institutions, and as to the conclusions of persons who have made the conduct of such affairs a matter of scientific study. The Board feel that before they can make suggestions which shall be pertinent, they must study the subject in all its bearings. They also consider that their duties include the diffusion of information on matters connected with the public charities and corrections of the State, especially among the officers and trustees of the State institutions.

"They have accordingly made sundry necessary expenditures for such purposes, partly to secure information for themselves, and partly to diffuse information throughout the State, in the purchase of sundry books and papers, and in other ways. Among these have been a subscription making each member of the Board a member of the National Prison Association, so as to secure the valuable publications of that Association and the privilege of attending its meetings, the purchase and distribution throughout the State of an annual publication known as 'Prison Sunday,' and the purchase of a number of copies of the proceedings of the National Conference of Charities and Correction. The expenditures made have been strictly within the amount of the appropriation.

"Will you kindly inform them whether, in your opinion, such expenditures as I have stated, when considered by the Board to be necessary and useful, and when they are not in excess of the appropriation, are proper and within a rightful interpretation of the meaning of the law."

The act you mention, as the courts and officers of the State know as a matter of public history, was passed to correct the abuses which had existed in some of our State and local institutions, and also to lift the management of such institutions to a higher plane, by the dissemination of a knowledge to the officers governing them of modern and efficient methods in the care and treatment of the unfortunate and delinquent classes committed to their keeping. The act is, therefore, remedial, having for its end the promotion of important and beneficial public objects, and as such it should be given a broad construction, which will make it efficient to further those objects.

Wolcott v. Pond, 13 Conn. 596, 603. The authorities sustain the proposition that remedial statutes may be construed ultra, but not contra, the strict letter. Marion Township Draining Company v. Norris, 37 Ind. 424; Converse v. Burrows, 2 Minn. 229; Crocker v. Crane, 21 Ward 211.

Section 2, of the act, empowers the Board to "make such rules and orders for the regulation of their own proceedings as they may deem necessary.” This implies an authority to determine what proceedings are necessary to carry out the purposes of the act, and, without attempting to project the lines which marks the boundary of that power, it may safely be affirmed, considering the character of the enactment, that the Board might make any expenditure which would not be absolutely foreign to the general object which the law-makers had in mind.

As to the particular expenditures you mention, I have to say that in my opinion they are eminently proper. Presuming, as we must, that the Legislature intended its measure to be a practical, and not a theoretical one, it must be held that the act contemplates that the Board may make expenditures for objects which tend either to fit the members of the Board, or those they are called upon to advise, for the discharge of their responsible duties.

REPORT

—OF—

State Mine Inspector

—FOR—

YEAR ENDING OCTOBER 31, 1890.

TO THE GOVERNOR.

INDIANAPOLIS:

WM. B. BURFORD, CONTRACTOR FOR STATE PRINTING AND BINDING.

THE STATE OF INDIANA,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
INDIANAPOLIS, December 20, 1890. }

Received by the Governor, examined and referred to the Auditor of State for verification of the financial statements.

Transmitted to the Secretary of State for publication, upon the order of the Board of Commissioners of Public Printing and Binding.

WILLIAM B. ROBERTS,
Private Secretary.

Filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Indiana, January 17, 1891.

CLAUDE MATTHEWS,
Secretary of State.

To His Excellency, ALVIN P. HOVEY,
Governor of Indiana:

SIR—I herewith transmit my report as Mine Inspector for the year ending October 31, 1890.

It summarizes, as fully as I could ascertain, the facts concerning the output, capital, and men employed, together with fatal and non-fatal accidents, in the mines of the State that are subject to inspection.

I have also included a short account of each mine visited, giving the condition, capacity, and style of mining at each, and now submit the result of my labors in the hope that it will help to increase the knowledge of and interest in the development of the great wealth and power that lies hidden in the coal fields of Indiana.

Respectfully,

THOS. R. TISLOW,
Inspector of Mines.

REPORT OF INSPECTOR.

To the Governor :

A combination of adverse circumstances for the past two or three years has borne heavily upon the mining industry of this State. A series of warm winters greatly lessened both local and foreign demand. The discovery and rapid development of the great Natural Gas Belt of the State almost annihilated the sale of other fuel in the sections where found and in the adjacent territory where pipe lines supplied gas, and in several localities strikes and lockouts greatly diminished the output. Notwithstanding these serious drawbacks, the coal production of the year has increased about 573,500 tons as compared with 1887, no doubt almost wholly due to the opening of a vast number of new mines. It is highly gratifying to be able to say that the outlook is favorable for a prosperous season both for miners and mine operators.

The previous stagnation has been, in a measure, beneficial for many obvious reasons; some old mines have been worked out and abandoned, and it has happened in this industry, as it happens to all in a rapidly growing country like this, that the demand has overtaken the supply, and with the better feeling among miners and operators now prevailing, it can only happen that business in the coal industry of the State will be fairly active the ensuing year.

It ought to be stated also that the reputation of Indiana coal is rising. Block coal has of course been always highly esteemed, but the bituminous coal, as wider developments are made, shows such an extensive range of quality that it is rapidly becoming a favorite coal in the commercial centers sufficiently near to permit its transportation.

I desire to commend the recommendation of my predecessors as to amendments of the mining laws, and to suggest that stringent legislation be enacted requiring reports of casualties to be made to the proper officer.

I hope I may be pardoned for referring to the unfortunate condition of affairs in this office by litigation over the construction of the legislation relating to it. I was greatly hampered and embarrassed by lack of funds and lack of assistance, and what has been accomplished has been done with great effort, under circumstances most adverse.

ACCIDENTS.

A perusal of the subjoined list shows that in a vast majority of cases injuries result from falling slate, and investigation convinces me that nearly or quite all were avoidable, and due to carelessness of the men themselves or to the mine foreman. Long immunity from injury produces in men a contempt of danger, and they neglect to take due precaution. They delay setting props, or the mine boss delays sending them in. They venture under roofs or coal they know to be dangerous; and so accidents happen. An examination of the list shows that the laws of the State have been vastly beneficial, in that their enforcement has eliminated that class of accidents formerly so common, due to defective shafts, machinery and ventilation.

The following is a list of fatal accidents:

February 16, 1890. A man whose name I could not learn, killed by fall of slate in Mine No. 6, owned by Cabel & Kauffman, Washington, Daviess County.

March 11, 1890. Man, name unknown, killed by falling slate in Wilson & Co.'s mine, in Daviess County.

March 15, 1890. Mers Collenburg, killed by falling slate in Lyonton Coal Co.'s mine, in Sullivan County.

September 26, 1890. Wm. Harvey, killed by fall of slate, and at same time, Wallace Hinton and Henry Lively were injured. The last two were not miners, but were visiting Harvey at the time the casualty occurred. Henry Lively had a leg broken in several places and was otherwise bruised so that it was thought he would die, but I have not learned if he did.

November 2, 1890. Michael Eskone, killed by falling slate in Lancaster Mine No. 2, owned by Lancaster Coal Co., Clay County.

ACCIDENTS NOT FATAL.

January 1, 1890. Wm. Perry, leg broken by fall of slate in Jumbo Mine, owned by Watson & Little, Clay County.

Bituminous; seam "L," 4 feet 10 inches thick; shaft, 96 feet; ventilated by fan; 82 men employed inside and 14 outside. Steam plant, using 14 Harrison machines, and one Legg. I consider this as one of the best ventilated mines in the State, and it has splendid roof and floor.

KNOX COUNTY.

INDIAN CREEK COAL CO.

Located one and one-half miles south of Bicknell, on the I. & V. Ry. Operated by the Indian Creek Coal Co. This mine was shut down when I visited it in June, and I did not go inside.

PROSPECT MINE.

Located at Vincennes. Leased and operated by Augustus Evering. I visited this mine August 2, and on inspection found bad air, as the air shaft had not yet been put down. I found from measurement that the operator had excavated the number of square yards necessary, and ordered him to at once complete the shaft, which he agreed to do. The machinery was good and running smoothly. This coal is "K," 3 feet 6 inches thick; shaft, 355 feet. Employs from 12 to 15 men, and has a fine prospect. Since my first visit the air shaft has been completed, and the operator now considers his mine safe. This is a new mine and had not yet got in full working trim when I last visited it.

CURRIEVILLE.

Located one-half mile north of Shelburn, on E. & I. Ry.; owned and operated by Shelburn Coal Co.; opened in 1870. This mine works two seams—top seam, 4 feet; lower seam, 6 feet. Shaft to top vein is 195 feet; to lower vein, 230 feet; ventilated by fan; sufficient air is furnished for number of men employed in mine. Number of men employed, 40 inside, 12 outside. Employs 1 Legg and 6 Harrison machines; style of mining, rooms and pillars; scales and machinery in good order. The company gives every evidence of a strict compliance with the mining laws.

BUNKER HILL.

Located on the I. & I. S. Ry., owned and operated by Hancock & Conkel; opened in 1880; bituminous; seam "K." 5 feet 6 inches in depth; shaft, 72 feet; ventilated by fan.

This mine of Hancock & Conkel's is situated in the coal fields of Indiana, near the southeastern boundary line of Sullivan county, five miles from the city of Sullivan, the county seat, and on the line of the Indiana & Illinois Southern Railway, five miles from direct line to Chicago, connecting with the Evansville & Terre Haute and Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railways. The mine is worked at comparatively little expense, not having any natural disadvantages to encounter, such as "rolls," "horse-backs," superfluous water, bad roofing, etc. This happy state of affairs is owing to the mine having been properly located, thus avoiding the faults so commonly found in mines working seam "K." This mine has three workable veins of coal, seam "X" being first, at a depth of 30 feet, with a soapstone roof, and having an average depth of 3 feet 4 inches, good, clean, and of a very fair quality of coal. Underlying this vein a 9-foot vein of workable fire-clay is found. This clay, having been tested, is of excellent quality for the manufacture of fire-brick and tile. Beneath this clay, and before reaching coal "K," now being worked, is found the following stratas:

Limestone, 5 feet;

Gray shale, 3 feet;

Gray slate, 6 feet;

Black slate, 16 feet; coming to coal "K" at a depth of 72 feet 4 inches from the surface. They find seam "K" to be 5 feet 6 inches in depth, and of excellent quality for steam and domestic purposes. It has been tested throughout Indiana and Illinois, and in the Chicago market, and is found to be superior to that produced by the same vein in any other section of the county, probably due to the lack of faults already mentioned, and to its comparative freeness from copperas rock. This seam has been worked by Hancock & Conkel for eight years, and the mine, for quality of coal and ease of production, is as good as any in the State, and is in splendid condition. Seam "L" is now being worked ten miles further east, underlying seam "K" at a depth of 80 feet, and showing a uniform thickness of 6 feet of clean coal, thus proving Bunker Hill a three vein mine, as follows: Seam "X," 3 feet 4 inches, at a depth of 30 feet; seam "K," 5 feet 6 inches, at a depth of 72 feet, and seam "L," 6 feet, at a depth of 152 feet. Having a steam plant for putting out coal, and markets throughout Indiana and Illinois, and especially the Chicago market, the mine is perhaps on as sound a basis, and has as fine prospects for financial gain as any now operated within the borders of the State.

VANDEBURG COUNTY.

SUNNYSIDE.

Located at Evansville, and owned and operated by the Sunnyside Coal and Coke Co.; opened in 1881; bituminous; seam K, 4 feet thick; shaft 260 feet; ventilated by fan; air good; employs 100 men inside and 10 outside. The manager, Mr. Wooly, is a practical miner, and consequently keeps the mine machinery in A 1 order, both inside and outside. This mine lost one man during the past year, Frank Wise, by his car falling and catching him under it.

UNITY MINE.

Located at Evansville, and operated by the Sunnyside Coal Co.; bituminous; seam K, 4 feet thick; shaft 260 feet; ventilated by fan; air good; employs 90 men inside and 9 outside. This mine was idle when I visited it, and expected to remain idle until July 1, or until the machinery, etc., was fully repaired. The coal produced here is of the same quality as that mined at Sunnyside.

DIAMOND MINE.

Located at Evansville; owned and operated by the Diamond Coal Mining Co.; seam K, 4 feet thick; shaft 260 feet; ventilated by fan; air good; employs 31 men inside and 10 outside. This coal has not been analyzed. The average price for mining is 75 to 85 cents. No complaint of scales. Prospect good.

INGLESIDE.

Located just west of Evansville, on the Belt Railway; owned and operated by J. Ingle & Co.; bituminous; seam "K," 4 feet thick; shaft, 265 feet; ventilated by fan; air good; employs 64 men inside and 10 outside. This mine is one of the oldest in the State, being opened about the year 1850. I know of no other mine in the State that has been in continuous operation for so long a period. I found everything in and about this mine in good order; the men were all satisfied, and the coal supply will last for years yet.

FIRST AVENUE MINE.

Located at Evansville, on Belt Railway; owned and operated by the First Avenue Coal Co.; bituminous; seam "K," 4 feet thick; shaft, 266 feet; ventilation by fan. By running the fan at a higher rate than when I visited the mine, they can have all the air they want. This mine is an old one, and employs 40 men inside and 8 outside. Scales and machinery were in fine order. Outlook good.

FOUNTAIN COUNTY.

HARRISON MINE.

Located $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles north of Veedersburg; owned and operated by Harrison Block Coal Co. Miners informed me that this mine had shut down indefinitely on account of bad roof and ill ventilation, and so I did not visit it.

PARKE COUNTY.

No. 6.

Owned and operated by the Parke County Coal Co.; located one mile west of Rosedale; opened in 1887; thickness of coal, 6 feet; bituminous, "L"; 81-foot shaft; ventilated by fan; air good; men employed—inside, 250; outside, 21. WILLIAM P. HARRISON MINE.

Located one mile west of Sand Creek, and owned and operated by William P. Harrison. This mine was opened in 1850; depth of coal, 3 feet 6 inches; bituminous; slope; ventilated by furnace; air good; men employed—inside, 18; outside, 9. Mine in fair shape, and operator is conscientiously complying with the spirit of the law.

COAL MINE AT MINCHELL POST-OFFICE (ROSEDALE).

Operated by the Parke County Coal Co.; opened in 1888; depth of coal, 3 feet 8 inches; bituminous; L; 98-foot shaft; fan ventilation; air sufficient for number of men employed—95 inside, 9 outside; style of mining, rooms and pillars; steam plant; scales, machinery and apparatus in good condition.

Near this mine is an old abandoned shaft, full of water. Blasts in the new mine had cracked the wall between it and the old one, and, as the bottom of the working mine is lower than that of the unused one, it was feared the wall would give way and engulf the men. I was ordered to the scene on June 11, ult., and on investigation found the mine unsafe. Ordered a coffer dam, V-shaped, to be erected, that the men might have sufficient warning in case the water in volume broke through. The order was complied with, and safety assured. A letter from the Bank Committee, three weeks afterward, informed me that the water in the old mine had been drained off, and all danger from that source averted.

COXVILLE, No. 1.

Operated by Brazil Block Coal Co.; located one-half mile east of Rosedale; depth of coal, 6 feet; bituminous; I, 90-foot shaft; fan ventilation; air good; men employed—inside, 200; outside, 11. This mine has 10 Harrison machines. Style of mining, rooms and pillars; steam plant. Operators apparently complying with the statutes.

COXVILLE, No. 2.

Located at Coxville; operated by Brazil Block Coal Co.; mine opened in 1887; bituminous, L; depth of coal, 5 feet 6 inches; 30-foot shaft; fan ventilation; air perfect; men employed—inside, 75; outside, 5; steam plant; scales and machinery in good condition.

SAND CREEK, No. 2.

Located a short distance northwest of Sand Creek; operated by the Wyandotte Coal and Mining Co.; opened in 1877; depth of coal, 3 feet 10 inches; bituminous; drift, L; furnace ventilation; air cut off by "gob" pile on fire and a roof cave in; but at the time of my visit there, in June, they were putting up "bradishes" to smother the fire, and cutting a new air shaft to the furnace, which had been fireless for two years. A letter from the company stated that this work was accomplished in sixty days after my visit. The mine and its apparatus is in ill shape.

PIKE COUNTY.

AYRSHIRE MINE.

Owned and operated by David Ingle & Brother; located at Ayrshire, a station on the L., E. & St. L. R. R., about seven miles south of Petersburg, the capital of the county; 56-foot slope; men employed—inside, 56; outside, 8.

This mine produces a most excellent steam and coking coal; it is also very fine for domestic use. In connection with the mine are 54 coke ovens, producing as good coke as is made in the West. Some of the ovens, however, are idle, as it is not found profitable to use anything but slack for coking. The head works and machinery are in good condition, and the mine is well ventilated by fan. Seam worked "L," 5 feet 6 inches thick.

ROGERS' MINE.

Owned and operated by Rogers Bros.; located on White River, at crossing of Evansville & Indianapolis Railway. Mine in fair condition, but extremely difficult to drain and keep dry. Seam "K," which is here from 7 to 8 feet thick, and a very good steam coal. The shaft is 40 feet deep, ventilated by fan; good air; men employed—35 inside; 4 outside; scales and machinery first-class.

BLACKBURN MINE.

Located on the E. & I. R. R., about three miles northeast of Petersburg; slope; seam "K," 7 to 9 feet in thickness; men employed—inside, 28; outside, 5; ventilated by furnace; ample air.

On February 28, last, this mine was flooded by overflow from White River, at which time it was operated by the lessee, Mr. S. Bettaman, who refused to provide pumps and clear the mine of the deluge. Mr. F. B. Posey, the owner, then had pumps constructed, under my supervision, and drained the mine. He has been operating it continuously since then, at its full capacity.

Blackburn Mine has splendid roofing, and makes but little water, and is a fat coking coal, much esteemed for domestic use and steam. In connection with the mine are 9 coke ovens to work up the slack, which makes a bright, heavy, laminated coke, very strong and firm, but containing too much sulphur for foundry use.

LITTLE'S MINE.

Located at Little's Station, on the E. & I. R. R.. This is the same coal worked at Rogers and Blackburn mines, of the same general thickness and quality. The mine is owned and operated by S. W. Little, and it and its appurtenances are in good condition. On my first visit to this mine complaint was made of bad air, but, at my suggestion, a fan was put in, and an ample supply of good air obtained. On June 20, ult., tested scales here, and found them correct.

WARRICK COUNTY.

LOUDER & WOOLEY'S MINE.

Located one-fourth of a mile east of Boonville; opened in 1870; owned and operated by Louder and Wooley; bituminous; seam "K," $6\frac{1}{2}$ feet thick; shaft, 42 feet; ventilated by furnace; splendid air; employs 22 men inside and 4 outside. This mine is on the Boonville branch of L., E. & St. L. Ry. Scales and machinery are in good order.

ROBERT GOUGH MINE.

Located one-fourth of a mile east of Boonville; owned and operated by Robert Gough; opened in 1874; bituminous; seam "K," $6\frac{1}{2}$ feet thick; shaft, 42 feet; ventilated by furnace; air good; employs 18 men inside and 4 outside; steam plant; apparatus in good order.

STAR MINE.

Located within one-half mile of Newburgh, on the E. S. & N. Ry. (Dummy Line), and Ohio River; owned by C. F. Hopkins and Mr. Parson, leased to John Ingle & Co., and operated by John Archibald; bituminous; seam "K;" shaft, 125 feet; furnace ventilation; air good; 10 men inside and 2 outside; apparatus in good order.

DAVISON'S MINE.

Located on L. E. & St. L. Ry., near Boonville; operated by Gosler & Swormstedt; post-office address, Evansville; bituminous; "K," 5 feet thick; shaft, 90 feet; furnace ventilation; air good; 20 men inside and 2 outside; style, rooms and pillars; steam plant; scales, wire rope, etc., in good order; James Lord, bank boss, De Forrest, Ind.

NOTA BENA.—The collieries of Indiana, with one exception, employ steam for hoisting, etc. The exception is Jumbo Mine, Clay County, which uses both steam and electricity.

Rooms and pillars is the almost universal method employed in mining, Sunnyside Mine, Vanderburgh County, being the only one, I believe, that departs from that style and adopts the cheap, but rather questionable, mode of "long wall" work.

Capital and output will be found in tabular statement in the closing pages of this report.

MINOR MINES.

The following mines have, by force of circumstances, been brought to my notice. They are being worked periodically in a small way, and devote their output wholly for local demand.

Mrs. Jane Posey this year put a 75 foot shaft down on her farm, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles east of Petersburg, Pike County, and found bituminous coal 9 feet thick. This is a fine steam coal, but operations at the mine are meagre and not yet systematized.

At Otwell, 10 miles east of Petersburg, Pike County, a 90 foot shaft has been put down. A good steam coal, $4\frac{1}{2}$ feet thick, was found. This, too, is a new mine and has not been developed.

Elijah Smith is working a drift mine 3 miles east of Petersburg, Pike County. The seam is 6 feet thick, and the coal is of excellent quality.

John W. Bradfield is getting out fine coal from a 7 foot vein on his farm, 4 miles northeast of Petersburg, Pike County.

Jerome B. Borer mines a fair quality of steam and domestic coal found in a 5 foot vein on the farm of Samuel H. Stuckey, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles north of Petersburg, Pike County. This mine, for length of time worked each year, makes quite a respectable showing in output. This mine also produces a fine quality of fire clay.

Malott's Mine, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles southwest of Petersburg, Pike County; seam is $4\frac{1}{2}$ feet thick; good bituminous coal; 35 foot shaft.

McMurray's mines, 4 miles east of Petersburg, Pike County; has been opened about ten years; bituminous; coal $4\frac{1}{2}$ feet thick; slope.

Wash. Massey's mine, located at Massey's Bridge, on Patoka River, about 10 miles southwest of Petersburg, Pike County; bituminous; seam, 13 feet thick, and of excellent quality; drift.

CROW'S MINE.

Located 3 miles west of Winslow, Pike County, on the Oakland City wagon road. This mine has a 5 foot vein of good coal, and is easily worked by slope.

CARR'S MILL MINE.

Located 11 miles southwest of Petersburg, Pike County; bituminous; vein, 4 feet thick, reached by slope. Last summer a party consisting of a man, his wife and son were one day eating dinner just inside the mouth of the slope, when the roof caved in and crushed the life out of each one of them. Could not learn the names of the victims of the disaster.

FRISCO MINES.

Located at Frisco, Gibson County; bituminous; seam, $4\frac{1}{2}$ feet thick; shaft; steam plant: opened last winter.

MONROE CITY MINES.

Located at Monroe City, Knox County; opened last summer; seam, 5 feet thick; shaft, 70 feet: bituminous; steam plant.

GRIFF'S MINES.

Located $\frac{3}{4}$ of a mile northeast of Morgan's Ferry, Knox County; drift; $4\frac{1}{2}$ feet thick; P. O., Petersburg.

Hundreds of small mines are being operated in Indiana, but it has been impossible for either me or my deputy to learn their names, character, location, etc. Their history, or description, would be of local interest only.

DUBOIS COUNTY.

Through the courtesy of Hon. John L. Bretz, present member of congress, I have been furnished the following interesting facts concerning the coal industry of this county:

Geo. Freeman operates a $3\frac{1}{2}$ foot seam of coal on his farm, 1 mile southeast of Jasper; slope. This is a bituminous coal, and is used by local blacksmiths and for domestic purposes.

Wm. Bretz mines a vein similar in all respects to the one just mentioned. Located near the county seat, Jasper.

Jos. Lory, $\frac{1}{2}$ mile east of St. Anthony, operates a $3\frac{1}{2}$ foot vein of drift coal.

Mrs. Rachel Hopkins, near Jasper, mines the same vein.

These mines employ from four to six men part of the year. They supply only the local demand. There are two seams of coal in this county, the top strata alone being worked, being a drift through the hills. The lower vein is about 200 feet further down. Borings show it to be about 7 feet thick, and it is evidently the same seam found at Vincennes. All the mines are on or near the L., E. & St. L. R'y.

PERRY AND VERMILLION COUNTIES.

Because of information to the effect that the mines in these counties were not being operated, and on account of lack of time, neither myself nor deputy has visited them. It is hardly probable that much mining is being carried on in either of these counties, and no complaint has come up from them. However, they will be visited by myself or deputy as soon as opportunity affords, which will probably be about December of this year.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., December 11, 1890.

To the Honorable ALVIN P. HOVEY,

Governor of Indiana:

DEAR SIR—I have the honor of transmitting to you herewith the biennial report of the Board of Trustees of the Indiana University for the fiscal years ending October 31, 1889, and October 31, 1890.

And accompanying this report permit me to make a brief statement of the present condition of the University and of its most pressing needs.

The growth of the University within the last five years has been very rapid. Contrasting the present condition of the University with that of five years ago, we find that the number of students has increased 150 per cent., the number of teachers employed 90 per cent., the number of different classes taught 250 per cent., and amount paid yearly in salaries by about 85 per cent. In 1885 the total number of students in attendance in the college classes was 156, there being twenty-six members in the graduating class. For the present year the total enrollment will be not less than 360 (exclusive of about twenty-five persons taking studies in law only), and the graduating class in the "liberal arts" numbers seventy. In considering these numbers it should be borne in mind that the Indiana University now maintains no preparatory school. None of the work of the high schools or of other parts of the public school system is now duplicated in the University. As its instruction begins where the work of the high school leaves off, its lowest class is composed of those who have successfully completed the course of the high school or a fair equivalent. There are but two or three other colleges in the West which have as large a number of students in the college proper, as distinguished from preparatory and professional schools.

The various sections of the State are all well represented in the University. Students are now in attendance from seventy-five of the ninety-two counties. The counties of the State which have sent no students within the past three years are eight in number, as follows:

Lake, Porter, Starke, Steuben, Newton, Parke, Tipton, Ohio.

In the same period the counties best represented have been: Monroe, Wayne, Marion, Madison, Morgan, Decatur, Carroll, Lawrence, Bartholomew and Posey.

The matter of numbers is in itself no test of the value or the success of an institution of learning, for the most advanced students in any department of study are few. It can, however, be said that the best students will go where the best work is done, and the Indiana University will never lack for numbers so long as its instruction is thorough, and its work is abreast of modern thought and modern methods.

More important than the fact of the increase of numbers is the fact of the steady improvement in the quality of the work done by the professors and students. The reputation of the University, both within and without the State, has been constantly rising. No well informed person now speaks with disrespect of the work done in the University, while among college men throughout the country, the Indiana University is regarded as one of the most progressive and most promising schools in the United States. It may be further said that the Indiana University is especially a school for persons of limited means. Expenses are lower in Bloomington than in any other town in the West which is the seat of a State University. The great majority of the students are not rich, and fully three-fourths of them have earned, by their own work, much or all of the money spent on their education. Connected with this lack of money for lavish expenditure is the fact that in no institution are the students, as a body, more earnest, or their moral tone higher, than in the State University.

The chief immediate needs of the University may be briefly summed up as follows:

1. A public hall and chapel building. The University has no room suitable for general lectures, or for its own public exercises. The little temporary chapel in Maxwell Hall, with seats for 225, has been wholly outgrown, and there is imperative need of a new building which shall contain a commodious hall and a number of office and recitation rooms.

2. Equally pressing is the need of suitable accommodations for the large and growing Department of Physics. While technical training is not given in the University, the demand for thorough instruction in General Physics on the part of teachers and others is very great. The Physical Laboratory must be in a building free from iron girders, and constructed especially to meet the needs of the department. Such a building need not be large or costly, but it must be fitted for its purpose.

3. The University has pressing need of a gymnasium for the work of physical culture.

Very respectfully yours,

ISAAC JENKINSON,

President of the Board of Trustees of the Indiana University.

ATTENDANCE DURING THE PRESENT YEAR.

The attendance so far during the year beginning September 10, 1890, indicates a large increase over any previous year. The present enrollment is 475, and the indications are that we shall enroll 50 more before the close of the year, making a total attendance of 525.

The Freshman class is remarkably large, numbering at present 144. For this reason we are obliged to divide it into five sections.

The character and standing of the students have improved as steadily as the numbers have increased. They are better qualified, are more mature, and consequently are doing better work. Never before in the history of Purdue have we had such earnest work on the part of the students as we have had this year, and never have we had so few delinquencies. Altogether the outlook for the present year is most encouraging.

IMPROVEMENTS DURING THE PAST TWO YEARS.

The last General Assembly appropriated $45,000 for improvements to Purdue University, to be divided as follows:

For the Mechanical Laboratory.....	$15,000
For a new Electrical Laboratory.....	15,000
For additions to the Station equipment.....	15,000

This money has all been expended with the exception of a few hundred dollars, as will be shown by the two reports of the Secretary of the Board of Trustees, one of which is found in our 14th report and the other in this report.

Bringing together the items of these two reports, I make a brief exhibit of the manner in which this money was expended. When the Board began the discussion upon the best method of increasing our facilities it was thought that, while additions to the present shops could be made with economy, needed additions for draughting rooms could not properly be made to the present building. It was also decided that a second story might be built upon the foundation of the new Electrical Laboratory, which could be used for draughting rooms. This was done at an expense of about $5,300, as will appear from the subjoined statement.

The improvements that have been made are, in the main, of the most substantial character. The foundry, the forge-room and the machine shops have each been doubled in their capacity. The wood-room has been considerably enlarged, and the new drawing-rooms occupying the second story of the electrical building are in every way adapted to the purposes for which they were built. The Electrical Laboratory occupies the ground floor of the new building, and is fitted with power, dynamos, motors and other electrical apparatus.

On the Station side a much needed addition has been made to the Station Building. The new feeding barn, the tool barn and the dairy, are structures well adapted to their uses, while the addition to the farm-house gives us conveniences that have long been needed.

The State thus owns a plant worth $420,000.

The estimated value of our property is more than this amount, for two reasons :

1. Two of the buildings were built when material and labor were very low, and they are probably worth to-day $10,000 more than they cost.

2. A considerable amount of our apparatus has been given to us or sold to us at a discount from the commercial value.

The following statement will show what we have saved by these gifts and discounts :

Fittings and machinery for wood-room.	$1,066 00
Fittings and machinery for foundry	479 00
Fittings and machinery for forge-room..	892 00
Fittings for machine room	1,769 00

Dynamos and other electrical apparatus.	2,000 00
Total.....		$10,625 00

I call special attention to the fact that since 1873, a period of 17 years, the State has given the institution $57,500 for permanent improvements, and but $42,500 of this was for the College.

All the other improvements have come from appropriations from the General Government or have been taken from meager appropriations for current expenses.

It is worthy of note that less than one-third of our property which is owned by the State, has been paid for by the State, and also that less than one-third of its current income is derived from State appropriations.

I also call attention to the fact that seven years ago the income for current expenses was, from the State $20,000, and from the endowment fund $17,000, making a total of outside revenue of $37,000.

At this time our attendance was less than 250 students. Two years ago the State increased its appropriation to $30,000, making a total outside income of $47,000. Our attendance now, is about 500. It thus appears that with an increased income of 28 per cent. we were enabled to increase our attendance 100 per cent. While this ratio can not probably be continued indefinitely, I do not doubt that with a suitable plant and with an additional increase of 50 per cent. to our current income we should be able to provide for nearly double the present number of students.

WHAT PURDUE NEEDS FOR THE FUTURE.

It has been our ambition to make Purdue University one of the most thorough and best equipped technical schools in the country. The State of Indiana can afford to have nothing less. With the means at our command, I believe we have made as much progress toward this end as could have been reasonably expected. During the last seven years we have doubled the number of students in the University and trebled the number in the College proper. While we have greatly increased our facilities, the attendance has increased in a greater proportion, and we are thus in the same relative position that we were in seven years ago. The greatest pressure is found in our laboratories. (1.) We have been obliged to make an unsightly wooden addition to our Chemical Laboratory and to use the basement formerly occupied by our shops for the School of Pharmacy. We have thus increased the number of individual chemical desks to 148, and all of these are in use. It is quite certain that we shall have a large increase next year. What shall we do with this increase? (2.) The department of Biology is not given one-third the space which it really needs for the best kind of work. We have a good equipment, but not a sufficient amount of working space. (3.) The shop is again crowded to its fullest capacity. We are obliged to divide the students in some of the departments into three sections, thus doing the same work three times during the day.

The new steam Engineering Laboratory ought to have five times the space it now occupies. We may confidently hope that the School of Mechanics will increase in the future as it has in the past. What shall be done to provide for this increase? The Faculty has given this subject a great deal of attention, and are unanimous in the opinion that the best way to relieve these three departments is by the following plan:

1. A new Mechanical Laboratory should be erected about 300 feet east of the present Electrical Building.

2. The present Mechanical Laboratory should be converted into a laboratory for the Department of Chemistry and Department of Pharmacy.

3. The present Biological Laboratory should be sent over to the present Chemical Laboratory, or the Preparatory Department should be sent to the present Chemical Laboratory, and the Department of Biology be given the present Academic rooms. If a Mechanical Laboratory is built, it should be built for the future and not for the present.

I should think that $60,000 would build such a one as would be well adapted to our purposes and would equip it in a most thorough manner. I think it would not cost over $5,000 to fit up the Chemical and Biological Laboratories as I have suggested.

We also have an urgent demand for a new chapel. The present one, in the third story of the main building, is very small and not altogether safe. It does not accommodate one-half the people that sometimes wish to get into it. If a new chapel and library combined could be built upon the campus at a point midway between the Electrical Building and University Avenue, it would meet this demand and afford us room for many years to come.

Respectfully submitted,

J. H. SMART,

President.

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

To the Honorable, the General Assembly of Indiana :

In accordance with the requirements of section 4554 of the Revised Statutes of Indiana, the Trustees of the State Normal School have the honor to submit herewith their report for the two years ending October 31, 1890.

In the first enactment by the Legislature for the maintenance of the school it was provided that the State Superintendent of Public Instruction should, in each semi-annual apportionment of school revenue for tuition, deduct five thousand dollars to be set apart for the payment of teachers in this school. At that time the total enrollment of different students for the entire year was ninety-eight, and the number of teachers was four. In 1873, when the total enrollment of students had increased to 286, the amount of the semi-annual appropriation was increased to $7,500. As the number of students increased and the faculty was enlarged to correspond with the increased work, the appropriation was increased to $10,000 semi-annually. The faculty of the school now numbers seventeen heads of departments and teachers, in addition to four teachers in the training schools, who are partly paid by the State. A reference to the report of the Secretary hereto attached will show that we have paid out $23,833.50 on account of tuition during the past year, while our revenues on that account were only $20,000. It will, therefore, be apparent that an increased appropriation for tuition purposes will be required.

"We point with pride" to the table of statistics on page 13, showing the growth of the school from 1870 to 1890. From a total enrollment of ninety-eight for the first year we have reached a total of 1,009 students for the past year. The average term enrollment for the year ending October 31, 1870, was forty-seven; for the year ending October 31, 1890, 475. Attention is specially called to the report of the President of the faculty, wherein he presents the "needs of the school" and urges the necessity of an increase of the teaching force. It is absolutely necessary on account of the crowded condition of the recitation rooms and desirable in view of the recommendation of the President for an advanced post-graduate course of two years to fit graduates for positions as teachers of high schools and as Superintendents of town and city schools.

While the State of Pennsylvania has ten normal schools, New York ten, Massachusetts six, Minnesota four, and other States two or more, all maintained directly by the State, Indiana has but one. No institution of the kind does more thorough work than this. It is a credit to Indiana, but it costs the people less than any of its other educational institutions. While the State is and has been liberal in the recognition of the merits of the other educational institutions, we humbly and respectfully suggest that its appropriations to the State Normal School have not been characterized by the generosity and liberal support that its comparative work merits. In this connection it may not be amiss to call attention to the fact that its purpose and object is to furnish a better class of teachers for the common schools of the State, that over 75 per cent. of its students come from the farms and work-shops, that after graduation they return to serve the public in the schools, and we feel safe in claiming that no small measure of the improvement of the public schools of Indiana within the past twenty years can be attributed to the influence of the six thousand graduates who have gone out from the institution with more or less knowledge of improved methods of teaching.

We ask the Honorable General Assembly to so amend the law providing for furnishing a Normal School fund as to direct the Superintendent of Public Instruction to set apart $15,000 at each apportionment of school revenue for the payment of teachers in this school.

The suggestion of President Parsons that a separate building for a laboratory and museum is needed, is also respectfully called to the attention of the General Assembly, and is heartily endorsed. We estimate the expense for constructing and furnishing such a building to be not less than $35,000.

The reports of Secretaries Gilbert and Royse are attached hereto, and show the items in detail of receipts and expenditures. The incidental expense of the school during the past year, it will be seen, amounts to $10,304.35. This is $304.35 in excess of the amount appropriated for the purpose by the last Legislature. We, therefore, respectfully ask a similar appropriation for the incidental purposes this year.

The report of the treasurer, Hon. W. R. McKeen, will be found attached hereto, and shows exact correspondence with the report of the secretary.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

MURRAY BRIGGS,
President of the Board.

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE FACULTY.

HON. MURRAY BRIGGS, President Board of Trustees
Indiana State Normal School:

I herewith submit a scholastic report of the State Normal School for the year ending October 31, 1890.

THE FACULTY.

The faculty of the institution consists of a President, who is also head of the department of History and Science of Education; a Vice-President, who is the head of the department of Mental Science and Methods; ten additional heads of departments; five assistant teachers, and four training-school teachers—twenty-one instructors in all. In addition to these, a librarian and a secretary are regularly employed.

Since the report of two years ago there have been several changes in the faculty and in the organization of the departments. Mr. W. B. Creager, who held the position of assistant teacher of English Grammar and Composition, resigned on May 7, 1889, to accept the superintendency of the Government Training School for Indians, at Albuquerque, New Mexico, and Miss Mary J. Anderson was advanced to the position thus made vacant. Miss Ida B. Moore succeeded to the position formerly held by Miss Anderson.

At the close of the school year in June, 1889, it was thought advisable to divide the department of Natural Science into two departments, that of Biology and Geology, and that of Physics and Chemistry. Prof. Barton W. Evermann was placed in charge of the first, and Prof. Robert G. Gillum of the second. This division was necessitated by the increased number of students taking instruction in Natural Science, as, also, by the fact that the different lines of science provided in the course are too numerous to be taught thoroughly by one person.

Miss Annie Thomas, of the training school, resigned at the close of the academic year, ending in June, 1889, and was succeeded by Miss Elizabeth Mavity. At the close of the last academic year, June, 1890, Professors Nathan Newby and A. E. Humke, the former in charge of the department of Mathematics, and the latter of the department of Reading, withdrew from the institution. Mrs. Lizzie S. Byers, for several years an assistant teacher of Mathematics in the institution, was promoted to full charge of this department: and Prof. Arnold Tompkins, late of DePauw Normal School, was elected head of the department of Reading. To this department was added the subjects of Rhetoric and English Literature. For several years past the instruction in English Grammar, Composition, Rhetoric and Literature, has been under the direction of one person. The classes were so large and so numerous that it was deemed wise to divide this department, and unite the Rhetoric and English Literature with the department of Reading—the subjects of Reading, Rhetoric and Literature also being closely related, and thus leaving, as constituting one department, the subjects of English Grammar and Composition. It is believed this is a more logical division of the subjects in English, as also a more equal distribution of the classes between the departments.

The large increase in attendance during the spring term of the year makes it necessary to employ several assistant teachers for this term. In the spring of 1889, and also of 1890, three such assistants were required. As the attendance is almost twice as large during this term as at other terms in the year, it would greatly promote the thoroughness of the instruction given if not fewer than four or five such temporary assistant teachers could be employed at the opening of each spring term. The faculty, as it is now constituted, is given on page 6 of this report.

I am glad to say that competent persons have been found to fill the vacancies which have occurred from time to time, and that the instruction in the Normal School proper and in the Training School is efficiently carried on. In this connection it is proper to say, that one of the greatest difficulties experienced by a normal school is the finding and securing of competent, professionally trained teachers. A normal school is a school for the professional training of teachers. Manifestly, the teachers in such a school must themselves possess the highest professional ability and attainments. A general scholarship and culture, such as the college or university confers, however thorough and extended this may be, does not of itself prepare one to render the highest service as a teacher in a normal school; and this for the reason that in the normal school all subjects are taught and studied from a pedagogical point of view. The object is not simply, as in the general school, to give the student a thorough knowledge of the subject and to train him most efficiently by means of it—not this only, but, in addition, to enable him to master the method in the subject itself. The normal student is to be taught how to teach the subject. A normal school teacher, therefore, must be a teacher who has added to a liberal and accurate scholarship a thorough understanding of the history, the science and the art of education, and who possesses that practical skill in instructing and management which extended experience alone can give. A normal school must select as its teachers persons of thorough and liberal scholastic training, of sound educational views acquired by the study of education in all its phases, and of ascertained and demonstrated skill in the actual work of the school room. To do its work efficiently a normal school must be able, whenever a position is to be filled, to command the services of the most scholarly and the most thoroughly trained teacher to be found. Such persons hold the most responsible and the most remunerative educational positions in the country, and to secure their services the normal school must be able to offer a compensation not below that which can be obtained by them elsewhere.

Total number of different students since the organization of the school, 6,396.

Of the 450 graduates and 5,946 undergraduates of the institution, it is impossible to determine what proportion are now teaching, but a large majority, it is known, are actively engaged in the school work of the State. It is doubtful if there is a township in the State which has not at some time had one or more teachers from this institution, and probably the public schools of no county of the State are at this time without several representatives of the Normal School. Capable graduates and undergraduates experience no difficulty in securing positions at remunerative salaries. The supply of such persons, qualified for systematic, thorough school work, has for several years proved quite unequal to the demand.

THE OBJECTS AND METHODS OF THE SCHOOL.

On the 20th of December, 1864, it was enacted by the General Assembly of Indiana "that there shall be established and maintained, as hereinafter provided, a State Normal School, the object of which shall be the preparation of teachers for teaching in the common schools of Indiana."

This statute defines clearly the object of the State Normal School. Its sole function is the preparation of teachers for the common schools of the State. The Normal School is not a school for general culture for its own sake. It is a professional school. Its central idea is to confer that knowledge which constitutes the science of education, and to train students in the art of instruction and school management. Its leading aim is to give that knowledge and training which belong as distinctively to the teacher as does the science of medicine to the physician, or the science of law to the legal practitioner. A school is a normal school, in the sense contemplated in the statute quoted, only when it makes these its controlling ends. To hold the State Normal School to its one object as a professional institution, only those are admitted to its privileges who intend to prepare for the work of the school-room. To the work of preparing teachers for the common schools of the State, the Normal School has, during the twenty years of its existence, addressed its entire energies.

By what means does it seek to give this preparation? The answer may be made as follows:

I. It seeks to lead the pupil to acquire a thorough, scientific knowledge of the branches he is to teach. This knowledge is the prime condition of any success in the school-room. The teacher's instruction in a given subject can never rise above his own knowledge of that subject. No knowledge of methods of instruction, however excellent in themselves—no fund of general information, however accurate and extensive, can be substituted for the specific and thorough knowledge of the subjects which the individual is required to teach. He must at least know these. General culture and information will greatly augment the teaching power of one already possessing the requisite knowledge of what is to be taught, as will also correct methods of instruction; but these are auxiliaries to, not substitutes for, a definite understanding of the matter of instruction. The teacher must himself know that which the pupils are expected to acquire under his tuition. His mastery of these subjects must be thorough and complete. Other things equal, he is the best teacher of a subject who has the most thorough and complete knowledge of it. Not only must the teacher be conversant with the facts of the various branches he teaches, but he must know these in their logical connections. It is only thus that they form a subject of study. The facts of arithmetic, for example, constitute the science of arithmetic only when viewed in the necessary relations that exist among the facts themselves. Knowledge proper is to be distinguished from mere information. The latter is the knowledge of facts, as facts, i. e., in their isolation; the former is the comprehension of facts in their organic connections. Information is not education. A mass of information systematized by thinking it under the relations which inhere among the facts and principles themselves becomes knowledge, and as such has great educational value. The instruction in the various branches of study in the common schools must result in this latter form of knowledge. This alone confers real power upon the pupil. Many persons, under the usual tests, show a fair degree of familiarity with the subject matter of this or that branch of learning; but when required to think the subject as a system, independent of a text-book treating it, they are found to possess no adequate, coherent knowledge of it. It is a necessary part of a teacher's knowledge that he shall have thought the facts of the various subjects of instruction into a coherent and systematic whole. While such a knowledge as this is the only true one for any educational purpose, it is preëminently the teacher's view. Nothing less than this orderly knowledge of the subject will suffice for the teacher. As the primary requirement, then, the Normal School seeks to ground its students thoroughly in the knowledge of the branches required to be taught in the common schools of the State.

II. As a second element of a teacher's preparation for the work of a school-room, the Normal School endeavors to give its students a knowledge of the nature, processes, laws and products of the human mind. Mind is the subject of the educating process. The teacher is in the presence of from thirty-five to fifty children from five to six hours per day. It is his function, as teacher, to train and develop each of these individual minds; to strengthen them in every correct power and habit of thought; to purify and chasten their feelings, and to present such motives as will tend to the discarding of all bad habits of body and mind, and to the formation of good ones. To train a faculty or power of the mind it must be exercised upon its proper objects, and in accordance with the laws of its nature. Exercise is the condition of mental growth. But mental activity, without the guidance of a rational end, and not in obedience to the proper laws of the faculty exercised, may produce a distorted and abnormal growth.

The human mind, in its natural and leading forms of activity, with their conditions, laws and products, bears a relation to the art of teaching similar to that of the bodily nature and functions to the physician's art. For the teacher to attempt to pursue his art, with all its complicated and responsible duties, without a clear knowledge of the processes and laws of mind, is hardly less irrational than would be the practice of medicine without an adequate knowledge of the principal organs of the body, and their laws and functions.

Moreover, the teacher's methods of instruction, if based upon reasons or principles, and not derived from mere authority and experiment, must spring largely from the study of mind. The mind is to be educated. The instruments of the process are the various subjects of study. These two, then—mind and matter of study—must be the main factors in a rational or scientific method of instruction. In this thought the study of mind in all its manifestations occupies a prominent place in the course of study in the Normal School. The effort is made to study mind itself, in its conditions, activities, laws and results. Too often the study of mental science is made the mere learning of text, without verification by appeal to individual and personal mental experience. The true method of pursuing this subject is by introspection, using the text mainly as a guide. For the teacher's purpose it must be chiefly a direct study of mind. It is only in this way that the study of mental science can become an efficient aid to the teacher.

It must ever be admitted and emphasized that knowledge of the subject is of the first importance to whoever would teach the subject. The teacher must know that which he is to teach. Nevertheless it is probably true that more failures in the school-room are due to ignorance of child nature than to any other cause. The chief weakness in the public schools to-day is on the side of mind, not ignorance of subjects. Knowledge of motives, conditions, processes and laws of mind activity, is the key to scientific instruction, and it is not held by the majority of teachers.

III. But the teacher's preparation must include more than the knowledge of the branches to be taught, and the nature and operations of mind. It is all important that the teacher have clear and correct ideas as to the true ends of the educating process. His theory of education, i. e., his views concerning the main results to be accompanied by the process, will go far toward determining the spirit and methods of the school in all its work. If the teacher regards the informing of the mind as his chief work, this view will manifest itself in all he does. If to him the prevailing aim of the school is to lead the pupil to acquire a large fund of systematic knowledge, receiving such training of the intellectual faculties as the acquisition of this incidentally and necessarily gives, this theory will, in a great degree, determine the character of the work done in the school. If the teacher holds information and systematized knowledge, valuable and important as they are, to be necessary means only, and the quickening and unfolding of all the intellectual, moral and spiritual faculties to be the abiding aims of the school, the instruction given and the discipline administered will look to this end. The Normal School holds that character and power are above learning. While in nowise underestimating or depreciating the value of knowledge, it yet teaches that the ultimate outcome of all school work must be the individual with trained powers of intellect, acute moral perceptions and sentiments, a will trained in the habit of obedience to the right and reverential spirit. The man or woman rounded and trained in every natural capacity must be the aim of the school. The correct theory of the school is sought to be imparted by a study of the training schools in their actual work, by an extended study of the history and science of education, and by the method of performing the daily class work in all the departments.

IV. If in a fair degree fitted by natural aptitude for the work of instructing and managing a school; a person trained in a thorough knowledge of the subjects he is to teach, possessing a theoretical knowledge of mental activities and laws, and grounded in a correct theory of education, will ultimately succeed in the school-room. The problem now is, how to reduce the period of actual experiment to the minimum. The person who has made the three-fold preparation indicated is prepared for two phases of work which should precede his taking charge of a school, namely, (1) the study of methods of instruction, and (2) a period of actual practice, under competent direction, in instructing and governing schools. To these two lines of work the Normal School gives great prominence. It has a department of Methods and a system of Training or Practice schools. Both of these are under the supervision and direction of the teacher of methods. In the first sufficient instruction is given to enable the student to employ his knowledge of the subject and of mind in determining a rational method of procedure for teaching the subject. Special attention is given to methods of primary instruction, since in the lower grades the foundations of knowledge are laid, and the immature mind has less power to seize and assimilate knowledge not skillfully presented. The schools for observation and practice include all grades below the High School. They are in charge of competent critic teachers, and the instruction given in them is in harmony with the theories of education taught in the Normal School. Students are required to observe and interpret the work of the practice schools during the time they are receiving instruction in methods, and, in the later stages of the course of instruction, they are required to spend a considerable period in actual teaching in each of these schools, under the criticism of both the regular critic teacher and the teacher of methods. They are thus enabled to leave the school possessing a fair degree of skill in the instruction and management of classes attained by actual experience.

The State Normal School, then, undertakes to fulfill the purpose of its organization by (1) leading the student to acquire a thorough knowledge of the branches required to be taught, the professional aspects of the subject receiving attention during this study; (2) giving a comprehensive knowledge of mind; (3) the study of the history and science of education, and (4) a system of instruction in methods, and an extended period of observation and actual teaching in the training schools connected with the institution.

EXPLANATION OF COURSES OF STUDY.

The four years' course (page 22) is designed to meet the needs of those students who wish to make as thorough and extended preparation for public school work as their time and means will permit. It provides for a thorough and scientific study of the branches required by law to be taught in the district and graded schools of the State, an extended course of strictly professional training, embracing the historical, the theoretical and the practical phases of education, and a sphere of higher academic work required by those expecting to become principals of and teachers in high schools.

Many persons come to the Normal School directly from the district and grade schools, having only the scholarship acquired by the study of the common or legal branches, and not possessing that discipline which results from a higher and more efficient course of mental training. The four years' course is organized for the purpose of giving such persons a scholarship and training that will prepare them for the higher grades of public school work.

The regular three years' course (page 23) embraces the same amount of instruction in the common branches as the four years', somewhat less professional work and a smaller number of advanced academic subjects. Its object is to afford young men and young women possessing a limited scholarship, and who expect to engage in teaching in the district and grade schools of the State, the best and most thorough preparation that it is possible for them to make in a period of three years.

The course provides for forty-two terms' work, thirty-six of which are necessary for graduation. All students taking this course are required to study: (1) all the professional subjects given; (2) the common or legal branches; (3) Advanced Composition and the Graduating Thesis—twenty-three terms in all. The remaining thirteen terms required for graduation may be given to such other studies of the course as the student, with the advice of the faculty, may elect.

Three courses are provided for graduates of commissioned high schools, requiring, respectively, for completion, three years, two years and one year. The first (page 24) is an abridgment of the regular four years' course; the second (page 25) of the regular three years' course; and the third (page 25) is a special course of one year, organized to take the place of city training schools. Graduates of commissioned high schools receive a formal credit of one year, and are thus enabled to complete the four years' course in three years, and the three years' course in two years. The longer course for such graduates provides for thirty-nine terms' work. Of this number, the twenty-five marked *, in the programme of studies, are required. The remaining fourteen may be elected by the student, with the advice of the faculty, from the subjects given in any of the other courses.

The two years' course for graduates of commissioned high schools also consists partly of elective and partly of required work. The required subjects are those marked thus, *, in the programme of studies—twenty-three in all. The four remaining terms necessary for graduation may be elected by the student, with the advice of the faculty.

Many cities can not maintain a city training school for educating their own teachers. Only two cities in the State support such schools. The Normal School has organized a course of training for the graduates of high schools, continuing through one year, which give such preparation for teaching in the primary and intermediate grades as can be made in so short a time.

It is designed to have this course in the State Normal School supply the place of training schools for those cities that do not have training schools of their own. About one-half of the time will be given to a review of the common school branches, and the other to the different phases of professional instruction which the school imparts.

Those who complete this course will not be entitled to the diploma granted by the school, but will receive certificates showing the amount of instruction taken in the institution.

The purpose of the course is to relieve the school officers of cities from the necessity they feel of employing, as teachers, the graduates of their high schools who have had no training in teaching.

A year's training in the Normal School will add more to their efficiency as teachers than would several years' practice in teaching, and the schools will be supplied with a much better class of teachers.

During the past two years 260 high school graduates have been pursuing one or another of the courses of study provided by the Normal School for such graduates. This indicates a growing conviction that, in addition to a knowledge of the subjects of instruction, the teacher should have a thorough training in the history, science and art of his profession.

The course of one year for college graduates, given on page 26, has been organized to meet the needs of those graduates of colleges and universities who wish to enter the field of teaching and superintending schools, and who feel the need of professional training for this work. It will be noticed that the instruction is of a strictly professional character. In planning this course it is assumed that the student has a liberal and accurate knowledge of the subjects required to be taught in the public graded and high schools. It is further assumed that this academic knowledge and training, important and necessary as it is, does not alone qualify one for the delicate and responsible work of teaching and managing schools. It is sought, therefore, to give the student that professional knowledge and skill that belong peculiarly to the teaching profession.

Only such persons are eligible to this course as have graduated from some college or university maintaining a thorough college course of not less than four years.

REPORTS OF DEPARTMENTS.

A very brief statement is herewith presented by the various heads of departments concerning the instruction given in their respective subjects. Only the most general idea of the scope and character of the work done can be set forth in so small compass.

DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY AND SCIENCE OF EDUCATION.

The time given to these two subjects is, in the four years' course, one year (or thirty-nine weeks), five lessons per week; in the three years' course, two terms (or twenty-six weeks), five lessons per week. The subjects are placed late in the course, as they deal with abstract and difficult topics, as also for the reason that they presuppose the instruction in psychology and methods presented earlier in the course. The instruction given in the professional subjects of the course is the work most distinctive and characteristic of the school. The history and the science of education lie in this field of professional instruction and training. The general aim is to give the student a thorough philosophical understanding of the principles of education, and to give him a general outline of the world's educational history. It is assumed that education is a science, at least in the general view that all the work of the school can be based on reasons, generalizations or principles which are rationally determined. It investigates the subject of education for the purpose of discovering and mastering these general truths, which it conceives to underlie all correct educational practice. While not ignoring the many valuable treatises on the Science and History of Education that are available for class use, the work of this department is largely devoted to a verification of educational principles through reflection and appeal to experience. Constant reference is had to the treatises on these subjects contained in the library, and one object is to give the student some acquaintance with the best standard authorities on the subject of education considered in its more reflective and philosophical aspects. Effort is made to free the student from dependence on mere authority and individual experiment in the school-room, by leading him to a liberal knowledge and grasp of fundamental educational ideas. In the historical phases of the subject, effort is made to see the great educational epochs which the history of the race exhibits; also to make such study as is practicable of specific educational movements and reform that possess permanent interest and value to the student and teacher. In this connection attention is paid to the systems of educational doctrine worked out by the world's great thinkers and writers on the subject.

As indicating somewhat the scope and character of the work of this department, the following subjects are mentioned as among those that receive attention:

1. Man's place in nature.
2. Why man is the only being that can be educated.
3. Man a rational being in a world of reason.
4. Difference between special, professional or technical education, and liberal or general education and culture.
5. Nature, form and limits of the educating process.
6. In what sense education is a science; and in what view not a science.
7. Data of educational science.
8. Education viewed as an art.
9. Education viewed as a science.
10. Triple nature of the being to be educated.
11. Nature, aims and means of physical culture.
12. Intellectual education.
13. Culture of the ethical nature.
14. Religion and the school.
15. Relation of the school to other educational agencies.
16. Educational values.

W. W. PARSONS,
Head of Department.

PSYCHOLOGY.

The first attempt in entering upon a psychological investigation is to rid the student of the idea that the subject-matter of Psychology is something foreign and external to him, as is the subject-matter of Chemistry, Botany, Geography, etc. He is first to be impressed with the idea that in this subject he is peculiarly entering upon a study of himself. He is to become acquainted with introspection as an instrument of self-examination. Self-activity and spiritual freedom are discussed to the extent of giving the student a general grasp of their nature, and he is led to look upon mind as an energy possessing self-activity as its essential characteristic and freedom as its destiny. This standpoint as to the material with which Psychology deals having been gained, and introspection as an instrument of dealing with it having been comprehended, the student is led to observe the various particular activities of his mind in order to determine the fundamental move or process present in every mental phenomenon. Succeeding this view, the relation of mind and body, the various modes of investigating mental phenomena and the special relation of mind to the purpose and processes of education receive consideration.

METHOD.

Under the subject of Method there is first a discussion of the general nature of method. This discussion, while recognizing that the term method is usually applied to means, devices, external modes of doing, etc., seeks to limit it to the necessary mental process involved in thinking the object of investigation. According to the view presented, method is not an external thing, a device, an external mode of action, an outline, a diagram, a mode of questioning, such as the "Socratic Method," the "Laboratory Method," etc. Outlines, diagrams, laboratory work, modes of questioning, special modes of dealing with the alphabet, with words, with sentences, etc., are held to be external means and not method. In the discussion the idea is advanced that method is a mental thing, that it is the necessary mental move; in thinking the subject it is not peculiar to any person or locality and can not be truly indicated by applying to it the name of a person or locality.

Method is the necessary mental process that the mind employs in thinking an object of investigation. For example, the method in thinking the form of the earth in relation to the general distribution of heat is the necessary mental process employed by the mind in comprehending the object under investigation. This idea as to the nature of method having been considered, the factors that determine it are then shown to be four:

1. The nature of the object of investigation, i. e., the subject-matter.

2. The general characteristics of mind. These two determine the general method. The process as made necessary by these is given certain individual characteristics and modifications by two additional factors:

3. The purpose of investigation.

4. The special condition of the learner as to knowledge and mental strength. Upon these four factors are shown to rest the external means or devices that are employed. In the discussion of method these factors are seen to determine the method of each subject, as Geography, History, etc.

PRACTICE.

The work in Method presupposes a general mastery of the subject of Psychology, and a knowledge of the various branches. The work in Practice assumes these and a knowledge of the subject of method in general; and of the method of each particular subject. The practice work continues through two terms. It consists of observation and teaching in the Practice Schools, which form one department of the Normal School. This practice work is not a mere simulation of teaching with children, as would be the case were the students themselves the members of the classes taught. The pupils taught are children belonging to the regular grades of the Terre Haute City School System.

The work of observation and practice continues through two terms, beginning with the work of the First and Second Year grades. This work consists of three kinds:

1. Lessons given daily by the students before the practice class as a whole.

2. Lessons given daily at different hours, when not any, or only portions, of the practice class are present. In all classes the regular teacher of the room is present when the lessons are given.

3. The observation of lessons given by the teacher in charge of the room.

a. Each student of the class plans the lesson to be given in the presence of the entire practice class, the one who is to present the lesson being selected by the teacher in charge of the room. While the lesson is being taught the other members of the class take careful notes upon it. Afterwards, at their study hour, they analyze the lesson into its incidental features, and those that seem to be characteristic. They then class the various elements of the lesson, as to their bearing in conferring upon a pupil a greater freedom in his intellectual, emotional and volitional nature. In the third place, they attempt to decide the chief characteristics manifested by the student teaching, and their bearing upon the growth in accurate thinking of both teacher and pupil, in order to determine those that should be cultivated and those that should be avoided. On the day succeeding the presentation of each lesson, it is carefully discussed by the members of the practice class and the teacher in charge of the room. In this discussion four things are done with each of the acts, or points, into which the lesson has been analyzed :

- (1.) The act or point is distinctly stated.
- (2.) It is classed as favorable or unfavorable.
- (3.) The principle or principles that are the ground for considering it favorable, are stated.
- (4.) An explanation is made in order to show that the principles stated underlie the given act of teaching.

b. The lessons that are given by the practice students when the class as a whole is not present, receive similar though less detailed consideration; the full discussion upon the one lesson daily being deemed sufficient to enable them to a certain degree, to judge for themselves the favorable and unfavorable points of their work and to reduce them to principles.

c. The lessons taught in the presence of the students by the teacher in charge of the room, are presented :

- (1.) For the purpose of setting before the students more artistic presentations of lessons than they have been able to reach,

(2.) In order to test their power, and to confer skill in the interpretation of lessons. To show their ability in this regard, they at various times present written statements of the subject-matter of the lessons presented; its purpose, steps, etc., as determined by the presentation. In connection with the practice and observation work in each grade, there is made by the teacher in charge a careful explanation of the full line of work pertaining to the grade; of programmes of work showing the relation of recitation work and work occupying the attention of pupils when not reciting; and of various incidental topics pertaining to the work of the grade.

Head of Department.

GEOGRAPHY.

Work in the Department of Geography proceeds upon the assumption that its immediate purpose is to create in the mind of the student a conception of the earth viewed in its character as a great organism, and in its adaptation to the development of man. The study extends through a period of terms of thirteen weeks each. It falls naturally into three phases, which are believed to be logical and distinct. Those phases may be indicated as follows:

1. The study of the earth as a mathematical solid—Mathematical Geography. 2. The study of the earth as an individual organism—Physical Geography. 3. The study of the earth as related to man—Political Geography. In the first phase, the earth is studied as to its mathematical relations of position, form, size and motions. In this part of the work the student is led to see (1) what are the astronomical conditions which primarily determine the distribution of heat over the globe; (2) how fixed units of time and space measure are derived, and (3), how geographical location may be accurately ascertained and indicated.

In the second phase, the earth is studied as to its four great constituents—the land, the water, the atmosphere, and the living forms. These are studied first in their individual nature, and then in their relations of mutual dependence. Here the special aim is to impress the student with the fact that these four constituents of the geographical earth are so bound together by relations of interdependence as to constitute a whole which may, with eminent propriety, be called an organism. In this connection every effort is made to bring the phenomena studied within the range of the student's conscious experience. No endorsement, however, is given to the view that the experience of the individual, however elaborated by reflection, can ever furnish his mind with the knowledge adequate to a true conception of the geographical earth. The observations and experiences of others must, of necessity, supply to the individual by far the greater part of his stock of geographical ideas; and since these ideas must be acquired largely through the medium of language, it is of the utmost importance that the student be exercised in the interpretation of the vast mass of geographical literature now so easily accessible to all.

The second phase of the work includes the study of man, but only in his character as a member of the animal world. The study of man as a spiritual being, i. e. as a builder of institutions—industrial, commercial, political, religious, educational and social, belongs to the third and highest phase of geographical study, and to this the name political geography may be appropriately applied. In the Normal School the study of the political geography of a country consists, essentially, in a study of its human institutions, in the two-fold relation which they sustain to the physical conditions of the country. This relation is conceived to be two-fold in that, (1) physical environment determines very largely the nature of human institutions; (2) human institutions, in an important sense, determine environment. Owing to the limited amount of time devoted to this subject, only a few countries are studied. These are the Dominion of Canada, the United States, Mexico, Russia, Germany, France, the United Kingdom, Turkey, and with some classes China and Brazil. In connection with political geography, map drawing is taught by several methods, yielding excellent results.

The library is already fairly well supplied with the literature of geography, and books bearing upon this department of study are being constantly added. While approved texts are in constant use, much of the work is so planned as to require the student to avail himself of the resources of the general library.

MICHAEL SEILER,
Head of Department.

LATIN.

In this department, students have opportunity to advance far enough to enable them to teach elementary Latin. It is the aim to conduct the work so as to secure efficiency in teaching, and as much mental discipline as possible; while making the subject a valuable aid to the study of English and other subjects more or less closely related.

Latin is optional in the three years' course. One or more terms' work in Latin may be substituted for other elective work in the last six terms of the course. A student may then complete two years' work in Latin within the three years' course.

Students begin the study of Latin in the fourth term, using Collar and Daniell's Beginner's Book in Latin (published by Ginn & Co.). This book is used two terms and is made the basis of the preparation for reading Cæsar. During the sixth and seventh terms, portions of Cæsar's Commentaries are read. The text-book used during these two terms are Harkness's Cæsar, Cicero, and Sallust; and Harkness's Latin Grammar. The eighth term, selections from Cicero's Orations are read and the ninth term selections from the Æneid of Virgil.

During the last four terms, there are occasionally read other selections from easy Latin authors, such as Cornelius Nepos, Phædeus, Aulus Gellius, Bennett's Easy Latin Stories, etc. Harkness's Latin Composition is frequently used in connection with the texts read, as an important aid to a thorough understanding of syntax.

In the four years' course, Latin is required during the last eight terms. The work of the last two terms will be a continuation of the work pursued in first six terms, with the addition of some selections from more difficult authors.

ALPHEUS McTAGGART,

Head of Department.

GRAMMAR AND COMPOSITION.

It is the purpose of this department to teach the method both of thinking and of teaching the subjects. This involves a thorough mastery of the subject-matter; there is no such thing as mastering the methods of a subject apart from its facts.

Grammar.—In this subject as much attention is given as the limited time will permit to correcting the habit of using incorrect expressions. A disease that has its seat in the very bone and marrow can not always be cured in six or nine months.

The catalogue time for Grammar is two terms, but it has been found that one or more of the lowest entering classes require three terms to complete the work. Upon leaving this subject, the student should have such an insight into its nature as will enable him to see that, while his knowledge of the subject may be thorough, it is not complete. A complete mastery of the subject would involve a thorough study of at least one representative piece of literature in each of various stages in the development of the language.

Composition.—The first term's work in Composition is devoted to the study of the principles underlying capitalization, punctuation, diction, paragraphing, letter writing, narration, and description. Two or more compositions are required in each of these three forms of discourse—letter writing, narration and description. Very easy and simple subjects are assigned, in order that especial attention may be given to the form side of the work.

In the second term's work, the principles of exposition and argumentation are considered. While the formal side of discourse is not overlooked in this phase of the work, especial attention is given to both the elaboration of the thought, and the methods of elaborating the thought. Each student writes from one to three compositions during the term.

WILLIAM B. WOODS,
Head of Department.

BIOLOGY AND GEOLOGY.

The subjects in which this department now offers instruction are Physiology, Zoölogy, Botany and Geology. Physiology being one of the branches required to be taught in the common schools of the State, is required of all the students who complete either of the long courses. Two terms' work are required, and classes in both the first and second terms' work are formed at the beginning of each school term. Owing to the larger attendance during the spring term, and to enable us to accommodate special students who enter that term and who wish to take this study, two beginning classes are formed for that term. Physiology is brought regularly during the fourth and fifth terms of the course. The remaining subjects, Zoölogy, Botany and Geology, are all practically elective studies, and may be taken or not, as the student desires. In the three years' course at least one of them is required.

These subjects are brought in the senior year, and two terms are given to each. Usually the Zoölogy and Geology classes continue through the fall and winter terms, and Botany through the winter and spring terms.

To meet the demands of the students in these four subjects necessitates the organization of twelve or thirteen classes in this department each year. During the past year the number of students enrolled in the different classes was two hundred and ninety-three, which is greater than that for any previous year.

The objects of the work done in this department are two, viz.: (1) to give that training and culture which come from careful study of the biological sciences; (2) to fit the student, as well as may be, to teach these sciences in the public schools of the State. An effort is made to present these subjects in such a way as will lead the student into correct methods of thinking, thus giving him the spirit of investigation—the scientific spirit—and enable him to estimate the value of authority, and to distinguish fact from fancy, in the affairs of life.

To accomplish these purposes, constant use is made of the collection of specimens and the apparatus to which we have access. Among the pieces of apparatus now belonging to the school and used in this department, may be named the following: Thirty compound microscopes (12 Beck's Star, 12 Leitz.

and 6 Bausch and Lomb New Biological), a dozen dissecting microscopes, twenty-five sets of dissecting instruments, a full-sized French manikin of the best make, several of Auzaux's Anatomical Models, a good Stereopticon for projection, and a small series of skeletons for studies in comparative anatomy.

The fire which destroyed the building, in 1888, also destroyed all the specimens possessed by the school, together with the large collection of birds, shells, fishes, etc., belonging to Mr. Evermann. During the two years since then much has been done toward replacing these collections. Among the collections now in the Normal School Museum may be named the following: One of Ward's college collections of minerals purchased by the Board of Trustees; small collections of birds, mammals, reptiles, and batrachians, made by the students of the school; an herbarium of several hundred specimens collected in Indiana, the Southern Alleghanies, and in Colorado and Utah; and a large collection of fishes and marine invertebrates obtained chiefly through Mr. Evermann's connection with the United States National Museum and the United States Fish Commission.

These serve as a nucleus of more complete collections, which, it is hoped, may soon be made, to illustrate well the fauna and flora of the State, but this can not be done by private means.

The room now used as a museum room is wholly inadequate for the purpose, both on account of location and size, and it is hoped that better quarters may be provided.

The library is fairly well supplied with the more recent and valuable books and periodicals on biology and geology, to aid the students in their investigations of special subjects.

BARTON W. EVERMANN,
Head of Department.

HISTORY.

There are four terms of History work provided, two in the History of the United States and two in General History.

The United States History work aims to present a view of the growth of the American institutions from about 1600 to the present time. Emphasis is placed on the thought that what we study in History is the growth of a people toward freer institutions. A manual is used as a guide in the work, but the principle which guides in all the work is to make the student independent in both thought and investigation; with this view in mind, students make much use of the library in investigating and comparing the various sources of information. After investigation, discussions are had in the class by both students and instructor.

Some of the topics discussed the past year were:

1. The Growth of the Separation of Church and State in the United States.
2. The Growth of Schools in Colonial History.
3. The Comparison of the Institutions of the South with Those of the North Through the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries.
4. The Growth of Central Government in United States History from 1607 to 1789.
5. The Growth of Local Government During the Same Period.
6. The Growth of Slavery in the United States and Its Influence on Political Life.
7. The Growth of the Principle of Centralization in the United States.
8. The Growth of Civil Service Principles in National and Local Government.

The practical aim—to make honest and intelligent citizens—is constantly kept in mind by the instructor.

In General History a view is taken of the unfolding of the institutions of the Oriental Peoples; then of Greece and Rome; of Mediæval Europe, and finally of Modern Europe. The library is used in these courses, and in much the same way as in United States History. In so far as time will allow, the students study the principal constitutions of Modern Europe, and compare them with our own constitution.

A manual is used in this work also, but simply as a guide; and the aim is to make the student an interested seeker after the truth of the questions considered.

E. W. KEMP,
Head of Department.

MUSIC.

The work in music is limited to one term of thirteen weeks, and as two-thirds of the pupils enter the class without previous instruction, it has been found necessary to begin with a careful study of the first principles, including a brief history of the staff, scale, etc.

The aim of the instruction is to give the pupil a thorough knowledge of the subject, in so far as the limited time will permit, and to cultivate good habits in regard to breathing, singing, pronunciation and enunciation.

In the study of the relative pitch of musical sounds the major or diatonic scale is taken as the unit, and by comparison its intervals are carefully studied, thereby laying a good foundation for work in chromatic intervals, the different scales and in transposition.

Particular attention is given to sight singing early in the term on the principle that people learn to sing by singing. Each pupil is expected to be able to write exercises, introducing in a musical way each new point, thereby proving ability to present the same thought to a class of children when occasion demands.

During the term three or four recitation periods are given up to the study of musical history, or the works of the great masters, with a view to future study in those lines. A limited amount of drill in church music is given, and both words and music are studied carefully.

In either secular or sacred music it is necessary to have a right conception of the thought and emotion expressed before the right quality of tone can be given. Poor singing is more frequently the result of poor thinking than of poor voices. Children will imitate the right quality of tone just as readily as they will imitate the wrong quality, and it is very desirable that teachers should be able properly to express the sentiment contained in song or hymn.

Text books, charts, piano and blackboard are used when necessary as aids. It has not been deemed advisable to limit the term's work, except as the ability of the class may limit it.

MRS. CARRIE B. ADAMS,
Head of Department.

DRAWING AND PENMANSHIP.

The teacher should be able to write and to draw. He should also have an intelligent appreciation of the value of these subjects as instruments of education. The aim of this department is to lead the student to acquire skill in writing and drawing, and to form a just conception of the value of these subjects in mental development. Since writing is a method of drawing the fifty-two arbitrary script forms, it is viewed as a part of drawing. The study of Form and Drawing includes three distinct, yet related subjects:

1. Construction, the science and art of making working drawings which give the facts of objects. 2. Representation, or pictorial drawing. 3. Decoration, or ornamentation. These subjects require the study of objects, and drawing is the means of expressing ideas gained by such study.

The student is required to make working drawings (a) of cylinders, cones, vases, etc.; (b) of cube, pyramid, triangular prism, hexagonal prism, etc. He is required to study and represent the appearance of objects when seen singly and in groups. He is required to judge of the fitness of forms studied to the purposes of decoration. Before leaving the work he must plan and draw, (a) a design suitable for surface decoration, (b) borders to limit surfaces, (c) single arrangements complete in themselves.

In reviewing each phase of the work the student is led to consider the processes of mind employed in mastering the phase, and to plan a course in drawing which shall be adapted to give mental discipline.

GEO. W. THOMPSON,
Head of Department.

PHYSICS AND CHEMISTRY.

PHYSICS.

The work in physics is two terms of thirteen weeks each. It consists of daily recitations and laboratory work.

In the recitation work the first term the subject is discussed under three heads:

1. Matter and its properties, in which special attention is given to a discussion of the molecule, the constitution of matter, physical and chemical changes, force, three states of matter, phenomena of attraction—adhesion, cohesion, capillarity, etc.

2. Dynamics, as dynamics of fluids, pressure of fluids, barometer, compressibility and expansibility of fluids, transmitted pressure, siphon, raising of liquids, buoyant force of fluids, specific gravity, motion, laws of motion, composition and resolution of forces, center of gravity, curvilinear motion, accelerated and retarded motion, the pendulum, momentum, work and energy, transformation of energy and the simple machines.

3. Heat.—Heat defined, temperature, diffusion of heat, effects of heat, expansion, thermometry, laws of gaseous bodies, laws of fusion and boiling, heat convertible into potential energy, potential energy convertible into heat, specific heat, thermo-dynamics, and the steam engine.

All points in class work are fully illustrated by experiment, so that the student may see verified every principle and law presented.

As in the first term, the work of the second is discussed under three general heads:

1. Electricity and magnetism, in which are discussed current electricity, batteries, effects produced by electricity, electrical measurements, magnets and magnetism, laws of currents, magneto-electricity and current induction, thermo-electricity, frictional electricity, electrical machines, applications of electricity.

2. Sound.—Sound waves, velocity of sounds, reflection and refraction of sound, loudness, interference, forced and sympathetic vibrations, pitch, vibration of strings, overtones and harmonics, quality, composition of sonorous vibrations, sound-receiving instruments, musical instruments.

3. Light.—Introductory discussion, reflection, refraction, spectrum analysis, color, interference, refraction and polarization, thermal effects of radiation, and optical instruments.

As in the recitation work of the first term, every point is illustrated by experiment.

The laboratory work in physics is, as far as possible, quantitative in its character, and each student is expected to devote at least five hours per week to this line of work in addition to his daily recitation. The laboratory is well supplied with all kinds of apparatus necessary for a course in general physics, and the student is given every opportunity to make use of this apparatus.

Connected with the work in Physics is a work-shop supplied with a work-bench, a lathe and a full set of tools, where the students in Physics are taught to devise and make pieces of apparatus for the purpose of illustrating the elementary principles of Physics without having to depend upon the use of expensive apparatus made by the regular dealers in such supplies.

In all of the laboratory experiments careful note of the results obtained are required.

CHEMISTRY.

The work in Chemistry consists of two terms of thirteen weeks each. In the first term's work the class studies general Chemistry. The work consists of daily recitations and daily work in the laboratory.

It is thought that the correct way to study Chemistry is by actual experiment. The students are required to perform the experiments of the text-book in the laboratory, and bring the results of this work to the lecture-room for discussion. Beginning with simple chemical changes, he studies the properties of the more important elements and compounds.

The first seven weeks of the term are devoted to a study of the non-metallic elements; the last six weeks to the metallic elements, the laboratory work leading up to qualitative analysis.

The second term's work is qualitative analysis, and is all done in the laboratory, ten hours per week being required. In this the student studies the reaction and separation of metals, the separation of acids and, as far as possible, the analysis of ores.

The chemical laboratory is well supplied with every convenience for pursuing the work in Chemistry as far as it is carried in this course.

ROBERT G. GILLUM,
Head of Department.

MATHEMATICS.

The branches studied in this department and the time given to each are:

Arithmetic, twenty-six weeks, five recitations each.

Algebra, twenty-six weeks, five recitations each.

Geometry, twenty-six weeks, five recitations each.

Plane Trigonometry, thirteen weeks, five recitations each.

The plan of the work includes :

- (a.) A careful organization of the subject.
- (b.) The study of the underlying principles, and their applications, in accordance with this organization.
- (c.) The observance of the mental processes involved in such study, and an investigation of the educational value of the subject.

MRS. LIZZIE S. BYERS.

Head of Department.

READING, RHETORIC AND LITERATURE.

Purpose of the Department.—A completer study of language requires it to be viewed from two standpoints: one as an organized means of communication; the other as organized in a process of communication. The first considers language as such, or language in itself; the second, language in living unity with thought, bearing its message to accomplish the end for which the thought is communicated. The first takes the two forms of word and sentence study; the second, that of discourse study. Again, discourse study has two phases; one considering the process of embodying thought in language; the other, the process of interpreting thought when the language product is given the construction of discourse; the analysis of discourse. This department is restricted to Discourse Interpretation.

Since the work is addressed to teachers, it is further modified o make the professional aspect of the subject predominant. Thus we have our attention fixed on the specific work of the department, that of considering the interpretation of discourse as an educative process. This process has two essential phases: the one, the mental process, or method, by which the student interprets a single discourse; the other, the life unfolding process in the student under discourse used as a means. Thus there is included not only what is usually considered as method work—a consideration of the mental process by which the student identifies his mind with the subject-matter—but also that more comprehensive process of unfolding life's possibilities by means of the instrument discourse analysis. The first phase of the educative process is only a means to the second: this is their organic unity in that process.

The purpose of this department, therefore, is to enable the teacher to conduct rationally the educative process by means of discourse interpretation.

Phases of the Work in Course of Development.—1. The key to the method of discourse interpretation found in the nature of discourse and in the laws of general method established in the special Method Department; followed by the method of constructing the science of discourse, or Rhetoric.

2. Special application of laws of method in discourse to Advanced Reading. This includes the mental process of interpreting all classes of discourse—prose, poetry and oratory, with a wide range of study from literary authors suitable for advanced reading work in the grades. The teacher must know where to find the best and why it is best. Application of laws of style to oral expression.

3. Method in the analysis of a literary selection for high school work; giving careful attention, also, to the scope of literature for high school grades.

4. The Philosophy of Literature, with a view of giving that deeper insight and more comprehensive view essential to make a teacher self-determining in a course of educational literary work. It is considered in its most essential nature, and in its essential relations to other subject-matter, especially to Fine Art. In light of the essential, universal nature of literature, its educational value as a whole is determined.

Four terms are given to the work, with an opportunity for more specialized study to those who may desire. Whether the course is done just in the order indicated by the numbered paragraphs above, will be determined by the preparation of the class beginning the work.

LIBRARY.

The present librarian assumed charge July 15, 1890. Before the arrival of students in September the 5,286 volumes were for the most part classed, labeled and arranged according to the decimal classification. The system is such that books of a like sort are kept together. To accomplish this the field of human knowledge is divided into nine classes, and these are numbered from one to nine. General works, such as encyclopedias of universal knowledge, so general as to belong to no one of these classes, are marked nought and form a tenth class. Each class is likewise separated into ten divisions. Divisions are then divided into sections, and the process is repeated as often as necessary. Thus, 512 means class 5 (Natural Science), division 1 (Mathematics), section 2 (Algebra), and every algebra is numbered 512. The numbers thus established show the order in which subjects follow one another: 512, Algebra, precedes 513, Geometry, and follows 511, Arithmetic. Whenever sections are divided the sub-sections are indicated by hundredths, and books are arranged according to the value of the decimal; as adopted, no book number exceeds five places. Then all numbers must range between 0 and 999.99; general works, between 0 and 99, together with decimal divisions; Philosophy, between 100 and 199; Religion, between 200 and 299; Sociology, between 300 and 399; Philology, between 400 and 499; Natural Science, between 500 and 599; Useful Arts, between 600 and 699; Fine Arts, between 700 and 799; Literature, between 800 and 899; History, between 900 and 999.

Each book label, besides the section number, contains either the author's name in full or else the first four letters of the name, which are for alphabetic arrangement within the section to which the book belongs. There are mnemonic features that add greatly to the value of the system. Some of these are readily acquired; others, by somewhat closer study. All eliminate frequent catalogue consultation. Thus, 103 is a dictionary of philosophy; 203, the same of religion; 303, a dictionary of sociology, etc. Again, all books bearing especially on English travel are marked 914.2. Dropping the 1 and removing the decimal point, we have 942, English history. The above shelf arrangement, while it may appear complicated, has proven its merits by actual usage in over a hundred libraries. Since the numbers run in regular order from left to right around the library, students have no difficulty in finding books and afterwards returning them to the shelves in proper places. Such a system is perfectly invaluable to students that have access to the books.

The books having been classified, the work upon a dictionary card-catalogue was commenced. The objects of this catalogue will be as follows:

1. To enable a person to find a book of which either the author, title, or subject is known.

2. To show what the library has by a given author on a given subject in a given kind of literature.

3. To assist in the choice of a book as to its edition and as to its character. By January 1, 1890, the author portion of this catalogue will have been completed; the remainder of the work will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible. Students may use this catalogue advantageously, even during its compilation. Meanwhile the librarian is devoting some portion of his time to the instruction of students in the art of helping themselves to find a thing when wanted.

About half of the $15,000 appropriation has been expended in the purchase of books for which there is urgent need. Besides bound books, there are kept on file some twenty current American and English magazines and as many papers, partly purchased and partly presented, to which the students have free access during all except study hours. As fast as volumes of periodicals are completed they are bound and properly classified the same as other books. These are placed in good, substantial oak cases, and the top shelves are not so high but that a person of moderate size may reach the books without the use of a ladder. Study tables of the same material and chairs are conveniently situated. The room is large, well lighted and cheerful; the floor neatly carpeted and the walls adorned with appropriate pictures.

The library is open week-days about eight hours per day, except Saturday, when morning hours alone are observed. By the proper filling out of blanks, supplied at the librarian's desk, books, except encyclopædias, dictionaries, etc., may be taken from the room for a period from one day to two weeks, and the book, after being returned to the library, may then be renewed, provided there is no special demand for it.

Every effort is being made to encourage a proper use of this valuable department of the school, to accomplish the greatest good for the great number who use and enjoy our library daily.

Very respectfully,

ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM,
Librarian.

DISCIPLINE OF THE SCHOOL.

The end of all school government and discipline, intelligently conceived and administered, is the rational self-control and self-direction of the pupil. This is to be the outcome in the pupil. The effort is made to derive all rules of government from the inherent nature and purposes of the organization itself. This is the true basis of such rules; from this alone they derive their authority, and not from the teacher's will and utterance. A system of school regulations which aim only at arbitrary restraint, without leaving the pupil to order his conduct by clearly conceived principles of right doing, lacks the most essential educative qualities. The formation of correct habits of thought and action—the development of worthy character—these are the true aims of school discipline. The discipline of the Normal School is administered in this general thought and spirit. Students are led to see the reasonableness of the requirements made of them, so that their obedience may be intelligent and educative. In respect of discipline, as in all other particulars, the Normal School seeks to make itself in fact what it must be by definition—a model school.

RELATION TO THE STATE UNIVERSITY AND TO WABASH COLLEGE.

Arrangements have been made with the Indiana University and with Wabash College whereby graduates of the State Normal School, who have completed the English and Latin course, will be admitted to the Junior class in these institutions, and on the completion of two year's work, which is largely elective, will receive the degree of B. S.

Graduates of these colleges, and others of equal rank, may receive the diploma of the Normal School on the completion of the one year's course in this institution. The time is devoted exclusively to professional study preparatory to teaching. See course on page 26.

EXPENSES.

Board, including fuel and light, can be had in good families at $3 to $4 per week, according to the quality of accommodations. There are good facilities for self-boarding, and for club-boarding in the city, at a cost of $2.50 to $3 per week. Nearly all the students board in clubs, thus reducing their entire expenses to $2.50 per week for good accommodations. The expenses of many do not exceed $2 per week. The only charge made by the school is a janitor's fee of $1 per term.

The necessary expenses for a year in the Normal School will not vary greatly from the following estimate:

Room rent, 39 weeks, at $1.00.....	$39 00
Board, 39 weeks, at $2.00.....	78 00
Fuel and light.....	5 00
Washings and incidentals.....	25 00
Janitor's fee, $1.00 per term.....	3 00
Books and stationery	10 00
<hr/>
Total.....	$160 00

Necessary expenses for one term of 13 weeks..... $53 00

CONDITIONS OF ADMISSION.

First. Sixteen years of age, if females; and eighteen, if males.

Second. Good health.

Third. Satisfactory evidence of undoubted moral character.

Fourth. A pledge that the applicant will, if practicable, teach in the common schools of Indiana a period equal to twice that spent as a student in the Normal School.

Fifth. A fair knowledge of the following subjects: Spelling, Writing, Reading, English Grammar, Geography, United States History, Physiology and Arithmetic.

ADVANCED STANDING BY EXAMINATION.

The Normal School is authorized to give a formal credit on its course only for graduation from a commissioned high school or from a college or a university. All persons not holding diplomas from such institutions, and wishing to be excused from the study of any subjects in the course of instruction, are required to pass thorough and satisfactory examinations in such subjects. Effort is made to give every person full credit for all knowledge of subjects possessed on entering, and to assist him to advance as rapidly, and graduate as soon, as is consistent with a thorough teacher's knowledge of the subjects studied.

SPECIAL CLASSES IN SPRING TERM.

Many teachers of experience and good scholarship desire to spend one term in reviewing certain subjects which they are required to teach, or in pursuing certain professional studies, and yet are precluded from taking an extended course of study in any institution. Some of these are the leading teachers in their respective counties. They are prevented from pursuing a systematic course of study by being under the necessity of teaching during the fall and winter. To such persons of mature years, experience in teaching, who hold a high grade of license, and who enter the Normal School for the spring term only, the privilege of taking a special course will be accorded. For the benefit of these, special classes will be organized, if necessary, in Mental Science, Methods, Observation in Training School, Science of Education, United States History, Algebra and Physiology.

CERTIFICATE AND DIPLOMAS.

Section 4557, of the Revised Statutes of Indiana, reads as follows: "The Board of Trustees is authorized to grant, from time to time, certificates of proficiency to such teachers as shall have completed any of the prescribed courses of study, and whose moral character and disciplinary relations to the school shall be satisfactory. At the expiration of two years after graduation, satisfactory evidence of professional ability to instruct and manage a school having been received, they shall be entitled to diplomas appropriate to such professional degrees as the Trustees shall confer upon them, which diploma shall be considered sufficient evidence of qualification to teach in any of the schools of this State."

Graduates who make application for diplomas under the above provisions of the law are required to produce certificates of their success in instruction and school management, and as to the time taught, from County Superintendents, Township Trustees, Superintendents of graded schools of towns or cities, or from Corporation School Trustees.

By a rule of the Board of Trustees, satisfactory evidence of twelve months' successful experience in teaching, after completing the course of study, entitles the graduate to the diploma of the institution.

As a means of promoting still greater thoroughness on the part of those nearing graduation from the school the Board of Trustees, by a recent action, requires, "that all candidates for graduation from the Normal School shall be required to hold a county license to teach for a period of not less than two years, said license having been issued within the five years next preceding the date of commencement for the given year, or that such persons shall receive a grade in examination conducted by the faculty on the questions used in the county examination that would entitle them to a license for not less than two years if the examination were taken under a County Superintendent."

PRESENT CONDITION OF THE SCHOOL.

The report of two years ago contained the following statement in regard to the burning of the Normal School building:

"On the morning of the 9th of April, 1888, the building of the State Normal School was almost totally destroyed by fire. It cost originally $189,000. The addition of the extensive heating apparatus some years later, the furnishing throughout, the library of about 4,000 volumes, the apparatus, museum, etc., swell the entire cost to between two hundred and two hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars. Of this splendid equipment almost nothing was left. Only the walls of the structure were left standing. The library, apparatus, museum and furniture were all lost. Notwithstanding this blow, the school resumed its work on the morning after the fire, and all classes were regularly conducted till the end of the year.

"Through the courtesy of Centenary Methodist and other churches of the city and the kindness of private citizens ample assembly and recitation room was placed at the disposal of the Normal School till the second story of the city High School building could be put into condition to be occupied, which required about three weeks. The Board of Trustees of the City Schools of Terre Haute bore the expense of this and offered the Normal School the use of these quarters until such time as more permanent accommodations could be provided. This generous tender of ample room in which to continue its work was accepted by the Normal School.

"The city of Terre Haute has recognized fully its obligation under the law and the contract with the State to bear one-half the expense of repairing the structure. The City Council appropriated $50,000 that the work of rebuilding might proceed without the loss of the past season. With this amount available, plans for repairing the building were made and adopted, and a contract awarded for such portion of the work as could be paid for out of this fund.

"During the past summer vacation the city completed the second story of its new High School building at an outlay of about $9,000, and tendered the Normal School the use of this for the school year of 1888-89. In the room thus provided the school is now at work for the year.

“Express mention should be made of the generous treatment which the institution has received since the disaster of last April from the city of Terre Haute, the City Board of School Trustees and the citizens generally. The liberal action of city churches made it possible for the school to resume its work the day after the fire and to hold its more than six hundred students till other quarters could be secured. The action of the City School Board in putting the High School building in condition to use temporarily enabled the school to carry out its year's work; the further action of this Board in completing the High School building and allowing the Normal School to use the new portion of it during the current school year, and this, too, when the city schools greatly needed additional room, place the institution under very great obligations. This generous action alone has made it possible for the school to continue, despite the loss of its building and equipment.”

Appeal was made to the General Assembly for money with which to restore the building and its equipment. One hundred thousand dollars was appropriated for this purpose. This, with the $50,000 given by the city of Terre Haute, enabled the Board of Trustees to proceed far enough with the new building to have it ready for occupancy by the opening of the following school year, September, 1889.

The entire basement is fitted up for school purposes, the heating apparatus being in a separate building erected for it, thus giving a larger amount of room for work of the school than the old building contained.

While the new building is not so high by one story as the old, there is in it, by reason of placing the heating apparatus in a separate building, considerably more available room for school purposes. It cost less, but is thought to be architecturally much superior, and is, in its internal structure and arrangement in every way, better adapted to the needs of the institution. Through the liberality of the city of Terre Haute, and the last General Assembly, the institution finds itself today in the possession of more ample and suitable quarters than it has heretofore enjoyed; with a library superior to that lost by the fire; with better furniture for the building, and with more and better apparatus, appliances and materials of all kinds for all departments of its work.

By reference to page 13, of this report, it will be seen that the past two years have been the most prosperous of the school's history; the total number of different students being, for the year ending October 31, 1889, 986, and the average term enrollment, 474; and for the year ending October 31, 1890, 1,009, and the average term enrollment, 475. Not only has the number of students steadily increased from year to year, but the ability and scholarship of those entering has been found of a higher order. Several measures have been taken to promote greater thoroughness and higher efficiency in the Institution's work. In former years students were permitted to carry regularly five studies, giving them twenty-five lessons per week. Under this plan the lesson or recitation periods were forty minutes in length. A readjustment of the course of study was made which fixed the maximum number of studies for the student to pursue at one time as four, and extended the recitation periods to fifty-five minutes, making twenty hours work per week the maximum required. This change has been found beneficial, enabling students to concentrate their attention upon fewer subjects, and thus acquire a more thorough mastery of them.

One of the courses of study has been extended to a full four years' course, in order to provide a realm of academic work that would prepare students for the higher common school work of the State.

It is not the function of the State Normal School to prepare teachers for colleges and universities. It does not attempt to do this. Its province is to give the most thorough and efficient preparation possible for all grades of common school work—instruction and management of district schools, superintending county schools, high school teaching, and superintending town and city schools.

To these phases of education it addresses its whole energy. On this ground, and for this purpose alone, it is believed, the State maintains the Institution. It is the policy of the present management of the school to raise gradually the standard of admission and to require from year to year a higher standard of excellence in all the work done. As a final test of the student's fitness to graduate from the Institution it is required, by a rule of the Board of Trustees that all candidates for graduation shall hold a county license to teach in Indiana for a period of not less than two years, said license to have been issued within a period of five years next preceding the end of the current school year.

I am glad to be able to state that the excellent moral tone and character of the school are fully up to the standard of previous years. A large majority of the students in attendance are self-supporting. They are prompt, industrious, persevering and earnest in their efforts to acquire an education. They come largely from the farming and laboring classes, and have habits of industry and activity that are of the highest service to the student. The State may be congratulated on the fact that so large a body of capable young men and women are making thorough preparation to engage in the teaching and management of her common schools.

PRESENT NEEDS OF THE SCHOOL.

The most urgent need of the Normal School at the present time is a larger teaching force. The average term attendance is nearly 500 students; the number in the spring term is about 700. Maintaining, as the institution does, courses of study varying from one to four years in length, with a large number of students at all times in each year of the course, there is necessarily a large number of classes. In order that all classes may be regularly met, and that classes may be formed every term in the subjects due the students in their different stages of advancement in the course, it has been found necessary to make many of the classes entirely too large. In many cases the size of the classes has been limited only by the capacity of the recitation room. It is impossible to secure the best educational results where classes are so large that individual tests can not be frequently made. Of course, if the teacher regards his class as an audience present to hear his lecture, and makes the mere giving of instruction or knowledge his chief object, the large number is no hindrance to the process. But if he holds that theory of teaching which regards it as a process of stimulating the highest mental activity of which each individual before him is capable of performing, the number must not be too large for frequent individual tests. It would be greatly to the advantage of the school if not less than two teachers could be permanently added to the faculty.

There is another reason why such additions to the faculty would be desirable. While the Normal School does not undertake the preparation of teachers for any grade of school above the common public school, it should yet give the most thorough preparation required for all grades of public school teaching and management, including the common district school, the grade school, the high school and superintending town and city schools. The school affords fair preparation for this work, yet there are many of the best graduates of the institution who, after teaching a time, desire to continue their studies from one to two years. Most of these would prefer to do this advanced work in a Normal School, where special attention would be given to the pedagogical aspects of every advanced subject studied. A post-graduate course of two years, embracing thorough instruction in advanced English, History, Latin and German, Mathematics, Natural Science, Logic and Philosophy, would afford this opportunity. My opinion is, that the time is not far distant, when the demand for this advanced instruction in the Normal School will be very positive and earnest.

As was the case before the fire two and a half years ago, everything belonging to the institution is contained in one large building—the library, apparatus, furniture, museum, etc. The chemical and physical laboratories are in the basement. This latter arrangement is very objectionable on account of the fact that it is impossible to prevent disagreeable and offensive odors from escaping from the laboratories and filling all parts of the building. It also greatly increases the danger from fire. It would be much to the advantage of the institution in every way if a second building could be erected in the near future on the lot recently purchased for the purpose. In this, all the laboratories would be located and all the science work done. It would afford room for the training school, and thus relieve the main building of its present somewhat crowded condition.

Respectfully submitted,

W. W. PARSONS,

President of the Faculty.

REPORTS OF BOARDS OF VISITORS.

Section 4555 of the Revised Statutes reads as follows: "The State Board of Education shall appoint, annually, in the month of June or at its first meeting thereafter, a committee of three, who shall constitute a Board of Visitors, and shall, in a body or by one of its number, visit said school once during each term, and witness the exercises and otherwise inspect the condition of the school; and, by the close of the Normal School year, they shall make a report to the Board of Trustees. The members of said Board of Visitors shall be allowed five dollars for each day's service rendered, and also traveling expenses, to be paid out of the State Treasury."

Reports for the last two years are herewith given:

To the Board of Trustees of the Indiana State Normal School:

GENTLEMEN—The undersigned, having been appointed to visit and examine the State Normal School at Terre Haute, attended to that duty on the 24th, 25th and 26th days of April, 1889. During their stay in Terre Haute they devoted all the time possible to the work to which they were appointed. It was found impracticable to attend the exercises of all the classes, but every school hour of each day was spent in witnessing some exercise. As a rule the examiners attended these recitations in a body, but occasionally they separated, different individuals attending different classes.

Among the exercises witnessed were the following: History of Education (Rosenkranz), conducted by President Parsons; classes in Methods, of two grades, beginning and advanced, conducted by Professor Charman; class in Mental Science, conducted by Vice-President Sandison; two classes in Geography.

by Professor Seiler; an exercise in Drawing from Nature, by Professor Thompson's class; an exercise in English Literature, by Mr. Wood's class.

A considerable portion of the time was given to examining the Training School, which is under the general direction of Professor Sandison, who is assisted by several ladies as critic teachers. The exercises here witnessed were conducted in part by the pupils of the Normal School and in part by the critic teachers. They included work in the elements of number, reading, geography and history.

On Thursday afternoon the Visitors listened to a criticism of the work of pupil teachers. The criticisms were made by other pupil teachers, by the critic teachers, and by the Vice-President of the Normal School.

On Friday afternoon the Visitors had an opportunity of inspecting the magnificent new building erected on the site of that which was burned about one year ago. The structure is worthy of the grand purpose for which it is designed. Its outward appearance is imposing, and its inner arrangements seem to be admirably adapted to the wants of the school. The promptness with which the city of Terre Haute and the State of Indiana have responded to the call of the Normal School in its hour of need is worthy of all commendation. It is one of those indications of the popular interests in education that are so cheering to the heart of every true philanthropist.

On the afternoon of Friday a meeting of the Faculty and Board of Visitors was held for a mutual exchange of opinions and for criticisms and suggestions upon the work which had been observed. The Visitors availed themselves quite freely of the opportunity thus offered.

The Visitors desire to express their satisfaction at the general appearance of the school. Laboring under many disadvantages, occupying limited and inconvenient quarters, deprived by the fire of much apparatus and means of illustrating work in science, as well as of a library, the Institution is still moving on with great success. The number in attendance, as we understand, exceed those of any previous term. There was evident a strong disposition on the part of the students to use most effectually every opportunity presented. A spirit of wakefulness and industry pervaded the school. The pupils seemed ready and anxious to do their part of the work. The recitations were animated, and evinced a thoughtful intelligence that was very gratifying; and they seemed to perform their duties with a pleasing cheerfulness. This condition of the school is of itself a powerful witness to the wisdom and efficiency of the management.

To the Board of Visitors it was quite apparent that the school has a life of its own, and that its system and methods have certain striking characteristics. Among the most prominent of these we may mention the tendency to intelligent generalization. The facts which are learned are always grouped. They are not allowed to stand in the mind of the learner, isolated and lifeless. This characteristic the Board of Visitors desire to commend. An isolated fact is very likely to be a dead fact. To store the mind with a great multitude of such facts is simply to load it down. Knowledge of this kind is retained in the mind by an exhaustive effort of memory, the other faculties remaining comparatively unused.

Considered as culture, such a gathering of scattered data must be pronounced exceedingly imperfect. It takes hold of the mind on but one side. It is essential to the highest culture that facts should be thoughtfully compared, that their points of resemblance should be noted, that their differences should be observed. By such comparison there is an awakening of all the mental faculties of the learner. The observing powers must be trained, for the learner must be sure of his facts. The reasoning faculty is called into action, for by its exercise the necessary comparisons are made and the proper inferences drawn. Such a comparison also has a tendency to awaken the imagination and the æsthetic powers of the soul, especially when the facts collected belong to the outward world.

A caution is to be observed here. The tendency to generalization must not outrun the knowledge of facts. Some theories have been proposed in the world, which, as theories, were fine, but which were found not to fit any existing condition of things. It seems to be the order of Providence that in our processes of culture we must use the power of observation; we must note the actual existing conditions, both in matter and in mind, and we must see to it that our apprehension of facts is correct and trustworthy. With this as a foundation we are prepared for the grandest generalizations.

In the Training School we found the same general spirit prevailing that we had observed in the normal classes. There was wakefulness, respectful attention, eagerness to master whatever was presented. We noted also the same disposition to gather together facts and to group them. In one of the intermediate grades, in an exercise in history, the teacher began with certain generalizations, which, however, appeared to have been deduced from previously learned facts. But the lesson included a clear explanation of the city government of Terre Haute. All branches of the municipal organization were named and the functions of the various officers indicated. But the enumeration of these facts was not considered sufficient. The functions of the different city officers were classified. Some were pronounced to be legislative, some executive, and some judicial in their character, and these names were so used as to show that to the children they had a real meaning. When it was said that the city marshal was an executive officer, it was quite clear that the children knew why he was so characterized. This exercise was under the charge of Miss Love. We not only approve the method of it, but we also commend the matter of exercises of this character. American citizens ought to know something of American institutions. They ought to know something of the officers who are employed in the performance of public duties, and they ought to understand something of the duties and responsibilities of such officers.

In the room under the charge of Miss Thomas we witnessed some excellent work in the elements or numbers and of reading. We also heard exercises in Miss Tarney's room, both by pupil teachers and by Miss Tarney herself. We were impressed with the correctness of the methods and the accuracy of the processes. The knowledge acquired by the children in this room is practical and substantial. A class which was instructed in notation by Miss Tarney will hereafter have clear conceptions of the decimal principle, at least as applied to tenth, units, tens and hundreds. The knowledge the pupils acquired in that exercise was unquestionably their own, for they were compelled to discover it for themselves. And one excellent feature of the work was that, although it required patience and a great deal of hard thinking on the part of the children to secure the results, still the labor was performed with continued cheerfulness.

The ideal normal school is understood to be devoted exclusively to the teaching of the science and art of education, but it does not seem that in order to attain the highest usefulness this ideal must be rigidly adhered to. Incidentally much may be done in a normal school in the teaching of the ordinary branches of knowledge. Principals and methods may be very effectively illustrated by the way in which common studies are dealt with. It is not, therefore, to be regarded altogether as an evil that a normal school is required to do some academic work. To many young persons desiring to be teachers a principle or method in pedagogies may be made much clearer by being practically illustrated. As our educational instrumentalities are improved and enlarged the necessity of academic work in the Normal School diminishes. When the high schools of a State are properly developed, and the opportunities they offer properly utilized, it may be reasonable to expect that the candidates for admission into the Normal School will be well prepared in respect to their knowledge of the subjects to be taught in the public schools. The Normal School may then safely and wisely exclude from the curriculum everything except what belongs to it specially. But the time will never come when the Normal School will not need for illustration some academic work. The ideal condition is that the amount of this work is made to depend, not upon the scholastic deficiencies of the Normal School pupils, but upon the need for illustrative examples.

The Visitors are assured by their recent examination that the Normal School of Indiana places the emphasis in this respect upon the right class of studies. Professional work seems to be considered the important function of the school. But the teaching of science and literature is by no means overlooked. Undoubtedly some of this latter kind of work is done in order to supply the deficiencies in the culture of the pupils. But all academic work seems to be used as a means of illustrating the best methods in imparting instruction.

The Board of Visitors would express emphatic approval of the school in its spirit and its methods. They congratulate the people of the State of Indiana on the possession of an institution so worthy of their confidence.

REPORT FOR 1889-90.

To the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and to the Board of Trustees of the Indiana State Normal School:

GENTLEMEN—Having been appointed to visit and examine the State Normal School, at Terre Haute, the undersigned attended to that duty on the 23d, 24th and 25th days of April, and most respectfully submit the following report:

THE BUILDING.

The Visitors desire to express their hearty commendation of the new school building. It is in most respects a model structure, and admirably adapted to the high purposes for which it is used. Its external appearance is imposing and substantial. It is free from the useless ornamentation that characterizes the architectural design of so many public buildings of the present day. The internal arrangements are specially adapted to the wants of the several departments of a Normal and Training School. The apparatus and appliances for illustrations, in the departments of scientific investigation, are well selected, and meet the present wants of the School in most of the departments.

THE LIBRARY.

The library is very well arranged, and the books, which form the nucleus of a larger collection, to be supplied, are well chosen. Good books are helps to the pedagogical student of the most important character, and the promise of the future encourages the Visitors to hope that before long every department of educational work will have in the library full lines of reference books, which will supply to the normal student the garnered treasures of knowledge in every useful field of human research.

Special commendation is due to the citizens of the city of Terre Haute, and of the State of Indiana, who have so generously responded to the wants of the State Normal School. It evidences, in a most emphatic manner, the deep popular interest felt in the promotion of the great purposes of education in the city and State.

THE GROUNDS.

The grounds surrounding the building are tastefully laid out and are, in every respect, in harmony with the beautiful location of this substantial structure.

THE MANAGEMENT.

The Visitors desire to express their approbation of the very efficient executive management and the systematic arrangements that characterize the several departments of the Normal and Training School. The devotion and fidelity of the President, the Vice-President, and the Faculty, in the performance of their varied, responsible duties, challenged the admiration of the Visitors, as they saw the work of the school going on, free from any apparent exercise of authority. The Visitors witnessed some exercise during every school hour of each day. The students were, without exception, to be commended for their alertness, earnestness and devotion to their work. The deportment of the students of the Normal and Training Schools was worthy of the highest praise, even from the most exacting critic.

ACADEMIC EXERCISES.

The first day, and a portion of the second, was spent by the Visitors in listening to the exercises in the class rooms. Among the recitations witnessed were the following: Latin, of the third year, conducted by Professor McTaggart, which lesson was a model of the "Socratic" method of teaching; Geography, by Professor Seiler; History, by Professor Kemp; Botany, laboratory work, by Professor Evermann; Orthoepy, by Professor Humke, in which the vocal elements were taught and illustrated in a very thorough manner. The Visitors desire to emphasize the importance and value of the "phonic drill" as the basis of correct pronunciation and of good speaking and reading. Literature was conducted by Professor Woods; Physics, by Professor Gillum; Algebra, by Professor Newby, and Music, by Mrs. Adams.

Purely academic teaching in a State Normal School, whose primary function is the preparation of teachers for the common schools of the State, is only justified upon the ground that a thorough, scientific knowledge of the branches to be taught is essential, and will greatly augment the teaching power. One ignorant of the principles and facts to be taught can not present to pupils the logical connections of the subject-matter, nor adapt correct methods of instruction.

METHODS.

The Visitors were favorably impressed with the good methods generally adopted in conducting the academic work of the school. The aim of the professors seemed to be to stimulate original thought and scientific methods of investigation, leading the students to understand the philosophy and the logic in the development of the subjects under consideration. In response to searching and critical questions proposed freely by the Visitors, the students in the advanced classes showed the ability to give accurate and comprehensive statements of their conceptions of the subjects taught. One of the great aims of the Normal School is to train teachers to think broadly, and express thought concisely and clearly.

PROFESSIONAL WORK.

A large portion of the time of the Visitors was devoted to a careful examination of the strictly professional work. They sought to find out the exact standing of the school with reference to its central idea, that of training students in the art of instruction and management; and it gives them great satisfaction to report that the principles and methods made prominent in this school lead them to regard it as preëminently a professional school, in which the controlling aim is to supply the State with well qualified teachers.

The Visitors witnessed the exercises conducted by President Parsons, in the Philosophy of Education, and by Vice-President Sandison, in Mental Science, with great satisfaction. The design of these exercises, obviously, was to give the students clear conception of the laws and processes of the mind. Such training is, in the judgment of the examiners, absolutely essential in order that correct methods of instruction may be intelligently applied in the practical work of the teacher.

The time has come for the American Normal School to give a thorough pedagogical course of instruction, that will enable its graduates to teach any given branch as an organic whole, considering the subject in its entire scope and development as a factor in education.

THE TRAINING OR PRACTICE SCHOOL.

A large part of Normal School work is to prepare teachers for graded and country schools, and it is therefore important that there should be attached to it a training or practice school where, under the supervision and direction of regular "critic" teachers, the students may test their skill in applying the principles and methods taught in the Normal School, in the instruction and management of classes of children by actual experience. The Visitors found this department of the school doing excellent work under the special supervision of Vice-President Sandison. The "experimenting" teachers were carefully shown how to unfold and illustrate the branches taught, so as to stimulate the mental activity of the pupils and lead them to correct results. The logical steps essential to a natural and scientific development of the elementary branches, in accordance with the laws of Mental Science, were clearly and concisely illustrated. The lesson taught was made the subject of criticism by the Vice-President, the practice teachers, and by members of the class, who carefully observed while the lesson was being given. The Visitors listened, subsequently, to the sharp criticisms made upon it, and desire to express their hearty approval of this department of the work.

CRITIC TEACHING.

The exercise in Language, given by the "critic" teacher, in grades three and four, impressed the Visitors as being almost an ideal exercise, in that it showed how pupils may readily be led to do their own thinking, and arrive at correct conclusions without being unduly aided by the teacher.

The exercise, as conducted, required patience, tact and skill on the part of the teacher, and healthy, active thinking on the part of the children. The enthusiasm and cheerfulness of the class was delightful to witness. The pleasure of instruction is in proportion to the responsiveness of the pupils to the efforts of the teacher. The earnest, magnetic instructor feels genuine delight when he sees the unfolding of the child's mind, that will enable him to garner knowledge for himself later on.

There may be some amusement in teaching a parrot to say "Polly wants a cracker," but no satisfaction akin to that which the true teacher feels in opening the mind of the yearning child to a vision of the boundless realms of knowledge beyond.

The Visitors desire to commend the teaching of free-hand drawing in the Normal School. Drawing being essentially the "language of form," is an educative force of great importance to the teacher. The ability to employ drawing as a means of expression in teaching other branches, the Visitors consider of great value. The tongue and pen have long been regarded as holding the first place as weapons of expression, but it now may well be questioned whether manual skill should not be added as a visible means of expression of universal utility. The end and aim of culture may be considered as culminating in art, the perfected expression of a "nation's best civilization."

The exercises in Music, conducted by Mrs. Adams, were highly appreciated, and the Visitors would suggest that, in view of the great "æsthetic" and disciplinary value of music, this branch should be taught in every public school as a regular study. The elements of music, if ever, should be taught in childhood, and in the judgment of the Visitors, the place for systematic musical training is in the public school. Vocal music should have a large place in it, as a culture study, as an element of refinement, and as a means of enrichment for the hearts of the children of the State. As an aid to school government it would alone justify its introduction into the regular curriculum as a daily school exercise. To make possible such instruction in the schools of the State, every graduate of the Normal and Training School should be qualified to conduct elementary music exercises in all grades of the public schools below the high school, independent of any instrumental aid.

Gradually the work demanded of the teacher to be performed in the public school has become so much enlarged as to require that he shall be able to give instruction in a wide range of general subjects, such as civics, morals and manners, etc., etc., and the Board of Visitors would express their emphatic approval of the noble spirit exhibited and useful methods adopted by the President and faculty, who seek to meet all the reasonable demands that might be made upon them to prepare broadly trained teachers for the service of the State. While the strictly professional is justly considered by the management of the school to be the most important function of the work to be performed, yet all that relates to the more general preparation of teachers for their duties in theory and practice is taken into consideration—moral, intellectual and physical.

The Visitors were left entirely free to examine the workings of the school in all of its departments in accordance with their own ideas of their duty and freely availed themselves of the privilege of asking questions, of making suggestions and of offering criticisms both in the class-rooms, and also in their addresses on Friday at the union meeting of the Board of Trustees, of the Faculty and students, who were assembled for an hour or more in "Normal Hall" for that purpose.

In closing this report the Visitors desire to express their appreciation of the distinguished honor conferred upon them and to acknowledge the many courtesies extended to them by the Board of Trustees, by the President and Faculty and by the students of the school. They desire, also, to congratulate the people of the State of Indiana in having at Terre Haute a State Normal School worthy of their entire confidence and cordial support. The school takes very high rank among the many similar institutions of the country.

REPORT OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

To His Excellency, ALVIN P. HOVEY,

Governor of Indiana :

It is with pleasure that the Board of Trustees of the Indiana Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home submit for your consideration the twelfth (12th) annual report of the Institution.

There has been no change in the membership of the Board of Trustees during the past year. The meetings of the Board have been held at least once in each month during the year. One member of the Board residing at Knightstown, within two miles of the Home, has had the Institution under personal observation during the entire year.

Mrs. Pittman, the lady Trustee, has, on an average (during the year), spent five days in each month at the Institution, giving careful attention to the government, treatment, food, clothing and sanitary condition of the inmates, and at the close of the year we feel that we know what the management has been during the past year.

There is no other institution in the state that is so carefully watched by the general public as the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home. The Grand Army of the Republic, the Woman's Relief Corps, the Sons of Veterans, each have special visiting committees to this institution. And these committees we have found ever on the alert to counsel and aid in securing the best management of the affairs of the Home, and also watching with jealous care every whisper of mismanagement. The State Board of Charities also give the same attention to this as to any other institution that comes under their supervision. And in addition to this every discharged ex-union soldier, every soldier's widow, and the friends of all the old veterans in the State, feel sufficient interest in the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home to carefully note its management and the treatment received by its inmates.

At our regular meeting in February, the term of Prof. A. H. Morris having expired, the Rev. J. W. Harris, of Michigan City, Ind., was elected Superintendent for a term of three years.

Mr. J. W. Harris was an Indiana soldier—a member of the 2d Indiana Cavalry—during the war, and has an honorable record of service. He was a prisoner of war in Macon, Savannah, Charleston and Columbia, from May 9, 1864, to February 14, 1865.

He is well fitted by education, training and natural abilities for the position. He took immediate charge at the Home on the first day of March, and readily adapted himself to institution work, manifesting a peculiar fitness for his position.

The work in the schools and industrial departments during the past year has been eminently satisfactory. The grade and standard of scholarship have been gradually raised, and the practical workings of our industrial schools have surpassed the most sanguine expectations of its friends. Our wards are now discharged with a fair education, and with sufficient knowledge of a useful occupation to fit them for a life of usefulness, and make them honorable members of society.

GROWTH OF THE INSTITUTION.

Our report for the year ending October 31, 1888, showed in the institution 350 pupils and 53 employes. October 31, 1889, there were present on our rolls 448 pupils, cared for by 62 employes.

At the close of the present fiscal year there are in the institution 574 pupils and 87 employes.

While the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home and Asylum for Feeble-Minded Children were under our management, the maximum number of soldiers' orphans received and cared for at one time had not exceeded two hundred. When the old buildings were burned in 1886, it was contemplated that, after rebuilding, the two institutions would be separated, and placed each under different management, and upon consultation with some of the executive officers of the State, it was concluded that buildings of the capacity of 300 or 350 would be amply sufficient for all the future purposes and wants of the Home. Our school and chapel and the main building were planned and built upon that basis.

The management and treatment of the pupils has so recommended itself to those who had the oversight and care of the soldiers' orphans in the State, that applications for admission came crowding in faster than we could make arrangements to receive them, and although the last General Assembly passed an act authorizing the Board to construct six cottages, these cottages are all full, and we have one division in the old school building, and one division in the amusement hall, with applications for over one hundred soldiers' orphans already passed upon, and with an average of twenty-five (25) applications passed upon at each board meeting, many of whom are in the county home, and all in a miserable condition of poverty and devoid of care, pleading for admission into the Home.

Our chapel, by crowding, will accommodate from 450 to 500 people. But with from 574 pupils and 87 employes, 161 persons must be left out from all chapel exercises, provided there is not a single visitor, and it is often desirable that visitors should be present at our chapel exercises and performances.

With the increased number of pupils, our school-rooms are inadequate. Our bakery, laundry and shops should also be enlarged. One of the two things the Board feels compelled to do, either discharge a part of the orphans now under our care, and refuse to admit others only when vacancies occur, or there must be increased and enlarged facilities for caring for them.

WANTS OF THE INSTITUTION.

To enable the management of this institution to properly accommodate the various classes now entitled to admission to the Home, there should be a chapel erected that will accommodate 800 people; this will cost		$15,000
Four double cottages should be built at a cost of	28,000
Enlargement of bakery, laundry and shops.....	5,000
Extension of electric light system.....	2,500
Two frame cottages on farm.....	2,000
Extension of fire protection system, water and well in Niagara limestone.....	3,000

To complete improvement of grounds.....	$3,000
To remove water closets and sanitary arrangements...	4,000
To complete dining-room.....	1,000
To purchase 120 acres of land.....	10,000
To build a quarantine addition to hospital.....	5,000
To erect addition to school building, four rooms.....	10,000

With buildings thus completed there would be ample accommodations for seven hundred children.

The objection is often urged against erecting buildings for this institution that the class who are entitled to admission are gradually diminishing, and at no distant day there will be no soldiers' and sailors' orphans in the State. But there will always be a class of orphans and abandoned children that, by proper legislation, could be made eligible to admission to an orphans' home. And the question presents itself, whether it is not better for the State to take a class of such children and fit them for honorable and useful callings, than to permit them to grow into manhood and womanhood in ignorance and under vicious influences.

It is a well settled principle in political economy that the wealth of the State is increased to a great extent by the character of its citizens, and money is wisely and economically expended that adds to the standard of citizenship.

Another appropriation that should be made annually is for current repairs on buildings and machinery. The best estimate that can be made is that it will require $2,000 to keep them in repair.

You will learn from the financial report herewith submitted that there is an indebtedness of $13,511.60.

The reason for this is obvious.

The act establishing the present Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, section 25, Acts 1887, page 25, provides an appropriation of $15 per month for each pupil and employe residing in said Home.

In 1889 the General Assembly, on the basis of 350 pupils and 50 employes, to pay the above per capita appropriated $72,000 for the fiscal years ending October 1889-90, making the full payment of the per capita, provided our numbers did not exceed 400. See Acts, 1889, page 421.

But, as will be seen from the figures heretofore stated, at the close of the fiscal year ending October 31, 1889, we had 510 inmates, and our appropriation should have been $90,000 for the past year.

There has also been expended in partially completing the new dining room near $5,000, and in erecting a new smoke stack, made necessary by our old stack being struck by lightning, $2,500. The appropriation for current repairs being only $500, was entirely inadequate to keep our buildings in repair.

With our appropriation of $15 per capita, the buildings can all be insured, our furniture and fixtures kept in good order, and our wards comfortably clothed and well fed.

For the lack of this appropriation we have been compelled to incur the debt above mentioned, only partially insure our property and to curtail the outfit due the discharged orphans.

Thanking you for the great interest you have always shown in the management of this Institution, we herewith submit the report of the Superintendent, the Financial Officer, Physician, Matron, and all accompanying documents for your information. And ask you to make such recommendations as, in your judgment, will be for the best interest of the State, and the well-being and care of the large number of orphaned and homeless children that are the wards of our Commonwealth.

Respectfully submitted,

BEN L. SMITH, PRESIDENT,

SARAH E. PITTMAN, SECRETARY,

HARRY WATTS, TREASURER,

Trustees.

REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF CONSTRUCTION.

To the Board of Trustees :

The end of the fiscal year 1889 found us with dining room and kitchen about half done and four cottages under contract.

During the month of November the new boiler was placed and put to use. The drives and walks around the Hospital were graded and graveled and the lawns were leveled ready for seed. Drains were put in and trees planted about the Hospital grounds; steam and gas connections were made with the same building; also, water mains were run and hydrants placed near the building for fire protection; also, a water line was run over to the barn, hydrants placed, a water trough made to serve both yards. Got new dining room under roof.

In the month of December the brickwork of the two double cottages was put up and the same made ready for the roof. The cellars under main building were thoroughly fumigated and whitewashed. Contracted for new gas well, and located the same on the southwest corner of the farm.

In January and February, 1890, finished new gas well and laid pipe line up to boiler house; moved the old frame cottage to the north side of farm and had it replastered and painted, laid water mains to shops and cottages and placed hydrants around same for fire protection; also put in drains for new dining room, cleared away and grubbed up all the beech trees in front of new cottages; also put in rope transmission of power from laundry to shops, put in new steam dryer in laundry, built new fence from Hospital to northwest corner of farm; also laid floor over dining room and set up partitions and frames, contracted for plastering same, and piped the same for gas.

In March and April, finished up the water system to cottages : also put in sewers to each cottage. On March 23 lightning struck the smokestack at the boiler house, shattering it badly. Owing to its dangerous condition I deemed it advisable to take about thirty feet off the top of it, leaving the remainder for use until another one could be provided, which was concurred in by your Board at the next Board meeting. It was also decided to build a new and larger smokestack, which had become absolutely necessary, owing to the increase of boiler capacity now in use. Plans and specifications were made for the stack, and bids asked for.

Grading and graveling was begun on the walks and drives around the new dining room, cottages and shops. The steam pipes and radiators were set in the dining room. The brick conduit for steam pipes to the new cottages was put in, also a new cistern of one hundred barrels capacity made at the new kitchen. All of the steam and part of the gas-fitting was done by our own engineer and his assistant at a nominal expense.

New wire and slat fences were built, inclosing Hospital and play-grounds east of cottages.

The verandas to cottages were built and plastering finished, and gas and water connections made with the same. The old bake oven was torn down and bake-shop remodeled and made into a three-room cottage for the use of the engineer and family.

The old hospital building was stripped of its sheds and additions, and repaired up, and made into sleeping apartments for the farm hands. Contracts for the third double-cottage were made, and the foundations put in.

Early in May the contract was made for building a new smoke stack at boiler house, and the concrete was put in for foundation.

The north hill-side was sodded, and walks and drains put in. A flag-staff was erected on the front lawn. Sod was placed around the edges of the walks and drives; also, around the new buildings, and a good many trees and shrubs planted. The walks and drives in front of cottages were all graded and graveled. A new iron stairs was put up at east end of dining room. All the rooms over new dining room were plastered. The two double-cottages were finished, and made ready for occupancy.

In the month of June the brick work on south cottage was done, and the roof put on; also, ten rooms over dining room were cased, and the doors hung. A bath room was fitted up, and gas fixtures put up at the expense of the W. R. C., and by their contributions. (See report of.)

In July plastering was finished on the south cottage. Verandas put up, steam, gas and water pipes put in, brick conduit made between cottages for extension of steam pipes; drains, also, were put in. A brick walk five feet wide was also laid down from the court of main building to connect laundry, shops and cottages.

In August the new smoke stack was built, and connections made with the boilers. The old stack was taken down. South cottage was completed and occupied. This, with several jobs of minor importance, finished up the work for the year.

Respectfully submitted,

HARRY WATTS,

Superintendent of Construction.

LAWS GOVERNING THE HOME AND ITS OFFICERS.

SEC. 9. The Trustees and (under regulations and a form of application which they shall prescribe) the Superintendent are authorized and required to receive, as pupils of the Indiana Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, orphans and children residing in this State, under the age of sixteen years, who may be destitute of the means of support and education, in the following order:

First. Orphans, children of deceased Union soldiers or sailors in the army or navy of the United States in the late civil war, said orphans not having mothers living. If there be not applications for the admission of persons of this class sufficient to fill said Home, then there shall be in like manner admitted:

Second. Orphans, children of such deceased soldiers or sailors, said orphans having mothers living. If there be not applications for admission of persons of said two classes sufficient to fill said Home, then, in like manner, there shall be admitted:

Third. Children of permanently disabled or indigent soldiers or sailors of said service, residing in this State, or in national military homes, having been admitted thereto from this State.

All children admitted to said Home, as pupils thereof, shall be supported and educated therein until they shall be sixteen years of age, unless for good cause sooner discharged. Any of said pupils, who, by reason of physical disability or other cause, may be, in the judgment of the Board, unable to earn a livelihood, shall be retained as pupils of said Home until they shall be eighteen years of age.

SEC. 10. Each county of this State shall be entitled to have in said Home a number of pupils proportionate to the number of soldiers furnished by it to the Union service in said war, which proportionate number shall be fixed by said Board according to the capacity of said Home. Applicants from a county already having its full quota in said Home shall be admitted, if the Home be not filled at the time of making application; but in the admission of applicants, when all applying can not be accommodated, preference shall be given to those from counties not then having in the Home as many pupils in proportion to their quotas, as fixed by said Board, as other counties from which applications may be pending shall then have therein.

SEC. 15. The pupils of said Home shall be so taught and treated as to promote their physical, intellectual and moral improvement, and shall be trained in habits of industry, studiousness and morality. The Trustees and, under their direction, the Superintendent shall afford to the pupils of said Home such literary, technical, industrial, art and military education as can be provided. For the literary education of said pupils, said officers shall establish and conduct at said Home a school, which shall be divided into three departments: a primary department, an intermediate department and a high school, which several departments shall be properly graded. The Superintendent shall prescribe proper courses of study for said departments and grades, not inferior in any respect to the courses of study in like departments and grades of the common schools of this State. He shall cause to be provided the proper books for use in said school, and shall employ the necessary teachers. No person shall be employed or permitted to teach in any department of said school except such as shall be qualified therefor and licensed according to law to teach in the common schools of the State.

SEC. 16. The Trustees and, under their direction, the Superintendent shall establish and maintain, within the grounds of said Home, a shop or shops wherein suitable trades and arts shall be taught and practiced in a thorough and comprehensive manner. The Superintendent shall, subject to the approval of said Board, employ properly qualified foremen, instructors and instructresses to teach such trades and arts to the pupils of said Home, and shall cause to be provided machinery, tools, materials and books necessary to carry out the purpose of this section, and shall cause the productions of the pupils to be disposed of by the Steward to the best advantage of the Home. There is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the State Treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of twenty thousand dollars, to be drawn by the Treasurer of said Board, and expended in the erection of such shop or shops, and in the purchase and preparation, for and during the next two years, of said machinery, tools, materials and books.

SEC. 17. The pupils of said Home shall have the right to select for themselves such trade, art or occupation taught therein as they, being qualified therefor, may wish to learn; but every pupil, male or female, remaining in said Home after completing the thirteenth year of his or her age, except in case of disability or ill-health, shall be required to devote of his or her remaining time in said Institution some portion, to be prescribed by the Superintendent, in learning some useful trade, art or occupation therein taught.

SEC. 22. For any child voluntarily placed in said Institution by the relative or other persons authorized to do so, said Trustees may secure a home in a private family residing in this State, when, in the judgment of said Trustees, the best interests of said child will be subserved thereby; for which purpose they may indenture such child during minority by articles in duplicate, to be executed by said Board and the person to whom such child shall be so intrusted, whereby provision shall be made for the physical, intellectual and moral welfare of such child, and it shall be stipulated what education such child shall receive, what trade or occupation he or she shall be taught, and what compensation for services shall be made to such child during such apprenticeship and at the end thereof. Said articles shall also provide for the making of reports to said Trustees, at such periods as they may deem proper, by the person to whom the child shall be intrusted, concerning the condition and welfare of the child. And the Trustees, in said articles, shall reserve the right to replace such child in said Home, if they shall deem this to be for the best interests of the child; and they may, in their discretion, exercise the right so reserved. The Trustees in their corporate name, may sue at any time upon said articles, and may recover damages for any violation of the provisions thereof, and the damages so recovered shall be for the use and benefit of such child.

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF THE "HOME."

1. All employes are under the supervision of the Superintendent, and must give implicit obedience to his orders. It is made his duty to discharge any employe who shall use profane or vulgar language, or who is addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors.

2. The Superintendent is responsible for the proper use, care and disposition of property belonging to the Home, and for the due administration of its affairs; but the hearty co-operation of all officers and employes is expected, and a ready and cheerful compliance with all orders and regulations is required.

3. In the absence of the Superintendent the Matron is to be consulted, and her wishes faithfully carried out. She is to exercise to its fullest extent the authority with which she is invested on such occasions. At all other times she is to have the supervision of general work, and must report in writing any irregularity that may occur, or any neglect of duty on the part of any employe under her charge. Willful violation of rules will subject offenders to forfeiture of positions.

4. In cases of urgency, absence from duty will be granted by the Superintendent, or, in his absence, by the Matron.

5. In all cases of sickness, or death of relatives or friends, reasonable leave of absence will be granted.

6. When employes are unable to perform their duties in consequence of protracted sickness their wages will be paid until the end of each month, but discontinued thereafter.

7. All persons residing at the Institution are expected to be in their rooms by 10 o'clock p. m., at which hour the building ordinarily will be closed.

8. Ladies may receive gentlemen in the public parlor, which will be open to public use, until 10 p. m. When the ladies themselves are apprised of the coming of the gentlemen, the Superintendent must also be informed and his consent obtained.

9. Lights in private rooms, dormitories and division rooms must be extinguished at 10 o'clock p. m., except by special permission of the Superintendent.

10. Entertainments for amusement and social culture will be provided for the children as often as once a month, to which all persons employed in the Home are entitled and invited to attend.

11. Friendly relations should be cultivated among all connected with the Institution.

12. Any fact prejudicial to the moral character or standing of any officer or employe coming to the knowledge of another should be forthwith communicated to the Superintendent, but espionage, tattling or tale-bearing are forbidden.

13. Governesses, teachers and heads of departments, though subject to the supervision of the Superintendent, will be held accountable for the efficient and faithful performance of the duties that respectively devolve upon them. They must maintain proper order and discipline among the pupils under their care, and their assistants are subject to their directions.

14. No case of discipline must be referred to the Superintendent unless beyond the control of the governess. Corporal punishment may be administered when other remedies have failed, but excessive punishment is not to be inflicted at any time.

15. It shall be the duty of every officer and employe to report to the governess of the child any misdemeanor or irregularity of conduct coming to their knowledge, and such information must be given and received in a spirit of kindness, and with a view to the best interests of the institution.

16. Under no circumstances will an employe be allowed to apply to the children any language or epithet calculated to irritate, humiliate or degrade them. No rough expressions or slang phrases must be employed, but on the other hand a correct and discreet use of language in the presence of children must be observed.

17. Governesses, teachers and others having charge of the children must give attention to their hygienic training, such as the manner of sitting, standing, walking, manner and time of studying, etc.

18. The children should not be addressed by their last name alone, or by any nick-name or false names. Correct use of words and language should always be encouraged.

19. The head of each industrial department shall see that the industry conducted by him is taught and practiced in a thorough and comprehensive manner, so that each pupil shall obtain, as far as possible, a practical knowledge of the same in all its parts. He shall be at his post of duty at the beginning of business hours, preserve proper order among his pupils, and secure close and constant application to the work in which they are engaged. If a pupil fails to report for duty at the proper time, the Superintendent must be notified at once.

20. Whenever it is possible the governess must accompany the children to the play ground, give direction to their sports, regulate their conduct, and exercise such supervision as will prevent accidents and misdemeanors of any kind.

21. Governess shall give special attention to the condition of the children's clothing and see that it is kept clean and in repair. On Sunday and holidays the children shall wear their best suits.

22. Governesses will accompany their children to all chapel exercises when attending services, and to the door of the school room when attending school. The teachers will accompany the children from the school room and deliver them to the governess at the door of the division room.

23. A general attendance of all the employes of the Home on the regular Sunday services is required as an encouragement to the children and a mark of respect to the visiting ministers.

24. Under the direction of the Superintendent, the Steward shall purchase all articles for use or consumption at the Home, when and where they can best and most cheaply be procured, and shall sell and dispose of the surplus productions of the Home to the best advantage of the institution. In proper books and pay-roll, to be prescribed by the Board, he shall keep the time and accounts of all employes of the Home, and accounts of all sales and all purchases for or on account of the Home.

25. Ever three months the Steward shall make a careful invoice of all the property belonging to the Home, and the invoice so made shall be preserved by him in his office. Such articles as can not be satisfactorily accounted for from time to time by the heads of the various departments shall be charged up to the proper parties.

26. Due courtesy and attention must be extended on the part of officers and employes to persons visiting the Institution. Visitors are not allowed to go through the building without an attendant.

27. Any boy over eight years old who shall run away from the Home shall be punished by the Superintendent, discharged, or be sent to Plainfield Reform School by direction of Board of Trustees and Superintendent.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

To the Honorable Board of Trustees:

I beg leave to submit the twelfth annual report of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home:

My duties as Superintendent began March 1, 1890. Since then the needs of every department have been studied, and such changes made as were deemed necessary. As a whole, the past year has been one of growth and improvement.

NEW BUILDINGS.

During the year a building containing the children's kitchen and dining-room has been completed. It is a fine building, and for the present, large enough. Fifteen rooms on the second floor have been finished and furnished, and are occupied by the employes of the Institution. These rooms were completed through the kindness of the Woman's Relief Corps of Indiana, and are known as the "W. R. C. Hall."

Three double-brick cottages have been built, and are occupied by six divisions of boys. A commodious hospital building has been erected, and is desirably situated some distance from the main building.

CHANGES AND IMPROVEMENTS.

The large room in the north wing of the main building, formerly used as a children's dining room, has been partitioned and converted into two school rooms, with a seating capacity of eighty-two. These rooms have been fitted up with all the conveniences of the rooms in the school building proper.

A room on the first floor, in the main building, vacated by the removal of a boy's division to one of the cottages, has been made into a library and reading room. This room is well lighted and heated, and is furnished with book cases, which are filled with carefully selected books and reading desks, where may be found a good selection of current newspapers, magazines and other periodicals. A librarian is in constant attendance, and while the children enjoy the privileges of the reading room, the utmost decorum and order are maintained. The appropriation of two hundred dollars for the library has been drawn and carefully expended for that purpose.

ENROLLMENT OF CHILDREN.

During the year the enrollment has reached five hundred and seventy-four. There are now on file one hundred applications, which have been approved, but owing to the crowded condition of the Home the children can not be received.

CARE OF CHILDREN.

The children are divided into fifteen families or divisions, of which nine are boys and six are girls. These divisions are in charge of ladies, who are held responsible for the conduct and appearance of the children. Every effort is made to make them happy and to teach them such habits of truthfulness, industry, and economy as shall fit them for useful and honorable citizenship.

HEALTH.

Considering the number of children in the Home, the health has been most excellent. During the year death has claimed seven little ones as his own. The names are as follows:

Hattie May Fike, November 10, 1889.

Emma Pearl Austin, November 15, 1889.

John Goff, December 20, 1889.

Josie Baker, January 14, 1890.

Letitia Erwin, January 18, 1890.

Arthur McKenzie, March 25, 1890.

Amelia Petersdorf, June, 1890.

For further information you are respectfully referred to the Physician's Report.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.

On Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, after inspection, the children assemble in the chapel for Sunday-school. After general exercises, each teacher takes her class to a separate school-room and half an hour or more is spent in the study of the lesson. The International Lesson Leaf is used. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon religious exercises are held in the chapel by the Superintendent or visiting clergymen. On Thursday evening of every week prayer-meeting is held and each person present is urged to take part. There is a large attendance of both employees and children.

SCHOOLS.

The school is divided into eight grades and is conducted as the other graded schools in the State. Josephine Donohue has been selected as principal, with nine assistants. In June, 1890, commencement exercises were held for the first time in the history of the institution. Fourteen pupils having finished the eight years course were graduated, and in token of the same were presented with handsome parchment diplomas by the Superintendent and Board of Trustees. They were also presented by the G. A. R. of Indiana, with very beautiful solid silver badges appropriately inscribed. The names of the pupils graduating in the class of 1890, are:

Dossie C. Freeman,	Charles Caster,
Thomas H. Lamkin,	George Loughton,
Daniel Lunsford,	Robert Van Horn,
Eugene Morand,	Ernest Tucker,
Ford Wallick,	Fred Hord,
Savanah Brossius,	Lulu Austin,
Lizzie Phenix.	Allie Bahney.

A large number of visitors of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. were present, and by their kindly presence added much to the interest of the occasion.

The other departments are the musical department, under the direction of Miss Dora Lemonds; the kindergarten, under the management of Miss Fannie Moffitt; the cooking school, under the direction of Miss Bertha Dahl, a graduate of the Boston Cooking School.

MILITARY.

A military department has been organized under the direction of Capt. Charles Tarlton, of Indianapolis. The company is equipped with one hundred stands of arms, furnished by Quartermaster-General J. P. Pope. The drill has imparted a military air to the bearing of the boys, and has proved very beneficial. The military company has responded to several invitations to give a dress-parade and drill for the entertainment of visiting members of the G. A. R. The boys have acquitted themselves creditably.

A Sunday morning inspection has been inaugurated. Each division is drawn up in line. Each child is inspected as to neatness of person and clothing, and as to manner of standing and marching. To each division of boys and girls which presents the most perfect appearance in line and in march for a month, a banner is awarded. This inspection by the Superintendent has caused an emulation among the divisions, and great improvement in manner of marching and general appearance is noticable.

INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENTS.

There are ten industrial departments, which are in a flourishing condition, as may be seen by their respective reports. Each department is under the charge of a skilled workman. The work is done by the children, and, as far as possible, each child is given his choice of a trade. The following table will show the number of boys and girls employed in the different departments:

TRADES.	BOYS.	GIRLS.	TOTAL.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

As there are over one hundred applications on hand, which have been approved, but can not be received on account of lack of accommodations, I respectfully recommend the construction of four double cottages, also an addition to the hospital, whereby the original plan may be carried out, thus furnishing quarantine and several rooms for patients who need isolation. The chapel, which is in use at the present time, being too small to accommodate the children now at the Home, I would urge the construction of a larger chapel, with a seating capacity of one thousand. Owing to the fact that the greater part of the illness of the occupants of the Home is traceable to the use of impure water, I would recommend and urge that wells be sunk of sufficient depth to insure an abundant supply of pure water. It is recommended that the frame building, known as the "brown cottage," be moved to a suitable location and fitted up as a gymnasium; that land be purchased sufficient for purposes of pasturage and cultivation; that two cottages be built to be occupied by the gardener and farmer. The inadequacy of shop room renders it impossible to furnish all children thirteen years of age with an opportunity to learn a trade; it is therefore imperative that the shops be enlarged and an addition to the carpenter shop, where wood-carving may be taught, is desirable. As the water-closets are now constructed and situated in the main building, they are a constant menace to the health and detriment to the comfort of occupants; I would therefore earnestly recommend that they be moved to a building especially constructed for that purpose. With the sincere appreciation of the efforts and assistance of the Honorable Board of Trustees, in maintaining discipline and building up the interests of the Institution, I now take pleasure in submitting my report.

Respectfully,

J. W. HARRIS,
Superintendent.

REPORT OF MATRON.

REV. J. W. HARRIS, Superintendent
Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home:

With pleasure I present my report of the work and condition of the departments under my supervision for the three months I have served the Home as matron.

The utmost care has been taken for the moral, mental and physical culture of the children committed to the care of the Home.

Moral and religious training is given by each respective governess; also by the required attendance upon chapel service and Sabbath-school. Many attend the weekly prayer meeting voluntarily.

Mental improvement is provided for by the graded school and kindergarten; also the use of the library.

Exercise is given by regular play hours for all; the older ones also assist in some of the light work necessary in the Institution.

The food is of the best quality, abundant in quantity, prepared by skilled cooks and served with due regard to neatness. A printed bill of fare is issued each week, which serves as orders to the cook and a source of information to friends.

The clothing is of good material, suited to the season, is well and tastefully made by competent tailors and dressmakers, assisted by the children learning these trades. Both boys and girls are being fitted out with navy blue uniform suits.

Great care is taken to keep the dormitories scrupulously clean and thoroughly ventilated. The beds are comfortable, neat and clean.

Bath rooms are provided with hot and cold water, pure soap and clean towels, and are used and enjoyed by the children.

The sick are well cared for at the hospital by a competent physician and faithful nurse.

The cooking school established September 1st adds an important branch to the industries of the Home, and its pupils are making good progress.

The increase in the work necessary to be done is perhaps more noticeable in the laundry than in any other department, the number of pieces laundered during the month of October, 1890, being nearly double that of October, 1889.

Although the work in all departments has been very materially increased by new arrivals, the heads of departments have been ably assisted by the employes in meeting the demand, so that the children have been properly cared for in every respect

Respectfully submitted,

E. W. WOODS,

Matron.

REPORT OF PHYSICIAN.

To the Superintendent and Board of Trustees of the Indiana Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home:

The past year has been marked by the large increase in the amount of sickness among the children and employes of the Home over preceding years: even taking into consideration the large increase in the enumeration of the Home, the proportionate amount of sickness has been greater than at any period in the history of the Institution.

We have been fortunate in escaping any of the contagious diseases, with the single exception of a mild form of scarlatina, of which we had eight cases; prompt isolation and thorough disinfection prevented its further development.

We were visited by the epidemic influenza, prevalent throughout the country—La Grippe—and but few of the inmates of the Home escaped it. There were no deaths, however, directly attributable to its influence, nor have we to report any lingering disease produced as a result of it, as is so generally common over the country.

We have had the usual amount of ills common to childhood, as well as those disturbances which might be expected where so many children are closely housed together.

The diseases most common with us during the past year, however, and those giving us the most concern as well as requiring the greatest attention, have been the almost epidemic tendency of typhoid, typhoid-malaria and remittent fevers. The first outbreak of fever occurred early in the fiscal year; indeed your attention was called to it in the latter part of the preceding year, and since that time there have only been short intervals when we have not had one or more cases under treatment. We have treated in the hospital and in the dormitories set apart for the sick in the main building, before our removal to the new hospital, nineteen cases of typhoid fever and fifty-eight cases of typho-malarial and remittent fevers.

The cause of this continuation and the repeated outbreaks of these diseases is, without question, of a local nature. As before mentioned, this tendency to these fevers seemed to threaten in the preceding year, and from that time until the present it has been the endeavor of every person associated with the care of the children to discover the cause and as far as possible remove the children from its influence. After a thorough investigation in the year 1889, the conclusion was reached that the water supply, which had always been considered of the purest, was the source of the trouble, and by order of the Board of Trustees an effort was at once made to correct this evil, and at no little trouble and expense it was thought to be accomplished (see report 1889).

At the beginning of the past fiscal year, however, we again had a most serious outbreak of typhoid and typho-malarial fevers, and although an inspection of the entire Institution is made every second week by the physician, at this time a most complete sanitary survey was made, and we were again brought by exclusion to the conclusion that the water was the contaminating influence. It was then suggested, and by order of Superintendent A. H. Morris, I had an analysis made by a practical chemist of the three sources of water supply. This analysis demonstrated the fact that all the water was impure, and that those sources which we had considered the purest, namely, the springs, were really the most foul. From this it is evident, and it has been clearly proven during the past year, that our only means of escaping a continuation of these troubles is a new, pure and sufficient supply of water for all domestic purposes. I call these matters again to your attention, in hope that you may endeavor to secure from the Legislature a sufficient appropriation for this purpose.

I desire, also, to direct your attention to the fact that the water closets, as they are now constructed in the main building, are a continued menace to the good health of the children. I would suggest their removal from the building, and that there be constructed a building or buildings, outside, which can be kept thoroughly clean and healthy.

I would also ask that the original plan as adopted for the hospital be completed, by which we can have a complete quarantine room, and a few private rooms for such patients as may need the use of them.

The following deaths have occurred during the year :

Name.	Date.	Cause.
Hattie May Fike	Nov. 10, 1889.....	Croup.
Emma Pearl Austin....	Nov. 15, 1889.....	Quinsy.
Jno. Goff.....	Dec. 20, 1889	Typhoid fever.
Josie Baker.....	Jan. 14, 1890	Consumption.
Lettia Irwan.....	Jan. 18, 1890	Malarial fever.
Arthur McKenzie.....	March 25, 1890.....	Pneumonia.
Amelia Petersdorf.....	June —, 1890.....	Tubercular meningitis

To the officers, the matrons, and the nurses of the Home, I am under many obligations for their willing assistance in the treatment and care of our sick.

Respectfully submitted,

O. E. HOLLOWAY, M. D.,

Physician.

REPORT OF SCHOOLS.

J. W. HARRIS, Superintendent

Indiana Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home :

The report of the school department for the year ending October 31, 1890, is as follows :

The school opened September 8, with ten teachers in charge and an enrollment of five hundred and four pupils. As the average age of the pupils is ten and six-tenths years, the majority of the children are in the primary grade. There have since entered the schools thirty-five new pupils, making the total enrollment five hundred and thirty-nine.

The responsibility resting upon the teacher, always great, is greater here, from the fact that the personal inspiration resulting from the encouragement of parents and friends is wanting. We are in an era of progressive teaching. That of combining the educational schools with instruction in industrial methods. We are meeting with a fair measure of success. Many children enter the school who have had no advantages for learning. As they can never make a success of any trade without a common school education, we would suggest that they be kept in school all day, and change the time of entering an industrial school from an age to a grade qualification.

The pupils in the primary departments are as well advanced as the same aged pupils in the city schools. When at the age of thirteen they enter one of the industrial departments and are in their classes but half a day, there is a lessening of interest in their studies, and the work is much harder for the teachers.

One of the needs of the school is reference books and current literature in the hands of the teachers.

OUTLINE OF COURSE OF STUDY.

In the preparation of the following course of study, the purposes for which this school was established have been constantly kept in mind, namely: that the instruction shall be thoughtful and systematic on the part of the teachers, and inspiring and helpful to the pupils, educating them for good citizenship by right habits of thinking and acting.

To lay the foundation for a thoughtful, well developed life, to give sufficient instruction in the common school branches, to enable the pupils to engage in ordinary business transactions, and further educate themselves.

The course of study covering the full eight years is designed to prepare any child leaving this school to enter the same grade in any school in the State.

The teachers are both professionally and especially fitted for the positions they occupy, as they are accustomed to the management, and are in full sympathy with the children of the Home.

Thanking you for your kindly assistance, I am

Very respectfully,

M. JOSEPHINE DONNOHUE,

Principal.

J. W. HARRIS, Superintendent

Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home:

The course of study used in the department of vocal music is found in the school report.

The work is now such that Grade Eight does that employed by high schools elsewhere.

While due attention is given to theory, all energies are bent toward cultivating independent singers and musical thinkers. Rhythm and movement must be expressed from feeling, hence keeping of time is made mental work.

Two-part exercises, singing from manual signs and dictation, and individual singing, begin in the First Primary Grade, as foundations for future independence.

The practice now in vogue of having songs by different divisions at Sunday Chapel exercises, is productive of much good in increasing the interest in singing, especially on the part of the boys, an unsolved problem to many teachers of music in public schools.

There are seventeen pupils in the piano department. This number is not in proportion with the number of children in the institution, but all that can receive instruction in the time left from work in the schools, there being no assistant.

The course of study embraces Howe's Piano Forte Instructor, Duvernoy's Etudes, Op. 120, Sonatinas by Clementi and Kulau, and Czerney's Velocity Studies.

Through the munificence of Mr. Benjamin Starr, of Richmond, Ind., at the close of the last school year a prize of fifteen, ten and five dollars, was awarded the best and second best performer, and the pupil who had made the most rapid progress during the year, respectively.

The interest manifested by the pupils in both departments of music is very encouraging, and points to the one consummation of any work thus done.

My thanks are due you and my fellow-workers for hearty co-operation.

Very respectfully,

DORA LEMONDS,

Teacher of Music.

J. W. HARRIS, Superintendent,
Indiana Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home:

The following is the report of the Cooking School for the year ending October 31, 1890:

The school opened Monday, September 1st, with twelve pupils, girls of the ages from thirteen to sixteen. Six of these attend in the morning from six until twelve, six in the afternoon from twelve until seven.

They are taught practical and scientific cooking. The school is decidedly practical, as the pupils prepare the meals, wash the dishes, take charge of the dining-rooms, and do all the waiting on the tables, that is, in the officers' dining-rooms.

Chemistry, as regards the common articles of food, is also taught. The object is to prepare educated cooks, and as such is the case, it is regretted that the advantages are few, and the disadvantages, such as lack of necessary utensils and books, and the necessity of preparing only such food, and in such quantities, as is consumed in the institution, are many. But chiefly, both pupils and teacher deplore the absence of a suitably furnished room set apart for the cooking school. With these advantages a larger number of pupils could be taught both in a more satisfactory and thorough manner.

Respectfully,

BERTHA DAHL,

Teacher of Cooking.

REPORT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF PRINTING.

J. W. HARRIS, Superintendent:

I take pleasure in submitting to you the annual report of the Department of Printing, of the Soldiers' Orphans' Home.

I assumed control of this office on the 25th day of July, 1890, and also took charge of the duties as editor of the Home Journal.

In October, volume second of this paper was completed, and we entered upon volume third with 915 subscribers upon our books. Although the circulation of the paper is not increasing rapidly, yet it is gradually gaining a circulation that will last. Our paper is made up of the very best of original and selected matter; time and pains not being spared to make it an exceptionally clean and bright sheet.

Since I have taken charge, the expenses of the office have been greatly reduced; a great deal of useless old material has been disposed of and new material traded for without any actual expense. At the beginning of the school year an entire reorganization of the printing office boys took place, and twenty-nine pupils were regularly assigned to this department. During the months of vacation, July and August, about thirteen boys got out the Journal regularly every week; heretofore a vacation has been granted. Our boys deserve commendation for their faithful, steady work. The boys assigned here are taught and made familiar with all departments of a newspaper office, as far as it is possible to do so on a weekly paper.

The Home Journal is a five-column quarto, printed on a fine quality of clean, white paper, from clear type, issued every Thursday morning. The subscription price is $1 per year. It is an all-home-print paper complete. The composition amounts to 14,000 and 15,000 ems per week, and is performed by about twenty-five regular "comps." In performing the work, all modern methods are introduced; terms and technicalities, such as are known in large daily paper offices, are followed somewhat, so as to furnish a general idea of the business.

The results of the training received here, so far, have proven to be very good. Out of twenty-one pupils engaged in learning the trade last year, seven boys, whose time had expired, left at the close of school, June 30, and with one and a half year's training (and a few, one year), they have all been successful in getting positions. It will not be amiss to name them: Eli Gillingham, with Rushville Graphic; Frederick Hoard (colored), Noblesville Ledger; Thomas Lamkin, Aurora Spectator; George Loughton, Lafayette Call; Willie and Charles Kuhn, Connersville News; Charles Caster, Indiana Farmer; Noah Caster, American Tribune. These were a few who left last year. This year will see a larger number go out ready to gain a livelihood in a useful and honorable occupation.

The office is in excellent condition; hardly anything more could be desired in the way of light, good material, etc. The only suggestion needing attention is that of additional room for extending this department, so that a larger number of pupils may learn the trade.

The amount of job work done for the Institution, since the last annual report, is as follows:

CARPENTER'S REPORT.

J. W. HARRIS, Superintendent

Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home:

I herewith submit my report for the year ending October 31, 1890.

My duties as foreman of the carpentering department began August 4, 1890.

I have done the following work: Built partition in hall on third floor in main building, and one in old dining-room, making it into two school-rooms. I put seats, platforms and blackboards in these rooms.

Built mop-room on second floor in water-closet, and made three ironing-boards and three trussels for ironing-room.

Two verandas for cottage No. 12, and six pairs of steps for south cottage; laid floor and finished rooms over dining-room; made mop-rack and pie-rack for bakery, put shelves in two sides of ironing-room, also shelves in tailor shop; two bracket shelves; door frame for north side of main building; two doors for case in shop; frame for scales, and moved scales.

Moved library from financial officer's office into new library room and put in new book shelves.

Such is a brief outline of the work done.

Five boys, Harry Runkle, Charlie Eades, Harry Jacques, Ward Metsker and Oscar Brown, are learning the trade and work one-half day.

Respectfully,

LON HOWARD,

Foreman.

FLORIST'S REPORT.

J. W. HARRIS, Superintendent

Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home:

I herewith submit the annual report of the florist and horticultural department:

Since the last report the extension and improvements of the lawn about the main building, hospital, cottages, new dining-room, and school buildings has been largely extended, taking in more grounds for lawn and driveway, the same being graded, drained, fertilized, sowing of grass seed and laying of sod and planting of trees, hardy shrubs and vines. The work of propagating, growing of plants, and cultivating, was also more extensive than last year.

The florist and horticultural department has been successful in making attractive the lawn and by-ways, with a large number of various kinds of plants and designs: also, decorating of dining-rooms, tables, trimming of caskets, and making designs for the deceased of the Home.

The green-house is in a good condition, with a nice, healthy stock of plants on hand for propagating and cultivation for next year's use. We are also well supplied with roses, carnations, smilax and other flowers for decorating purposes for the winter.

This, indeed, is a very brief description of the handsomely arranged grounds, and floral work in general, which does not fail to present endless charms to all beholders.

Six boys are learning the art, who are making good progress: Harry Johnson, Erwin Jacques, Franklin Kelly, Chas. Hendrickson, Eugene Anderson, and Clyde Chasteen. Three boys work in the morning and three in the afternoon.

A. M. TROXELL,

Florist.
